France Calls Back Troops In Face of Strike Peril

Blum to Go Before Assembly Today For Confirmation; Auriol Urges Calm

Italians Quiet Down

Half-Million Out

Paris, Nov. 20 (AP).—President Vincent Auriol recalled 140,000 conscripts to the army tonight and announced that 75-year-old Leon Blum had agreed to try to form a new government of "public safety" to deal with a Communist-inspired labor crisis.

Blum, twice a prewar Premier and head of the short caretaker regime between the provisional government and the Fourth Republic, will go before the National Assembly tomorrow to ask for confirmation of his appointment.

If he succeeds in winning 310 votes, a majority of the 619 members, he will set about organizing a cabinet which it was reported would be widely representative of French political parties.

The Communist Party issued a statement which did not mention Blum's name but condemned his government in advance "if it corresponds to the desires of the American imperialists."

Reds Demand Leading Role

The Communists called for "a democratic government, in the heart of which the working class and its Communist Party could at last play a determining role."

Political sources believed Paul Reynaud, independenet rightist, who was France's last pre-Vichy Premier, would be Vice Premier.

With more than 500,000 coal miners, metal workers, longshoremen, flour millers and railway men on strike, more due to walk out tomorrow and Monday, and the nation's coal stockpile reduced to dangerous level, the President today appealed for calm. At the same time the government recalled to the colors part of the 1947 military class to bring the army up to "normal strength."

Half of the 1947 contingent, not due to be demobilized until next spring, was freed a few months ago to provide manpower for agriculture and industry.

Railwaymen in Marseille walked off their jobs as the national railwaymen's union decided to support other strikers in demands for salary advances. There still was no indication, however, that a nationwide railway strike would be called.

Brief 'Warning' Strike Voted

The Paris subway union also voted a "warning" strike of one hour at 3 p. m. tomorrow to protest the government's use of troops to evacuate strikers from the Citroen automobile plant last night.

Special security guards of troops and police maintained posts at strategic parts of Paris and at Marseille to prevent any disorder re-

16-Page Section On Marshall Plan In Sunday's Post

A 16-page supplement on the Marshall Plan for European recovery will be published as part of next Sunday's Washington Post.

Most of the material in the supplement has been specially prepared by the Foreign Policy Association of New York, drawing upon its unique fact-finding resources to tell a clear and authoritative story.

In addition, reporters of The Washington Post's national staff have contributed signed articles on the political and economic background of the European economic crisis and the American response to it.

The supplement will appear in a convenient tabloid form that can be used for information and reference as Congress debates the program. Readers can be sure of getting copies by ordering them now from The Washington Post.

Post Readers Will Get Full Gridiron Coverage

Again this weekend the sports staff of The Washington Post will supply eye-witness coverage of the major grid games in this area.

Today's afternoon and evening high school games will be fully reported by Herb Heft and his schoolboy assistants.

Maryland-Vanderbilt by Morris Siegel.

North Carolina-Duke by Jack Walsh.

In Monday's Post Bill Burnett and Shirley Povich will describe the Sunday afternoon clash between Washington's Redskins and the Chicago Cardinals.

Food Program Is Assumed by Government

Luckman's Committee Takes Advisory Role; 'Days' to Continue

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday relieved Charles Luckman and the Citizens Food Committee of administration of the Nation-wide food conservation program.

He then renamed the same group the Citizens Food Advisory Committee, and asked it to remain "on call for so long a period as may be necessary," to advise the Government departments that will take over the campaign.

The campaign, which calls for meatless Tuesdays and eggless Thursdays, "must be pushed forward throughout the coming winter and at least through the first half of next year," the President said in accepting Luckman's retirement.

Goal Certain, Luckman Says

In asking to be relieved, Luckman wrote the President that programs he put into effect will "total considerably more than the 100 million bushel goal of the emergency campaign." These he listed as:

1. Grain conservation pledges by the poultry producers, distillers, wet and dry millers, armed forces and the public feeding industry.

2. Grain conservation measures undertaken by the livestock industry and administered by the Department of Agriculture.

3. The consumer conservation program.

In accepting Luckman's resignation, Mr. Truman referred to his programs as "splendid achievements."

Quota Was Increased

"The voluntary efforts inaugurated by your committee will continue to be necessary to supplement the program which I have asked the Congress to authorize," the Chief Executive wrote.

"I call on the American people, the State and local committees, and all the organizations and groups, to continue their vigorous efforts in carrying out this program."

Luckman will remain for two weeks to prepare a report on his work, and to transfer operations. The work will be delegated to the

Royal Pair Starts Honeymoon After Marriage Rites in Abbey

By Robert Musel

London, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth, heir to the British throne, and Prince Philip were married in a ceremony of breath-taking beauty today.

Tonight with the cheers of one million Britons still echoing they started their honeymoon in a country mansion in Hampshire.

At the high altar of Westminster Abbey, radiantly happy beside the man who will be her princely consort when she is reigning Queen of this ancient kingdom, the princess by her own desire promised to "obey him, and serve him . . ."

They drove in a great glass coach of state past the cheering throngs to Buckingham Palace for a wedding breakfast. To the roaring demand, "We want the bride," from the crowd massed outside, they appeared on a balcony twice.

Month of Seclusion

The estate's gates clanged shut behind them and they started on the only month of seclusion they, caught in the spotlight which seeks out British royalty, may ever have.

Armed with ration books which they took along, they sat down to a three-course austerity dinner—soup, chicken with two vegetables and ice cream.

As they started their bridal dinner the Dean of Westminster, in the now gloomy old Abbey, put the princess' wedding bouquet by her request on the hallowed tomb of Britain's unknown warrior past which she had walked to the altar this morning.

King George started the royal couple off with a gesture which assured that the bridegroom, in his difficult future role of consort, would have as nearly equal status with his wife as was possible.

The King made the newly created Duke of Edinburgh also a British royal prince, and thus put him on equal footing with the King's own brother the Dukes of Gloucester and Windsor.

In the future Philip will be "His Royal Highness Prince Philip, Duke of Edinburgh, Earl of Merioneth, Baron Greenwich, K. G." the "K. G." is for Knight of the Garter.

London shot the works for the marriage of the royal couple, its greatest show since King George's coronation in 1937. For hour after hour along the route between Buckingham Palace and Westminster, then at the abbey, then at the palace, men, women and children shouted and shrieked.

All over London, all over this kingdom in English, Welsh and Scots public places, the toasts of the newly married couple were drunk, around the globe in the princess' future empire there were celebrations of the same kind.

Police reported 2500 casualties along the packed procession route—some of them with broken limbs. Thirty-seven were taken to hospitals.

The bridal couple rode in their gaily decorated special train, the engine whistle tooting bravely, past town and village where crowds waved and cheered from flag-decked stations.

Princess Carries Pet Dog

The train reached Winchester shortly after 6 p. m. There was a civic reception and the honeymooners, with Elizabeth carrying her little Welsh corgi pet dog, drove through lanes of shouting villagers to quiet Romsey, site of the estate, which is the country home of Philip's uncle, Earl Mountbatten.

It is a strange honeymoon place for two royal people—ever since the war the main part of the mansion has been a hospital and the princess and Philip have only a small suite—living, dining and bedrooms principally. Patients in the hospital part will be able to see them as they walk in the grounds.

To welcome the bridal couple were the butler—Charles Aldred, 68, recalled from retirement for the occasion—and three other servants.

On the second floor was the bridal bedroom—pink and gold.

The princess wore, for her going-away costume, her new love-in-the-mist afternoon dress and topcoat with a high bonnet beret in mist blue felt, trimmed with a large ostrich pompon and curved quills in two tones of blue.

7th Floor Workers Indignant When 3d Floor Gets 'Raises'

Question: When is a raise not a raise? Answer: When it's a . . . But maybe we better start with the beginning.

The employes of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service have offices on the third and the seventh floors of the Labor Department Building. Recently, a delegation of those on the seventh floor waited upon J. C. Greenwood, jr., FMCS personnel officer.

They told him they had been informed, on the most reliable authority, that all employes on the third floor had just been given raises, and that they would like some, too. Greenwood assured them that no pay increases had been granted. They departed, still unconvinced.

Next day they appeared again, declaring that their informant had stated flatly that raises had been handed out to third-floor employes. Again Greenwood swore, Scout-honor, cross-his-heart, that the report was unfounded.

But it turned out that there was some basis for it. Investigation disclosed that a friend had presented Howard T. Colvin, associate director of the agency, with a large carton of raisins. He had distributed its contents to employes in the third-floor offices.

Disloyalty Firings Few, Army Says

Many Earmarked For Check Let Out On Other Counts; Royall Aide Explains

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Hundreds of War Department civil employes were "earmarked" for removal because of suspected disloyalty and then dropped for other stated reasons during 1946 and 1947, the Army revealed yesterday.

This was disclosed in a statement explaining wide discrepancies between two official Army reports on the number of civilian workers fired for disloyalty.

Last summer the Civil Service Commission passed on to Congress an Army report listing the number of disloyalty dismissals in one Army area during a nine months' period at 190. The report estimated the total for the United States between July 1, 1946, and March 31, 1947, at 760 workers.

55 Fired as Disloyal

On Wednesday, Kenneth D. Johnson, special assistant to Army Secretary Royall, said that only 55 civil employes had been fired for disloyalty since 1942.

After Chairman Rees (R., Kans.) of the House Civil Service Committee called for an explanation, the department said:

"All of these workers (those listed in the July report) were not fired or dismissed but were earmarked for separation when overall reduction in personnel became necessary."

Officials said that some of them were "let out" on other formal charges, such as tardiness or drinking, or simply put on the list as the first to go when the staff was curtailed.

This "earmarking," a spokesman said, was done by the commanding officer of the Army installation "who had reason to believe, rightly or wrongly, that the employe was disloyal."

Navy Gives Records

Army officials said there is no way of determining here whether there was an adequate investigation made by the local commander to determine the truth of the suspicion of disloyalty. It is possible that in some cases there was no investigation at all, they said.

An employe dropped under these circumstances may or may not be able to get another Federal job, it was said, depending upon whether his record shows that his loyalty was questioned. Where an investigation occurred, military intelligence or the FBI would have a record of it, and a subversive worker probably could be prevented from getting into a responsible Federal position.

Meanwhile, the Navy disclosed that 10 of its civil employes have been discharged for disloyalty in the past six months and that 13 others resigned after charges were preferred against them on such grounds.

Rear Admiral Paul B. Nibecker, chief of the Navy's industrial relations, said that 45 naval civil workers have been cited on charges of disloyalty since last May 29. None of the cases involved employes in Washington, he said.

Most of the charges involved membership in the Communist Party or association with Communists or "fellow travelers," he said. Eight of the 45 were cleared of disloyalty allegations after a hearing before a three-man local board.

Nine of those suspended by the local commandant after such a hearin failed to exercise their right to an appeal to the Secretary of the Navy and were fired. Fifteen did appeal and one of these was dismissed after the Navy Department

Britain Upsets Palestine Plan With Threat to End Mandate

By Robert Bruskin
Post Reporter

Lake Success, N. Y., Nov. 20.—Britain today temporarily stymied debate on the American-Soviet plan for partition of Palestine by declaring divided responsibility provided in the proposal will bring "disastrous consequences."

Sir Alexander Cadogan told the 57-nation Palestine committee of the United Nations that the British would insist on their rights to end the mandate at any time, and might do it sooner than expected, without permission of the Security Council.

Semyon Tsarapkin of Russia, who demanded Security Council control as part of the compromise, immediately declared Cadogan's statement would "necessitate serious alterations" in the plan. He asked adjournment until tomorrow to get instructions.

Other delegates felt optimistic, however, that a solution to British objections could be reached without delay.

The original compromise solution was for termination of the mandate not later than next August 1, and independence for Jewish and Arab states by October 1. The British still plan to have all their troops evacuated by next August 1.

The compromise provided also that the transitional government between the end of the mandate and independence would be under a five-nation commission. But Britain insisted that she continue to retain control over areas occupied by her troops as they evacuate, because "no better way could be found to create confusion and disorder" than have two authorities in the occupied areas.

Cadogan agreed, however, that Britain would turn over areas vacated by troops to the commission, rather than to any local government.

The British also insist, he said, on the unilateral right to terminate the mandate at any time it sees fit, without asking permission of the Security Council. The plan declared termination of the mandate before August 1 needed agreement from the British, the commission and the Security Council under which the commission operates.

He indicated the mandate might be terminated much earlier than August 1.

While many delegates expressed annoyance with the statement because it ended hopes of finishing

War Contracting Firm Set Up for 'Girl Friend,' Meyers Tells Probers

Never Received A Cent of Profits, He Swears to Senate Committee

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers yesterday defended his action in setting up a lushly profitable war contracting firm by saying he did it to help a former "girl friend" and her acquiescent husband.

On the stand before the Senate War Investigating Committee, the retired wartime chief of the Army Air Forces Materiel Command identified that "girl friend" as Mrs. Mildred Lamarre, wife of Bleriot H. Lamarre, "dummy" president of the Aviation Electric Corp., at Dayton, Ohio.

Asserting that he was aware he was "sinking to a new low," Meyers said slowly and deliberately:

"I have to admit that Mrs. Lamarre was my girl friend from a period of approximately 1936 to 1940. She was with Mr. Lamarre's knowledge, approval and acquiescence."

Lamarre Hears Testimony

As the general offered his explanation of "the real truth" of his wartime aviation deal, the 35-year-old Lamarre, blond and wavy-haired, sat nearby, his face expressionless and frozen. An unusually stalwart Capitol policeman had been stationed right beside Lamarre, apparently to head off any outburst.

The general told the committee he was telling the story of his "relationship" with Mrs. Lamarre "reluctantly" but did not mention that he had called a press conference three days ago and in blunt language had outlined his whole sordid tale.

The dates he gave reporters then were 1936-1944.

The crowded hearing room was stonily silent as the general told his well-prepared story under the full glare of newsreel lights into microphones that were sending his words from coast to coast.

During the past few days, committee investigators, with the aid of Lamarre's testimony, had been totaling up the general's war profits from Aviation Electric Corp. alone to a sum of more than $150,000.

Tells of Cash "Advances"

Meyers said he had organized the company and made cash "advances" totaling $18,000 to the Lamarres so they could "live in the manner they wanted to live in."

The general, now retired from the Army with a $461 a month pension, flung out:

"I organized the company in order to bring Mrs. Lamarre back to Dayton from California, if you must know. Of course I hoped the company would become independent."

Chairman Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.) interposed quietly:

"So you wouldn't have to advance them any more money?"

Pressed by Ferguson

That might have been in his mind, Meyers conceded.

"General, isn't it a greater disgrace to the uniform to do what you say you did—organize a company to get Government contracts for that purpose—than to do what Mr. Lamarre says you did?" Ferguson asked.

Meyers first said he didn't organize the company to get war contracts.

Then he said the establishment of the company "had nothing to do with the girl, Senator."

Pressed, he wound up with a question himself:

"Is it a disgrace to the uniform to do what I did in trying to help someone get started in a future?"

"I want to state categorically here that I have never received one cent of profits from the Aviation Electric Co.," Meyers maintained.

"The only moneys I have received were in repayment of loans I had made to Mr. and Mrs. Lamarre.

"I admit I made advances to them."

Meyers admitted he had no "substantiation" for his testimony that he had loaned the Lamarre's $18,000, no notes and no books, but he burst out:

"I also would like to state to

Gen. Bradley's Appointment As Chief of Staff Due Today

Bradley — Johnson — Hawley — Hershey

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

Announcement that Gen. Omar N. Bradley will succeed Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower as Army Chief of Staff is expected to be made by President Truman at his press conference this morning.

Who will succeed Bradley as administrator of veterans' affairs was still a White House secret last night.

Considered as leading possibilities to take over the helm of the Veterans' Administration which spends seven billions a year were:

Maj. Gen. Paul R. Hawley, wartime chief surgeon of the European theater and VA medical director under Bradley.

Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, wartime draft director and presently head of the Office of Selective Service Records.

Robert Wood Johnson, chairman of the board of Johnson & Johnson Surgical Co., and former vice chairman of the War Production Board, in charge of Smaller War Plants.

General Eisenhower, expected to retire from the Army around February 1, has accepted appointment as president of Columbia University. Some political observers believe he will also become a potent candidate for the Republican presidential nomination.

Appointment of Bradley, who is 54, to succeed Eisenhower has been expected ever since the former, at the bid of the White House, quit his post at the command of the Twelfth Army Group to assume direction of Veterans' Administration in August, 1945.

Five-star General of the Army "Ike" and four-star General "Brad" have been close friends since early in their careers. As supreme commander of the Allied expeditionary

Price Issue Laid to GOP By Democrats

High-Level Parleys Assure Clearance Of Stopgap Relief

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The sizzling anti-inflation issue was hotter than ever last night as Senate Democratic leaders passed the price dilemma on to Republicans and GOP steersmen tossed it back at the White House.

"Most of the powers necessary to restrain inflation are already in the President's hands . . ." said the Senate Republican policy group.

A day of high-level party conferences on both sides of the Capitol resulted in a clear track for stopgap foreign aid legislation but in these mixed moves on price curbs:

1. Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley (Ky.) following a meeting with his policy committee, said responsibility for initiation of price legislation "rests with the Republican majority in both Houses." Barkley said Democrats would wait "a reasonable time" to see what measures Republicans offer. He suggested bipartisan sponsorship of price measures.

2. Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) after a conference with Republican steersmen, disagreed on the question of responsibility. He said Republicans will be responsible only for "full consideration" of Mr. Truman's proposals, and that need not mean initiating his measures. A formal statement by the GOP Steering Committee approved "immediate consideration" of all of the President's price points by Senate standing committees and Taft's own joint economic group. The latter will open hearings today.

3. Chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.) of the Senate Banking Committee, told reporters following a meeting of his group: "Damn the torpedoes, let's go ahead . . . The American people have become ugly and bitter over this tragic price situation." Tobey's committee decided to proceed Monday

Truman Sees Marshall Off For Council

Secretary Promises To Do Best at London; Talks With Byrnes

Promising only to do his best, Secretary Marshall flew off into chilly gray skies yesterday for the Council of Foreign Ministers in London.

He will make a new effort to reach a four-power agreement on Germany at what he called "this vital and important conference."

President Truman and a galaxy of high officials went to National Airport to see the Secretary off on his journey, which may keep him in London until Christmas.

"I have the utmost confidence in you," the President told him at the airport. Wishing him Godspeed and good luck, the smiling President added:

"I know you are going to have it because you know how to do your job."

Inverchapel at Airport

Those who came to the airport included Attorney General Tom Clark, Postmaster General Robert E. Hannegan, Admiral William D. Leahy, Undersecretary of State Robert A. Lovett, and the British Ambassador, Lord Inverchapel.

The Secretary took off at 1:22 p. m. in the President's plane, the Sacred Cow, with Charles E. Bohlen, counselor of the Department, as his principal traveling companion. The plane is expected to land today after a single stop for refueling at Stephenville, Newfoundland.

Before leaving Washington the Secretary asked former Secretary James F. Byrnes to come to his office for a meeting that lasted an hour and a half. In his recent book, "Speaking Frankly," Byrnes urged the Western powers to call a German peace conference without Russia if the London meeting should fail.

His Second Session

Secretary Marshall has endured only one session of the Council—the inconclusive seven-week meeting at Moscow last spring—but Byrnes is a veteran of long and

Commissioners' Order

Murphy Trial Board Limited To First 15 Months as Chief

The District Commissioners yesterday limited the special trial board, which will weigh "demoralization" charges against Fire Chief Clement Murphy, to consideration of the first 15 months of his term as fire chief.

In an official order appointing the trial board, the Commissioners said:

"The jurisdiction of the board shall be to hear evidence of those charges against the chief engineer occurring from the date of his appointment as chief engineer on March 1, 1946, to July 1, 1947."

The latter date, officials pointed out, was when Capt. Joseph W. Conroy presented the Commissioners with a list of charges against Murphy.

The limitation will bar from the trial much of the testimony taken by assistant corporation counsel in a five-month investigation of the Conroy charges, officials said. Several charges, they stated, stemmed from Murphy's alleged actions before he became chief.

Conroy's attorney, William L. Rowan, said the limitation would "eliminate the real issue—which the committee that I have no record of a loan to General Echols for $7500 and loans to many other people."

Meyers Says Firm Set Up for 'Girl Friend'

Maj. Gen. Oliver P. Echols was Meyers' wartime superior, and the highest ranking wartime procurement officer.

Uncertain About Checks

Ferguson asked Meyers whether he had made any of his claimed $18,000 "advances" by check. First Meyers said he thought he did, then he wasn't so sure.

"Well, I was married at that time. I hate to bring all this out but is it logical I would be giving checks for personal loans to those people?"

The 52-year-old general has been twice divorced, the second time in 1941, and on February 14, 1943, married Ila Rae Cornutt, a former minor actress in Hollywood.

Meyers, whose attorney, John H. Amen, had informed some reporters earlier that his client was going to bring out his extramarital affairs on the witness stand, prefaced his defense with this statement:

'Reluctant' to Tell Story

"I'm going to tell you the complete truth about everyone involved in the Aviation Electric Co. and I'm afraid in giving it to you I'm going to have to drop to a new low—even lower than the accusations that have been brought out against me in this hearing—I do this with greatest hesitation and the greatest reluctance but there ns no way of bringing out the truth except to tell the whole truth to the committee. There is no other way it can be related.

"I still have a little bit of chivalry left in me so I say I dislike to inject the name of any lady into the story but I have to admit Mrs. Lamarre was my girl friend for a period from 1936 to 1940. This whole conception of Aviation Electric developed from that and is tied up entirely with it. It is the story of Aviation Electric.

Scorns Methods Described

Meyers protested over and over again to the committee that he was "much too intelligent," had too much training in accounting and too much training in law to have operated a company the way the committee evidence indicates he did.

The committee by examination of bank records, checks, the evidence of Lamarre and T. E. Readnower, Mrs. Lamarre's brother, and other witnesses, has totaled up profits of more than $150,000 going to the general and a total take of more than $200,000. Most of it, evidence showed, was in the form of "kickbacks" from faked salaries of company officials.

"What if I were going to be a crook," sputtered the general, "I could be a better crook than that with all the experience I had in accounting. I just can't understand how I was alleged to have masterminded this company in this way.

"I can't believe," added Meyers, accenting every "I," "I'd be so moronic."

"Little Black Book" Lost

"I don't see how any intelligent person at all can sit here and think I would do any such thing.

"Great Caesar's Ghost! I could do a better job than that. I sure as the dickens am too smart to do it that way."

Committee Counsel William P. Rogers, who has been conducting much of the examination of the witnesses, said:

"You could, for instance, have destroyed some of the records instead of leaving them with the bank? You could, you maintain, have just torn up the company records and then said they were lost?"

Sure, Meyers agreed, he could have done something like that if he had any idea of doing something wrong.

"Do you happen to know what has happened to your little black cash book?" pounced Ferguson.

"Well, I told you . . . I told you I lost it."

"What has happened to your diary for the years 1943 and 1944?" asked Ferguson.

"I told you about that. While I was in the hospital resting from a nervous breakdown for which I was given a medical discharge someone else packed up my things at Wright Field. I found a lot of things missing, Senator, just a lot of things . . . other books . . . papers."

Denies Lying to Army

Earlier in the day, Meyers had denied he was guilty of "making a false statement" to the Army when they asked about his holdings—$35,000 in aviation stocks—while he was an Army Air Force officer.

What happened was this, he said. He did report his stocks in answer to the Army inquiry but he just didn't list those particular ones.

He put those on a separate sheet of paper and he took both memoranda, he testified, to Lieut. Gen. H. H. Arnold, then commanding general of the Army Air Forces.

Arnold told him to "forget all about" his holdings, he said, but warned him not to do business wit hthe firms whose stock he held.

Arnold to Take Stand

Arnold, now retired, is expected to take the witness stand today to answer the claim that he condoned Meyers' wartime stock holdings.

Meyers' testimony given in executive session, July 16, 1945, was read back to him. It was given in response to a question on whether or not he and Arnold had held a conversation about his stocks.

"Yes, sir, we did. . . Now I won't swear to that either but I believe we did. I believe, and this is to the best of my recollection, I went to General Arnold and said:

" 'Now look, you know my circumstances and you know I deal in the stock market and everything and you know I have got these securities. Now what in the hell should I do about them?

" 'Shall I sell them, or shouldn't I sell them? Or what in the hell should I do? I don't know what in the hell to do.'

"And to the best of my recollection, General Arnold said to me, 'Benny, God damn it, use your own judgment.'

'Voice' Funds Vital in Aid, Barkley Says

A "substantial" increase in funds for the State Department's "Voice of America" program must accompany the Marshall Plan, Senator Alben W. Barkley (D., Ky.) declared yesterday.

Present operation of our foreign information program is "pitiful" and "humiliating" in comparison to Soviet propaganda efforts, the Senate minority leader said.

Addressing a Federal Bar Association luncheon at the Williard Hotel, Senator Barkley, who recently returned from Europe as a member of a special Senate investigating committe said:

"Nothing could be more tragic than that those very people we are trying to help should have their minds poisoned about the motives, objectives and aims of America."

"The masses of people behind the iron curtain are our friends," he said, "yet our voice is silent in comparison . . . the incredibly distorted picture presented by the Soviet and her satellites."

He expressed the belief that "Congress at its next session will appropriate a large sum of money" for foreign information work.

Because of the cut made by Congress from the requested 31 million dollars to $12,400,000 for the State Department's Office of International Information and Cultural Affairs, personnel at all embassies concerned with dissemination of information was cut "an average of two thirds," he said.

Area CIO Council Alters Constitution For Closer Bonds

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Maryland and District of Columbia Industrial Union Council (CIO) adopted major changes in its constitution today as a means of creating stronger bond between CIO unions of this area.

The 200 delegates representing 100,000 CIO members voted to increase its executive board to approximately 50 members, as compared with the present 17-man board of a president, secretary-treasurer and 15 vice presidents.

Senator Stewart's Daughter Is Wed To Virginia Man

Winchester, Tenn., Nov. 20 (Spl.). Miss Betty Ann Stewart, daughter of United States Senator and Mrs. Tom Stewart of Winchester and John Walthall Dunn of Fredericksburg, Va., were married here today.

Mrs. Dunn

Miss Mary Benton Gore of Washington was maid of honor and Thomas Burton Dunn, brother of the bridegroom, was best man at the service in the Methodist Church here.

Following the reception, the bridegroom, son of Mrs. Thomas Burton Dunn of Fredericksburg, and his wife left for Asheville, N. C. on a wedding trip. They will make their home in Washington D. C.

Ancient Indian Remains Found

Extensive remains of ancient Indian tribes — including some which existed about 10,000 years ago—have been discovered in the Missouri River basin.

The Smithsonian Institution reported yesterday that work is being rushed to gather relics at 500 archeological sites in the area to be flooded in the basin development program.

Dr. Waldo R. Wedel of the National Museum directed the field work. Dr. Frank H. H. Roberts, jr., of the Bureau of American Ethnology, heads the overall project in which the National Park Service and the Army Corps of Engineers are cooperating.

Washington Cathedral Rites Celebrate Royal Wedding

More than 1000 persons—most of them British subjects—yesterday worshiped at an evensong service commemorating the royal wedding in London.

Lord Inverchapel, British Ambassador to the United States, and Lady Inverchapel sat in the Great Choir of the Washington Cathedral.

Bishop Angus Dun, of the Washington Episcopal Diocese, conducting the service, said "we thank God that in a world where there is so much darkness, fear and burden, the springs of joy are not shut up."

"There is color and music; there are lovely occasions which God gives to us for our renewal and none loveller than marriage," he said.

The brief service ended with the throng standing to sing "God Save the King."

Diplomatic representatives and families were present from Canada, India, Burma, Pakistan, South Africa, New Zealand, Australia and Ireland.

NBC to Televise Princess' Wedding

New York, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Exclusive first American rights to BBC's television films of the wedding of Princess Elizabeth have been secured by a program of the National Broadcasting Co.'s VIDEO network and will be shown twice tomorrow.

The Jinx Falkenberg-Tex McCrary program will televise the films at its regular Friday time, 1 p. m. New York, Washington and Philadelphia will be in the hookup. Their sponsor also has purchased the 8:20 to 8:40 p. m. time Friday for a second showing of the films, with Schenectady, N. Y., being added to the network at that time.

Flooring Co. Picket Arrested for Assault

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—A picket was arrested on assault charges and the Colonial Hardwood Flooring Co. said today it would file additional unfair labor practices with the National Labor Relations Board against the United Furniture Workers (CIO).

William E. Palmer, 20, identified as a UFW picket at the strike-bound company, was ordered held under $500 bond in magistrate's court today after requesting a jury trial on the assault charge.

U. S. Backs Rightists, Finnish Paper Charges

Helsinki, Finland, Nov. 20. (U.P.)—The Communist newspaper Tyoekansan Sanomat today charged the United States legation with actively backing rightist parties in the coming municipal elections.

The paper charged that the Conservative Party and the American Legation jointly had organized a recent rightist rally held at Kristiina, 100 miles east of Helsinki. A legation spokesman said some American films were supplied but denied they were political propaganda.

board of appeals upheld the local action. The remainder are pending. Six others are still before local boards.

Navy Changes Procedure

Nibecker said that the Navy procedure conforms to that laid down by President Truman last May. Prior to that the Navy operated under Public Law 808 of 1942.

A total of 287 employes were dismissed during the war "under 808 procedure" but they included sex perverts and "talkative drunks" as well as disloyalty cases, he said.

The Army and Air Force still operate under Public Law 808, and since 1942 have dismissed 55 employes on specific charges of disloyalty, Army Aide Johnson stated. Its procedure does not provide a hearing for the accused employe, as the Navy system now does.

Admiral Nibecker said he considered the old 808 procedure a "bit high-handed." While the new Navy system does not provide full due process of law—as no accuser is present and some hearsay evidence is admitted—Nibecker said every effort is made to give the accused a fair deal.

He is furnished with a copy of the charges and is allowed to have counsel during the hearing.

Representative Rees declared the discrepancies in the two Army reports show that the "right hand does not know what the left is doing." He urged passage of his loyalty bill, passed by the House last session and pending in the Senate.

It would set up an independent commission to investigate disloyalty, which would report fully to Congress on the situation within the Government agencies.

In a related development yesterday, it was reported that the House Un-American Activities Committee will open hearings in about two weeks on fascism in the United States. Some "pretty important people" are involved, it was said.

Thugs Get $5230 In San Francisco Store Robbery

San Francisco, Nov. 20 (AP).—Two gunmen escaped with $5230 in cash from Macy's San Francisco department store last night after binding a watchman who was putting the money in a basement vault.

Before making their getaway, the robbers obligingly opened a side door and let out four company employes who had been working overtime on Christmas decorations.

One of the four, Miss Edith Demartini, told police she thought the man who let them out was a stranger and asked him:

"Aren't you new here?"

"Yes," he replied. "I just started tonight."

"What's your name?" she persisted.

"Morgenthau," he answered.

"Oh, that's a good name," she smiled. "You must have lots of money."

"Yes, I have," he replied knowlingly, and bid her good night.

Virginia Agents Elect Officers

Blacksburg, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—G. L. Hall of Halifax and Miss Eva Minix of Harrisonburg today were elected presidents respectively of the Virginia County Agents Association and the Virginia Home Demonstration Agents Association.

Hall succeeds J. E. Delp of Gate City. Miss Minix succeeds Miss Lillian Livesay of Amherst.

Governor Charges Truman Administration Has Left Country Open to Red Conquest

Manchester, N. H., Nov. 20 (AP).—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York wound up a two-day visit to New England today charging the Truman Administration with "seemingly abandoning the Chinese to Communist conquest."

Aid to the Chinese government he contended, "should be part of the long range program and given top consideration with the situation in Europe."

Asked at a press conference regarding high prices and their relationship to aid abroad, Dewey confined his reply to:

Calls China Aid Urgent

Insisting aid to China was more urgent than European aid, Dewey said a two months delay "may be too late."

Asked whether the Chinese aid should be given priority by the special session of Congress, Dewey replied:

"It's first an administrative matter. It could have been given months ago. The tragedy is that it has been neglected. It should be part of the long-range program and given top consideration with the situation in Europe."

As to High Prices

As to a plan for combating high prices simultaneously with giving aid abroad, Dewey said in reply to a question:

"Certainly steps have to be taken to combat the inflationary effects of the program of foreign assistance."

He declined to elaborate further.

En route back to Albany, the Republican Governor paused at Lebanon, where he visited the ancestral Dewey farm home, and the cemetery wher his grandfather and great-grandfather are buried. He stopped again at Deweys Mills, Vt., and conferred privately with a cousin, James Dewey, Republican national committeeman.

FAREWELL FROM THE PRESIDENT—President Truman shakes hands and bids farewell to Secretary of State George C. Marshall at the National Airport yesterday. Marshall boarded a plane to attend the Big Four Conference of Foreign Ministers at London the Council of Foreign Ministers, opening Tuesday.

Smith planned to confer with Gen. Lucius D. Clay, United States military governor of Germany, who also is going to London.

Price Inflation Issue Laid To GOP Policy by Democrats

with the four least controversial items on the program: Consumer credit controls, bank credit restrictions, speculation on the commodity exchanges and rent control extension. It delayed a decision on limited rationing and price-wage ceilings.

4. House Banking Committee strategists, however, decided to hear testimony first on the two most controversial points, rationing and ceilings. House hearings will open Tuesday. Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.), in a speech before the Economic Club of New York, meanwhile, proposed production-incentive tax adjustments as one alternative. He said the President's program can't be administered without "serious setbacks to our production."

Stopgap Air Discussed

House and Senate GOP leaders meanwhile held a joint conference on both the aid and price questions. Speaker Joseph W. Martin, jr. (Mass.), said the only conclusion reached was that the Senate will go ahead next week on interim aid. Martin indicated the House aid bill, now being drawn by the Foreign Affairs Committee, will get floor action the following week. Sitting in were Taft, Senate President Pro Tempore Arthur H. Vandenberg (R., Mich.), House Majority Leader Charles A. Halleck (R., Ind.), Representative Christian A. Herter (R., Mass.), Martin and others.

The Senate Republican Steering Committee met later. Taft qualified his announcement that all 10 points in the President's price program will get "immediate" committee consideration. He put rationing and ceilings "at the end of the list." Taft has previously said both should wait until the regular session.

The statement approved by Taft's steering group carried the fight to the White House by listing powers the President now has to check inflation.

"The most important causes of inflation are tremendous rate of Government spending and the abnormal rate of export," the statement said. "The President has full power to limit exports but has not done so. In many respects he could cut down the rate of Government spending if he had the slightest interest in doing so. Campaigns to promote more saving and to reduce consumption could have been much more effectively carried on without legislative action."

Hearings Open Today

Joint Economic Committee hearings on the President's proposals will start at 2 p. m. today, with Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson leading off. Anderson and other Administration witnesses "will be asked to make definite those recommendations which are stated in such general terms they cannot be understood," the GOP statement said.

"We'd like to know in detail what these measures are," Taft added. "That's why these gentlemen are coming up."

The Senate Democratic policy meeting earlier indorsed the 597-million-dollar interim aid bill and praised the Senate Foreign Relations Committee for unanimous action approving it.

On the price question, Barkley's statement said:

"The Democratic Policy Committee stands ready to cooperate with the Republican majority in enactment of the President's program and hopes that joint proposals in the way of legislation sponsored by both Republicans and Democrats may be promptly forthcoming. Our policy committee recognizes that there is no partisan politics in inflation or the high cost of living and that the program should be dealt with as an economic and social program rather than a program of partisan politics."

Senate Democratic Whip Scott W. Lucas (Ill.) said Barkley was authorized to confer with Tobey and others in an effort to get joint sponsorship of price measures.

Lucas said the seven Democratic leaders who attended the meeting "went all the way for the President's program." Attending besides Barkley and Lucas were Senators Hatch (N. Mex.), O'Mahoney (Wyo.), Hill (Ala.), Green (R. I.) and McMahon (Conn.).

"The President doesn't want to impose price controls," said Lucas. "He wants a shotgun behind the door."

Senator Tobey, meanwhile, announced that his Senate Banking Committee will proceed first with a bill restoring consumer credit control, introduced yesterday by Senator C. Douglass Buck (R., Del.). Tobey said he thought only one day of hearings would be necessary on Buck's bill.

Hearings will follow on bills to be drafted for bank credit and commodity exchange controls, and extended rent controls. Tobey said Banking commtiteemen will sit in "as individuals" on Taft's Joint Economic Committee hearings starting today.

exhausting sessions in Moscow, London, Paris and New York.

He declined to comment on his discussion, but it was assumed the two men talked chiefly of American policy toward the Soviet Union in the London meetings.

There is no prospect of agreement on any major issue on the eve of the Council, which convenes Tuesday, but Secretary Marshall has refused to be pessimistic about the outlook.

$12,000 for Hospital

The Women's Board of the Montgomery County General Hospital has reported an income of over $12,000 for the year ending in October, 1947. The hospital supper fund, they said, has reached $5775, an all-time high.

Six Lady Friends Too Much for Cockatoo

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP).—Old Scratch Patch, a big white cockatoo at the Philadelphia Zoo, got fed up with the attention he has been receiving from six lady cockatoos and decided he had all he could stand.

Last night he pried, pulled and pecked until he snapped open the lock on his cage. Then he walked out, went down to another cage, picked the lock open and moved right in. His new cage mates—six bachelor parrots.

U. S. Assumes Food Program

Cabinet Food Committee, with administration by the Department of Agriculture, it was indicated.

The announcement came in a flurry of reports that a cut had been made in the Government's grain export goal for the year.

The original export goal fixed by the Cabinet Food Committee composed of the Secretaries of Agriculture, Commerce and State, was 470 million bushels of grain (400 million of wheat and 70 million coarse grains.)

This was later changed, upon recommendation of the Harriman Foreign Aid Committee, to 500 million bushels of wheat and 70 million coarse grains.

In order to meet the higher goal President Truman named the Luckman group, and urged a conservation program to save the additional 100 million bushels of wheat involved.

Later the International Emergency Food Council, made up of 39 nations, decided that only 520 million bushels of all grain could be safely expected from this country.

Last week, in appearing before the House subcommittee on foreign aid, Secretary of State Marshall estimated possible exports of grain this year at 520 million bushels (450 million of wheat and 70 million other grains). In arriving at this figure, it was reported, the State Department used the international organization's figures instead of Government figures.

Reduction Report Denied

Marshall's recommendations gave rise to reports that the Government's goal had been reduced 50 million bushels, thus cutting in half the conservation job put upon the Luckman group.

Yesterday the Agriculture Department, in an effort to overcome these reports, stated that the export goal still stands at 570 million bushels.

Secretary Marshall's statement, it said, was merely a conservative estimate given the House committee for statistical use in formulating foreign aid legislation.

Agriculture officials added that the Government will do everything possible to make at least 570 million bushels available for foreign relief.

Government Calls Halt To Its Potato Buying

The Government potato-buying program, which in two years has cost almost 100 million dollars, was stopped last night.

Agriculture Department announced the discontinuance due to the fact that a market now exists for all potatoes in the country "at or above" Government support prices.

Many of the potatoes purchased under the price support program were bought in nearby Maryland and Virginia. More than half the States were covered by the program in its two years' operation.

France Recalls 140,000 Reservists

sulting from the government crisis arising from the resignation last night of Socialist Premier Paul Ramadier after 10 stormy months in office.

The government's recall of the troops brought home to Frenchmen more than anything else the seriousness of the situation. Few Parisians hid their anxiety on reading the large headlines.

In an appeal for workers to return to their jobs, the President said that as a result of strikes "the mothers, wives and children of workers risk cold and hunger during the winter which may be harsh."

"I know that the right to strike is written in the Constitution," he said, "but misery, suffering, hunger are not constitutional."

A large part of 800 Citroen workers went back to their benches this morning under police protection.

About 5000 of the 140,000 striking coal miners in northern France also went back.

At Marseille French army specialists continued to unload the flour cargo of the United States freighter Empire State after the American Consul, Cecil Wayne Gray, had persuaded the crew to furnish power for the ship's winches. The crew had expressed sympathy with striking Marseille longshoremen and at first had objected to the French army's unloading the ship.

France had only enough coal on hand to operate her electric plants and factories for 10 more days, and her railroads and gas plants 30 days.

The big question mark as to whether Blum would be able to form a government hinged on his willingness to give up part of his party's cherished policy of a government-directed economy.

Police Hunt Slayers Of Sheik and Family

Raanana, Palestine, Nov. 20 (AP). British, Arab and Jewish police aided by dogs searched tonight for the tommy-gun slayers of five members of a prominent Arab family in an orange grove this morning.

Police and residents of this Jewish settlement north of Tel Aviv said the shooting was a reprisal by the Stern Gang Jewish underground group, for a military raid 10 days ago on a nearby hideout in which five young Jews were killed and an arms cache found.

A town official said he believed the killers suspected the Arabs of informing on the Stern Gang.

The dead were Shiek Mahmoud Shubaki, 50, his two sons, and two nephews.

Fearing Arab retaliations for the shooting, authorities rushed reinforcements into the area.

Five Jews were wounded, one severely, when unidentified persons machine-gunned a Jewish bus tonight in Holon, suburb of Tel Aviv.

N.Y. Researchers Discover Cause of Intestinal Flu

Albany, Nov. 20 (INS).—New York State Health Commissioner Herman E. Hilleboe announced today that the cause of the disease known as "intestinal flu" has been discovered by research workers in the State Department of Health.

Dr. Hilleboe said recent investigations by Drs. Irving Fordon, Hollis S. Ingraham and Robert F. Korns are credited with the discovery that the illness is caused by a virus which has been demonstrated and identified for the first time.

The experiments show the disease, a gastro-intestinal infection, is not airborne, but is highly infectious and very readily transmitted in water, milk and food.

1947 Rent Control Act Illegal, Judge Rules; Appeal Rushed

By Dillard Stokes
Post Reporter

A Cleveland Federal judge held the 1947 Rent Control Act unconstitutional yesterday, and housing officials rushed an appeal.

"We are going to appeal this case right away, and probably take it straight to the Supreme Court," Housing Expediter Tighe E. Woods told The Washington Post when he heard that his agency had been declared void.

The ruling came from Paul Jones, senior Federal judge of the Northern Ohio District, who said Congress cannot control rents under its war powers because there no longer is a war and the country is, in fact, at peace.

The expediter pointed out that two other Federal judges have held just the other way.

Cloyd W. Miller, who owns an apartment house in Cleveland, gave notice last June that he was going to raise rents 40 to 60 per cent. The Federal housing officials got a court order to stop him, and that order was in force until yesterday.

Judge Jones quashed it, saying Congress lost its power to control rents last December 31, when President Truman declared hostilities at an end.

The present Rent Control Act is to be in force until February 29 next year, and leaders in Congress have been taking it for granted that a new one will be passed before then. But Judge Jones said the present act—with its limited controls—was "the kiss of death to rent regulations" which, however, "hangs on for a few months with an impotent embrace."

Restrictions Denounced

There was a housing shortage before the war, the judge said, and the Government took land to build low cost homes to meet it. But when the land was taken it was paid for.

Rent control provides no payment for the landlords, although it limits their income.

"To impose Federal restrictions on the use of the defendant's property is as effective a taking as to condemn it," Judge Jones commented.

"My considered judgment now is that the (rent control) act is without constitutional validity," the judge concluded.

Taft Agrees on Controls

Senator Taft (R., Ohio) said here that he thought Judge Jones was right about Congress having no right to control rents in peacetime. But Taft did not think the country was at peace, because at least a technical state of war still exists.

The Jorjes ruling was a shock to the housing expediter's staff, who felt their legal troubles were over when they won suits in two other Federal courts this summer.

Federal Judge John Wayne Delehant, sitting at Hastings, Nebr., stopped a landlord who wanted to make his tenants pay their own gas and light bills. That was the same as raising the rent, the judge said, and raising rents was against the law. Judge Delehant brushed away a claim that the law was void.

Denver Ruling Cited

Federal Judge John Foster Symes of Denver ruled squarely on the constitutional issue on September 11. When a landlord asked him to call three Federal judges to hear his claim that the rent control law was void, Judge Symes would not do so. He said:

"It is rather startling to the court, at this late date, to find the question raised as to the constitutionality of these well-known acts passed under the war powers during the recent emergency which—according to my view—is still in existence."

Judge Symes said many things were done during the war to limit the right of the citizens to do as they wished with their lives and property. For instance, he said, the draft certainly limited people's rights, but was a war measure all were bound to obey. In the same way, he added, landlords and tenants must obey the rent-control laws.

Dock st. was tied up last summer by a controversy over unionization of women clerical workers. The jobbers operating in the area closed down when the union refused to deliver fruit and produce to companies which would not agree to the unionization.

The indictment, handed up to District Judge Guy K. Bard, listed what it termed "extortion practices," including requiring the distributors to pay dues of $225 a year and haulers to pay "increased" dues, and compelling the distributors to pay Schlein a $7500 annual salary and reemploy him after they fired him, and requiring merchants to pay money to defendants to obtain merchandise.

Printers' Union Sued On Taft Act Charge

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Nassau Daily Review-Star of Rockville Centre, N. Y., today sought $200,000 in damages from the International Typographical Union (AFL) and the union's Local 915, which called a walkout on November 9 of 33 of the newspaper's Typographical employes.

The suit was filed in U. S. District Court, Brooklyn. It charged that the union had violated the Taft-Hartley law by refusing to negotiate a contract, by demanding a closed shop, and by encouraging a strike.

Chicago Papers Delayed By Union 'Slowdowns'

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP).—Two of Chicago's three afternoon newspapers reported that today's early editions had been delayed 50 to 55 minutes because of composing room "slow-downs."

The Daily News said its first edition was delayed 50 minutes and the Times reported a 55-minute delay. The Herald-American said its edition was out on time.

Negotiations for a new contract between the AFL International Typographical Union and the Chicago Newspaper Publishers Association have been deadlocked since expiration of the old agreement October 21. The union has denied knowledge of any slowdowns.

The Sun and Tribune, both morning newspapers, reported that last night's editions were delayed.

Detroit Newspapers Late Again; Slowdown Charged

Detroit, Nov. 20 (AP).—Early editions of the News and Times, Detroit afternoon newspapers, were delayed for the second consecutive day as work in both composing and mailing rooms fell behind schedule today.

The Detroit News city edition was 1 hour and 15 minutes late and the Times, according to composing room records kept by the Detroit Typographical Union, showed that the first edition left the composing room 3 hours and 22 minutes late.

Norman Applegarth, Detroit Newspaper Publishers' Association executive secretary, attributed the delays to "slowdowns" by members of Detroit Typographical Union No. 18.

His announcement was challenged by Clifford G. Sparkman, Local 18 president, who said "we have had no complaints from the newspaper publishers to indicate" union members were doing other than "a good day's work."

Two Going on Trial In Compensation Cases

Hagerstown, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—Two persons face trial in Criminal Court next week on charges of obtaining money under false pretenses from the State Unemployment Compensation Board, while three others are to be tried on charges of defrauding the Washington County Welfare Board.

Accused in the unemployment compensation cases are Ora M. Smith and Will J. Near. Clyde Hart, Alice Hart and Frances Weller are to be tried on the other charges.

Father Saves Son, Daughter In High Wire Circus Tumble

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

CIRCUS GIRL HURT—Hilda Alzanas, 16, receives a blood transfusion in a Miami Hospital, where she was taken after falling 33 feet to the ground from a high wire during a performance of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus. Her brother, Harold, 31, also fell and was hurt. Her sister, Minnie, stands by Miami, Fla., Nov. 20 (AP).—A dangling, stray rope was blamed today for sending two high-wire performers hurtling 60 feet to the ground last night before 16,000 horrified spectators at the Ringling Brothers and Barnum & Bailey Circus.

The father of the performers, Charles Alzana, 65, who suffered a fractured neck in attempting to break the fall, saw the danger, but his warning came too late.

Harold Alzana, 31, was astride a bicycle with his sister, Hilda, 16, on his shoulders. Another sister, Elsie, 24, and Harold's wife, Minnie, 28, swung from a small trapeze attached to the hubs of the bike.

The warning was heard by Hilda, who tried to tell her brother as his long balancing pole struck the rope. For seconds, the bicycle and its riders swung precariously atop the taut wire.

Then, with a collective gasp from the crowd, Harold fell with Hilda clutching his shoulders. Elsie and Minnie grabbed the bicycle still on the wire.

At his customary position on the ground beneath the wire, the father was crushed beneath their weight. Circus hands climbed up guy ropes and rescued the other two.

Examinations showed Hilda had a fractured vertabra and Harold a possible spine fracture and severe shock. The father, who was believed the worst hurt, was credited with saving their lives by breaking their fall.

The father, only one to see the stray rope as the blinding arc played upon his family, blamed himself for not impressing upon his children the necessity of "breaking loose" in a fall.

"If they hadn't clung together, they might not have been hurt," he kept repeating.

Guilty Plea Entered in Bandy Case

An admitted sex offender was told by a Montgomery County judge yesterday he was "lucky" he wasn't killed by a father for molesting two 7-year-old girls.

Circuit Court Judge Stedman Prescott said this to Hunter Scott Bandy, 32-year-old aeronautical engineer who lives at 4516 Gladwyn dr., Bethesda, Md. The defendant, who resigned his $6000-a-year job at the Navy Department after the incident September 17, was charged with two counts of assault and one of indecent exposure.

Castigating Bandy for "not being man enough" to restrain his impluses, Judge Prescott declared: "You're lucky you haven't been killed. Many fathers, under similar circumstances, would have killed you.

Maybe 'Justified'

"And although the Legislature has not said so," the jurist continued, "I'm not so sure but what a man wouldn't be justified in killing you under these circumstances."

Announcing he would defer imposition of sentence, Judge Prescott explained: "I want to turn it over in my mind."

Police said Bandy induced two 7-year-old girls to take a ride with him, persuading them to perform an indecent act. Bandy was first convicted in Silver Spring police court and sentenced to one year in the Maryland House of Correction.

The conviction was appealed to Circuit Court and Barnard Welsh, attorney for Bandy, yesterday entered a plea of guilty.

Psychiatrist Testifies

A key defense witness, Dr. Stanley H. Eldred, a psychiatrist with Chestnut Lodge Sanitarium, Rockville, testified Bandy became his patient on October 17, the day Bandy resigned from the Navy Department. He predicted Bandy's chances of a cure are "good." A jail sentence would be bad for Bandy, the psychiatrist said.

The defendant admitted having been "investigated" in connection with three exposure cases prior to the September 17 incident but said he was not arrested, adding, "I have been struggling with my affliction for 10 years."

Mrs Bandy, mother of the couple's two children, wept when she took the stand and testified she had been unaware of her husband's acts.

"If the court is agreeable," she said, "we will try to start all over again under the care of a psychiatrist."

When Defense Counsel Welsh pleaded his client "has already been punished by loss of his job and social disgrace," Judge Prescott replied:

Senate Gets $153.62 Crisis

The Senate, in Washington to handle multi-million-dollar policy matters, yesterday veered dangerously close to an acute $153.62 crisis.

That's the total cost of one day's pay for 21 Senate page boys.

All 21 would get one day's pay less for the special session than each of 50 House page boys under legislation introduced in Congress yesterday.

Senator Harlan J. Bushfield (R., S. Dak.), informed about the problem by a reporter, said he would look into it and straighten out any discrepancy in the page boys' pay.

Senator Bushfield introduced the Senate resolution to pay its page boys for the period from November 13 to December 31.

Representative Frank L. Sundstrom (R., N. J.) introduced the House resolution to pay its pages from November 12 to December 31.

Recruiting Award Won By Towson Guardsman

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (AP).—T/Sergt. Nelson E. McGrath, jr., of the 115th Regiment's Headquarters Company at Towson, today was declared the winner of a Maryland National Guard contest for recruiting new men.

Murphy Trial Limit Set

is whether he is the right man to hold the job."

"By limiting this inquiry," he declared, "they are closing their eyes to a great many other important things reflecting on his (Murphy's) ability and capacity to act as fire chief."

"A fair inquiry into his competency to hold office ought to include a review of his conduct for the past few years," he added.

Commissioner Guy Mason replied that the charge, as expressed by Captain Conroy, himself, is "whether Murphy's conduct since he became chief had demoralized the department."

Commissioner's View

"I don't know of any other principle of jurisprudence that would enlarge the thing," he declared. "Nobody in the world wants to keep this thing more judicial than I do.

"Murphy isn't to be treated any differently than a private," he insisted. "He's certainly entitled to the same rights." The special trial board was necessary because Murphy couldn't be tried by his juniors, he said.

Engineer Commissioner Gordon R. Young declined to comment on the matter. Commissioner John Russell Young was at home ill.

The Commissioners designated Austin Canfield, former president of the District Bar Association, as chairman of the special trial board. Other members will be W. P. McCracken, jr., former Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Aeronautics, and Joseph A. Wilner, merchant tailor.

The board was ordered to "receive testimony according to its best judgment, and at the same time the Commissioners suggest that the board follow the procedures practiced before the Police Trial Board."

Home Broker Sues to Get License Back

District Court yesterday was asked to set aside an order of the District Real Estate Commission revoking the license of Mitchell Quick, real estate broker of 2413 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

Quick's license had been ordered revoked on Wednesday after the Commission found him guilty of "fraudulent and dishonest dealings" in the sale of a house to two veterans.

In the action filed yesterday, Michael J. Keane, jr., attorney for Quick, said that the testimony taken at the commission hearing did not support its conclusions.

Quick's license was restored to him yesterday pending final decision by the court, an action that is mandatory when an appeal has been filed.

The commission had found Quick guilty of arranging the sale of the house at 614 19th st. ne., to two veterans for a price higher than the Veterans Administration appraisal.

A VA loan had been granted in the belief that the sale price was $9500. Actually, it was charged, the broker received an additional $250 from the men in a separate transaction.

Man Convicted of Firing At Girl Friend's Father

An 11-man and 1-woman jury in Montgomery County yesterday found Richard C. Nealan, 20-year-old Howard County farmhand, guilty of firing a pistol at the father of his girl friend when the father refused to allow his daughter to accompany him on a date.

The defendant contended he was in Howard County, not in Montgomery County, at the time of the incident. Judge Stedman Prescott deferred imposition of sentence.

Blue Plate Mayonnaise First for FLAVOR

FISH VINAIGRETTE
One of the nice things to do with a small amount of leftover baked or boiled fish is to make this tasty salad. Also makes a fine sandwich filling.
For each cup of leftover cooked fish, use:
4 tablespoons minced celery
2 tablespoons minced green onion tops
1 teaspoon prepared mustard, if desired
3 tablespoons Blue Plate Mayonnaise
1 tablespoon vinegar
Flake fish and remove bones. Add chopped greens to fish. Mix Blue Plate Mayonnaise, vinegar, mustard together, then stir into fish. Chill well. (Blue Plate Mayonnaise is seasoned to be just sweet enough—just tart enough. Made with the finest salad oil, blended vinegars, selected eggs, and spices.)

Gas Bleach Used in Flour Is Scrutinized

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP).—The National Research Council's food and nutrition board has recommended a reduction in the use of a gas for bleaching flour pending investigations to determine whether it causes nervous disorders in humans.

This was disclosed today by the Journal of the American Medical Association, which published medical studies concluding that white bread bleached by the gas can cause epilepsy, running fits and other nervous disorders in some animals.

The Millers' National Federation and the American Institute of Baking both issued statements emphasizing that tests so far have failed to show "any definite scientific evidence" that the gas product has any deleterious effect on humans.

The bleaching and "maturing" agent is nitrogen tricholride, known commercially as "agene."

Medical investigators said that mills expose flour to the gas to bleach and age flour artificially, estimating the product has been used to bleach 90 per cent of the white flour milled in North America and England in the last 25 years.

The Food Nutrition Board's recommendation was made in a letter by Chairman Frank G. Boudreau to Dr. Paul B. Dunbar, Federal commissioner of Foods and Drugs, on November 8.

One article in the A. M. A. journal said experiments on human beings had revealed no neurologic symptoms after subjects had eaten "agenized" flour or "agenized" gluten in amounts and for periods which "unfailingly" produced something resembling human epileptic fits in dogs. Further studies were urged.

[In Washington, the Wilkins-Rogers Milling Co. said it had discontinued the use of agene about a year ago, when more suitable bleaching agents were found. E. J. Quinn, sales manager, explained that agene is most commonly used in bleaching Western flours, from which bread is made. The Wilkins-Rogers firm, he said, grinds a soft wheat flour, used mainly for pastry.—Editor's note.]

Rightist Flees Saxony After Soviet Summons

Frankfurt, Germany, Nov. 20 (AP).—Franz Holler, right wing Liberal Democratic Party member of the Saxon Parliament, reached Frankfurt last night after fleeing the Russian zone.

Holler is the third prominent politician known to have fled the Russian zone for political reasons. Dr. Rudolf Paul, former Minister-President of Thuringia, and Mayor Heinrich Mertens of Jena escaped two months ago. Holler said he fled after being summoned to appear before the Soviet military administration.

$8000 Ahead, Students Quit Roulette Game

Reno, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Two college students decided early today to "knock off for a bit" while they were still $8000 ahead on the $300 they started betting three days ago, using a system they claimed was foolproof to beat the roulette wheel.

At one point in their three-day siege at the tables, the University of Chicago students—Albert Hibbs, Chillicothe, Ohio, and Roy Walford, San Diego—were $13,000 ahead of the game.

When they left Harold's Club this morning, they warned Harold Smith, one of the operators, that they "might be back, but we aren't sure."

Still clean-shaven and neatly dressed after spelling each other in eight-hour shifts for 60 consecutive hours, Hibbs and Walford knocked off at 4:50 a. m. (PST).

"We just thought we better quit for awhile," Hibbs said. "We're both pretty tired."

The break came after No. 9, on which they had been betting continuously on one wheel, failed to come up for 108 consecutive rolls.

They reached their peak yesterday when their total winnings at Harold's and another club—where they previously had played the No. 21—reached $13,000. They stopped when they were $5000 ahead at the first club because the management changed the wheel. There they had been playing No. 21.

Shortly after Walford came on at 4 a. m. the two young men "looked at each other, put their heads together, whispered and picked up their $1065 worth of chips," a watcher said.

They said they haven't counted their winnings exactly but they had won "between $7000 and $9000." Smith confirmed that his club had lost somewhere between $2000 and $4000.

Apparently the two players had reached the "mathematical point" at which they had previously said they would abandon their "system" at least temporarily. Thousands of persons have become penniless attempting to "break the bank" with such "secret systems."

West Point Test For D. C. Youths Set for Jan. 12

A competitive examination to fill the District's sole vacancy at the United States Military Academy next year will be held during the week of January 12, 1948, the Commissioners announced yesterday.

The Board of Examiners of the Board of Education will conduct the examination.

Candidates must be over 17 and actually have lived in the District for at least one year prior to application. They must not have reached their twenty-second birthday before July 1, 1948.

Veterans with one or more years of honorable service are eligible if they haven't reached their twenty-fourth birthday by the entrance date.

Examinations will include a physical test and a competitive mental examination in algebra, including quadratic equations and progression; plane geometry, English grammar, composition and literature, and United States history.

Applications for the examination may be obtained from the secretary of the Board of Commissioners, Room 509, District Building, 14th and E sts. nw. Applications may be filed up to the close of the regular work week Monday, December 29, 1947.

Italian Communist Disorder Slackens

Rome, Nov. 20 (AP).—The week-old drive of Italian leftists to unseat Premier Alcide de Gasperi by strikes and disturbances diminished in violence somewhat today.

An unsettled general strike plagued Bari Province, and other strikers disturbed much of the Apulia, Lucania and Calabria regions of southern Italy, and Rovigo Province in the north.

But the day brought no reports of a fresh wave of riots.

[The International News Service reported that two Communists were shot and killed and six wounded when police were attacked by rioters in the Apulian town of Campisalentina. Seven policemen also were wounded. Another Communist was slain in Gravina in southeastern Italy. Editor's note.]

De Gasperi Unshaken

Meanwhile De Gasperi, apparently unshaken by an upheaval such as has hardly been equaled in Italy since the Fascist uprising in 1922, continued talks with leaders of moderate leftist parties in an apparent attempt to broaden the base of his six-month-old Christian Democrat government.

Afternoon newspapers said a majority of the anti-Communist wing of the divided Socialist Party was favorable to entering the government. One report said the wing's leader, Giuseppe Saragat, might be offered the Vice Premiership.

Attention focused, too, on a meeting of the central committee of the majority wing of the Socialists, which is allied with the Communists in a pact for "joint action." There were reports that Pietro Nenni, titular leader, and Lelio Basso, secretary general, were split over the question of calling a special party congress to reconsider the pact with the Communists. Basso was reported opposed to joining the Communists in a "peoples bloc" for the national elections next March.

Palmiro Togliatti, Communist chieftain, fired a blast at De Gasperi in the Communist newspaper l'Unita, comparing the Christian Democrat leader to Benito Mussolini and charging he was leading Italy back to reaction, if not fascism.

"Everything that is conservative, backward, reactionary, rotten in Italian society responds to him," Togliatti said of De Gasperi.

"I do not wonder that partisans . . . look anxiously for their arms," he added.

Dispatches from Bari said the general strike there was still in effect but going off quietly. Only "essential services" were operating. Food stores were open at restricted hours. Heavy police forces patrolled the city.

Austrians Buy Wildly Before Devaluation

Vienna, Nov. 20 (AP).—Some Vienna stores barred their doors today as Austrians went on a last-minute spending spree to get rid of their schillings before the government's devaluation of the schilling goes into effect.

The manager of Kaufhaus Gergross, largest department store in Vienna, said his shelves would be stripped within 48 hours.

"I can't afford to buy anything at the prices wholesalers are now asking and I can't afford not to sell at the prices people are offering," he said.

The new currency reform bill, calling for a 66 per cent devaluation of all outstanding schillings, was passed by Parliament last night, 161 to 4, as an act against black marketing. (The commercial exchange rate has been 9.86 to the dollar, which made the schilling worth roughly 10 cents.)

The A. Hermansy ladies' ready-to-wear store closed because it could not handle the hundreds of women who came to buy whatever they could.

Allied observers were outspokenly critical of the bill, but said no request had been submitted to the Allied Council for a special session. Should the council consider the measure, unanimous consent of all four occupying powers would be needed before the bill could become effective immediately.

Should no special session be called, the bill will become effective 31 days after its submission through normal channels if any one of the four allies approves it. Austrian Communists have opposed the bill.

Railroads Restrict Freight to Canada

The Association of American Railroads yesterday placed an embargo on most freight shipments destined for Canada.

The embargo was issued after the Canadian government announced last Monday that it was restricting imports to conserve its dollars. The Canadian restrictions apply primarily to consumer goods and luxury items.

Police Precincts Get New Accounting System

The Commissioners yesterday approved a new accounting method for money and property collected in District police stations.

As recommended by a four-man committee named to study the system, the plan covers funds paid for support of wives and minor children, personal property held for persons under arrest, and property received by police as lost, stolen or abandoned.

The study followed disclosure September 26 of a one-time shortage of $145 in one account and about $700 in accounts of three policemen's associations at the Fourth Precinct. Pvt. Oscar L. Fisher, who committed suicide September 18, was in charge of the funds.

Under the new system, protective receipts in triplicate will be used in cash transactions.

Commanding officers of precincts, bureaus and divisions will be responsible under the property accounting system.

Recommendations for the new procedures were made by Inspector Clement P. Cox, chief clerk and property clerk of the department; Auditor A. R. Pilkerton, Corporation Counsel Vernon E. West, and Bernard A. Harrison, chief field examiner for the auditor's office.

Travel Talk to Have First Showing in Luray

Luray, Va., Nov. 20.—"Visiting Virginia," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer travel talk, will have its world premier at the Page theater in Luray on December 4.

The film will include scenes taken inside the Luray caverns, and shots from Richmond, Roanoke, and Danville.

Slaying Laid to Cabbie

Norfolk, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—Detective Leon Nowitzky said today Alonzo L. Meeks, 24, Portsmouth, Va., taxi driver, has been charged with the slaying of a Navy enlisted man, Dewitt Harris Blackemore, 33, shipfitter 2d class, here last night. Meeks will be given a police court hearing tomorrow.

Farmer Found Suicide In Comfortable Coffin

Stonington, Conn., Nov. 20 (AP).—George Randall, 67-year-old bachelor farmer, was found dead today in a coffin he himself had built, the victim, police said, of a long and carefully planned suicide.

After lying in the coffin, which was equipped with a blanket and a pillow, Randall shot himself with a .22-caliber pistol, Medical Examiner Roger N. Fowler said. One of three notes told about Randall's failing health.

Molten Salt Kills 1, Hurts 3

Tydings Urges U. S. To Aid Natural Allies

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—Senator Tyding (D., Md.) declared last night "we must make strong our natural allies in Europe" so that they would be on our side in event of a third world war.

Speaking at a meeting of the combined civic clubs of Annapolis, Tydings told of his recent trip to Europe, and the need he found for aid.

Myer Resigns As Housing Commissioner

Dillon S. Myer, Public Housing commissioner, yesterday announced his resignation to "take another post in Government" at the request of President Truman.

Myer

Meyr, who made his announcement at New York, did not indicate who his successor would be, adding that the White House would properly be the source of such information. A spokesman for the Public Housing Administration here said Myer was expected to remain until his successor was appointed.

Meanwhile, the Senate Banking Committee unanimously agreed to sponsor legislation for a billion dollar increase in the lending authority of the Federal Housing Administration. Senator McCarthy (R., Wisc.), a member of the committee, said this would enable the FHA, which has exhausted its present authorization, to resume insuring loans.

McCarthy said the additional authority would be rushed through the special session of Congress. House members, he added, have agreed.

Hoffman Hits Editorial on Congressmen

Representative Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) yesterday protested to the House against publication of a Washington Star editorial entitled "Disloyal Congressmen."

The editorial, printed last month, grew out of an investigation by Hoffman's Committee on Expenditures in the executive departments into reports that names of Congressmen were included in a Civil Service "leads" file.

While citing the constitutional guarantees of a free press, Hoffman cautioned that a right given by the people through a constitutional provision can be taken away by the people through a constitutional amendment.

National Sport

Hoffman declared that "in recent years it has become what might be termed a national sport for certain publications, editors and radio commentators to belittle the Congress as a whole, to ridicule vilify and smear individual members of Congress with whose actions and views the publisher, editor or commentator was not in accord."

He said that the practice had at times become "so widespread, so false, so absurd" that it had helped those it sought to defeat.

John M. Cline, who wrote the editorial and the caption, previously had testifed before the expenditures committee he did not think the editorial gave the impression. Ben McKelway, editor of the Star, also testified at the time. Both stressed that they appeared voluntarily.

Confidence in Congress

Asked whether he had any comment on yesterday's speech by Hoffman, McKelway said:

"The confidence of the Washington Evening Star in the Congress of the United States remains unshaken, in spite of Mr. Hoffman."

Hoffman said later that in his floor speech he had inadvertently referred to The Washington Post when he meant the Star. He added, however, that he will talk to the House about The Washington Post next week.

Famed Flier's Son Sees Letter to West Point

Chester, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP).—Seven-year-old Colin P. Kelly 3d today got his first glimpse of the letter which probably will send him to the United States Military Academy in 1956.

The boy, son of an heroic American flier killed early in World War II saw the letter aboard the Freedom Train which visited Chester.

The letter was written by Franklin D. Roosevelt on December 17, 1941, urging Congress to appoint the youngster—then a year old—to West Point in 1956.

The boy lives with his mother, now Mrs. J. Watson Pedlow of Chester.

Truck Driver Confesses Slaying Second Woman

Indianapolis, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Robert A. Watts, city truck driver, who admitted on Tuesday that he killed Mrs. Mary Lois Burney with a shotgun, today confessed that he also stabbed and killed Mrs. Mabel Merrifield, Indiana clubwoman, on Halloween.

Watts was arrested last Wednesday on a complaint by a third Indianapolis woman

Taylor's Transcontinental Horses Put Up for Sale

Do you know anyone who wants to make a cross country crusade on horseback in the interest of peace? Senator Glen Taylor (D., Idaho), who recently completed such a mission, is trying to sell his only slightly used crusade paraphernalia.

Today and tomorrow The Washington Post want ads will include the following:

FOR SALE
Senator Taylor's horses, trailer and complete equipment used in recent peace tour. Office of Senator Taylor, NA. 3130.

The Senator's brother-in-law, Harold Pike, who accompanied him on the trip, said the lot included a half-ton streamlined aluminum trailer containing two horse stalls and a saddle compartment; a Western type saddle with stirrup spangles and bridle; two racing type horse blankets; water buckets and feed bags.

The two horses are 4½ years old and 14.2 hands high. One is chestnut sorrel named Nugget and the other a sorrel, believed to be a jumper, called Chuck. They are as gentle and well-mannered as peace envoys should be, according to Pike.

President to Hold Press Parley Early

1800 Gather in Havana For U. N. Trade Parley

Havana, Cuba, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Nearly 1800 delegates and aides representing 53 nations and several world organizations such as the International Bank gathered here today for the United Nations Conference on Trade and Employment, opening at 4 p. m. tomorrow.

The largest single group of delegates—over 500 representing 20 nations—arrived this morning on a charter trip of the SS Florida from Miami, where they had converged by train from Washington, Lake Success and elsewhere.

Lynchburg Pastor Named Calif. Bishop

Los Angeles, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Rev. Robert A. Magill of St. John's Episcopal Church, Lynchburg, Va., was elected Bishop of the Los Angeles diocese yesterday by a special convention of clerical and lay delegates.

Magill

His selection came on the fourth ballot.

On the final ballot, Dr. Magill received 65 clerical and 159 lay votes, to 57 clerical and 121 lay votes for the Rev. John Seville Higgins of Minneapolis.

The bishop-elect is 51, is married and the father of two children. He was educated in the Philadelphia public schools, at William and Mary College and the Virginia Theological Seminary. He was ordained a deacon in 1921, and a priest the following year.

From 1921 to 1926 he was a missionary to China, where he was in charge of the American Church Mission at Yang Chow. He was rector at Gloucester, Va., from 1926 to 1931, and since that time has been in charge of the Lynchburg church.

He is a member of the National Council of the Episcopal Church and formerly was an officer of that body.

If Dr. Magill accepts the office, he will succeed Bishop W. Bertrand Stevens, who died last August, and will become the third head of the Los Angeles diocese of the Episcopal Church.

In Special Session

26 Indicted In Gaming By Md. Jury

Towson, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—Bench warrants were issued today for the arrest of 26 persons indicted by the Baltimore County grand jury on charges of gambling.

The indictments were returned yesterday by the jury, which was called into special session by State's Attorney John Grayson Turnbull. Particulars of the indictments were not disclosed until issuance of the warrants.

The indictments were based on investigation by police on special assignment to the State's attorney office for the past month.

Among those indicted was Patrolman Howard Carter of Essex, on a charge of conspiring to bribe another patrolman.

Of the 26 persons indicted for gambling, 14 were accused of operating pinball machines, 10 of accepting bets on horse races and 2 with taking bets on a dog race.

Phoned Death Threat Revealed by Muth

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (AP).— William J. Muth, vice president of the Baltimore City Council, disclosed today he received a telephone death threat from a man who asserted pinball machine operators "are not going to stand" for a large increase in their license fees as proposed by Muth.

Muth said the anonymous caller warned him that "if you don't watch your step, you'll be found some morning lying alongside the railroad tracks."

Muth proposed some days ago the $10 license fee per pinball machine be increased to $150 an the current $25 tax on "console type" machines be increased to $250.

Neighbors Sue Fulton Lewis Over Roadway Through Estate

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—An attempt by neighbors to compel Radio Commentator Fulton Lewis, jr., to allow them to use a road on his Scotch Neck estate in St. Marys County reached the Court of Appeals today.

Mr. and Mrs. Mangum Weeks appealed a ruling of St. Marys County Court, prohibiting them from "trespassing" upon property owned by Mr. and Mrs. Lewis.

Involved in the controversy is a "new road" running through the Lewis land. The Weeks contend that if they cannot use the route, they will be "denied free access to all their lower land."

They said an "old road" running through the center of the peninsula and serving as a property boundary line became impassable 11 years ago.

In their reply, attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. Lewis said the Weeks' had failed to maintain the old road. If an "easement" to the new thoroughfare is granted, they "might as well claim title" to any of the Lewis property "if the ravages of time encouraged by appellants' neglect should continue taking toll of appellants' land."

2 Maryland Salvers Get $3000 Award

By The Associated Press

Two Marylanders who helped salvage a German freighter off the coast of Brazil six years ago will receive $300 each for their efforts.

They were among the 66 officers and men of the USS Omaha who made up a boarding party that salvaged a ship which its German crew had tried to sink.

Capt. (then Lieut.) George Kennedy Carmichael of Annapolis led the boarding party. The other Marylander is George Conrad Lein of Raspeburg, Baltimore County.

The party will split up prize money of $322,211. Another $124,211 will be divided among the 51 officers and 829 men of the Omaha and of the destroyer Somers who took part in the capture of the Nazi vessel.

The Navy said the German freighter was stopped by the United States warships. The crew deserted after setting time bombs. The boarding party clambered aboard the sinking ship, repaired the damage and took it to Puerto Rico.

Friedlander Convicted on Gaming Count

After six hours of deliberation a District Court jury yesterday found Ellis Friedlander, 30, of 5000 Benning rd. se., innocent of charges of promoting a lottery. The defendant, however, was found guilty of possession of numbers slips.

Friedlander, who faces a maximum sentence of six months and $500 fine, was arrested after the father of a mon who had lost $4400 to Friedlander in numbers bets, had demanded the return of the money. During the trial a move on the part of Defense Attorney Charles E. Ford to play a dictaphone recording of a telephone conversation between the father, Garney Shapiro, and Friedlander was unsuccessful.

Prosecutor Grace Stiles blocked the move by citing a Supreme Court ruling against evidence obtained by tapping wires.

Planes Beating Low Ceilings

Aircraft may be landing at National Airport with ceilings as low as 200 feet within the next year, it was indicated here yesterday.

Planes have been landing here on instruments with ceilings as low as 300 feet, and with three-quarter mile visibility for the last month, the Civil Aeronautics Administration disclosed.

CAA requires use of the 300-foot, three-quarter-mile minimum six months before approval is given for lowered conditions.

At the same time, CAA announced that 11 scheduled airlines are equipped and will use instrument landings this winter in 41 cities under the new lowered minimums approved by CAA. Until minimums were revised, planes had to use alternate airports if ceilings were less than 400 feet and visibility less than 1 mile.

T. P. Wright, Civil Aeronautics administrator announced the 11 airlines as: American, Braniff, Chicago & Southern, Continental, Delta, Eastern, National Northeast, Pan American, Southwest Airways and United.

Braniff has been making landings under 200-foot ceilings and half-mile visibility for some time in the Southwest. Wright quoted Braniff officials as saying its pilots "took to instrument landings like ducks to water."

National Airport is equipped with both ILS (instrument landing system) which brings the aircraft in on a radio beams and GCA (ground control approach), in which radar and a ground observer are utilized to "talk" the pilot into his approach.

Inquest Probes Death Of Man Gone 3 Years

Bland, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—The death of a man identified as Samuel J. Breeding, Grundy salesman who disappeared three years ago, will be investigated at an inquest here tomorrow afternoon.

A rifle and glasses believed to have belonged to Breeding were found near the skeleton which recently was discovered by hunters.

Breeding, 38, at the time of his disappearance in September, 1944, was believed to have gone hunting. A search of several days made at that time was futile.

Firm Reveals New Chemical To Kill Bugs

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP).—A new insect killer, described as possibly an overall single weapon for man in his battle against food destroying pests, was announced today by the American Cyanamid Co.

This new insecticide was said to be from five to 25 times more powerful than DDT and is known as Thiophos 3422. It is an organic phosphorous compound.

Scientists of the company said that the new killer would be available for the 1948 crops, but for the present will not be recommended for use in the home.

In tests so far, the insecticide kills such pests as the European red mite and other insects

Anti-Lynching Bill Offered by Keating

Anti-lynch legislation was introduced yesterday by Representative Keating (R., N. Y.).

Keating said the bill provides a fine of $10,000 or imprisonment not exceeding 20 years, or both, upon conviction of participating in a lynching.

It also prescribes a fine of $5000 or imprisonment up to five years, or both, for any official found guilty of having "wilfully" failed to protect a person in his custody from lynching or to "apprehend or prosecute the members of a lynch mob."

Delinquent's Story Opens Radio Series

Case Study From St. Elizabeths Files One of Many Compiled by Dr. Karpman

The first of a series of radio programs based on juvenile delinquent case histories compiled by Dr. Benjamin Karpman, chief psychoanalyst at St. Elizabeths Hospital, was broadcast Wednesday night by Station WRC.

The series, entitled "Lost Sheep," will feature case studies of criminals who have been transferred to St. Elizabeths from Federal penitentiaries.

Dr. Karpman has compiled a large file in more than a quarter of a century of work on mental cases at the hospital.

The story dealt with a criminal who was called "Leo Vogel" . . . a desperate and dangerous felon who was sent to St. Elizabeths from a Federal penitentiary.

It explained that "Vogel" was transferred to St. Elizabeths after staging a hunger strike in the penitentiary.

At the hospital, the criminal snarls annoyance when Dr. Karpman tries to help him by learning his background, the facts of his childhood.

But the 43-year-old "Vogel" has a soft spot, his only child, a son. Dr. Karpman finally wins his confidence with a small sympathetic act, the purchase of a birthday card for the son.

"Leo Vogel" tells the story of his childhood to Dr. Karpman.

"I wasn't such a bad kid, at that . . ." he muses.

He remembers that his parents quarreled continuously . . . "mostly over money."

"Oh, we had plenty of money . . . but my mother had inherited it. She never let my father forget it."

"Leo" had a sister. The mother favored her. The father was away from home on business too often during the formative years of the boy's life to prevent the warp left by the mother's unwise and hostile supervision.

Reaction Is Common

Dr. Karpman explains that "Leo Vogel" as a child showed a fairly common emotional reaction among people who later become criminals, that of parent hatred.

The aggressiveness and hostility he felt toward his mother projected itself later on into a hostility against all authority.

He stole, small things at first, then he tried shoplifting. And one day he was caught. His mother told the juvenile judge that "Leo" steals "all the time . . . I can't control him . . ."

"I do not feel," says the judge, "that the boy is entirely at fault and that somewhere, somehow, you must have failed him a great deal. Now you must face the problem of getting him back on the right track."

The mother solved the problem by having her son committed to the State Industrial School as an incorrigible.

Tried to Rob Store

In the industrial school, "Leo" was case hardened by the tougher boys. When he came out he tried to rob a jewelry store. He was caught and sentenced to serve two years in the reformatory. A life of crime followed.

Dr. Karpman, senior psychiatrist at St. Elizabeths Hospital, sums up the case of "Leo Vogel" as: ". . . the end product of maternal rejection, frustration, bitterness, emotional conflicts and insecurity. The pyramiding of adverse childhood influences has resulted in a mature, hardened criminal."

"These influences," says Dr. Karpman, "could easily have been a force for good in the boy for he had a strong personality, energy and a desire to make good with the group.

Hostility Grew

Dr. Karpman says "this hostility" of "Leo Vogel" growing out of "refused love" was abundantly fed in the first reformatory. It grew stronger when after his release his old friends refused to associate with him.

"Its first outlet," says Dr. Karpman, "was in positive aggression when he robbed his first jewelry store . . . and to cap the climax his ego was fed the subtle poison of criminal adulation when, in the second reformatory, he found himself looked on as an expert thief.

"The frustration had gone full circle . . . and only tragedy remained to be fulfilled."

Next Wednesday at 11:30 p. m., Dr. Karpman and WRC will present another juvenile delinquent case.

Mother Gets 2 Years In Son's Asphyxiation

Leconia, N. H., Nov. 20 (AP).—Mrs. Evelyn Cote, 25, whose 3-year-old son died of asphyxiation after she gave him a tablespoon of black pepper "for punishment," was convicted tonight by a jury of first degree manslaughter and was sentenced to two to three years.

Superior Judge William Grimes ordered a 30-day stay of sentence pending an appeal. Three-year-old William Burns, a son by Mrs. Cote's first marriage, died September 24.

Largest Mirror Ready to Install At Observatory

Palomar Mountain, Calif., Nov. 20 (AP).—A huge telescopic mirror reached Palomar Observatory today after a 160-mile journey by trailer through heavy traffic and over rain-soaked mountain roads.

With the mirror, scientists hope to see one billion light years out into space. It will be bolted into place at the base of Palomar's 500-ton telescope. Rain and hail storms added hazards to today's 5-mile-an-hour climb up a mountainside.

The mirror was forged in Corning, N. Y., in 1935 and hauled West by rail a year later to California Institute of Technology's optical laboratory where it was polished for six years. Work was halted during the war.

The mirror, largest ever cast, will enable scientists to double the range of existing telescopes.

Common Law Rights Upheld For Woman

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—The fact that a couple lived together without being married does not cancel the woman's interest in the house they occupied, the Maryland Court of Appeals ruled today.

The court affirmed a lower court order overruling objections of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander J. Maskell to a suit by Mrs. Bertha Elizabeth Hill for a share of the proceeds in the sale of a house in Kenwood.

Mrs. Hill, formerly Miss Bertha Kidd, charged that she and Maskell lived as man and wife for a period between 1935 and 1940. They assumed the names "Mr. and Mrs. Harry A. Hill." In August 1937, they acquired title to the Kenwood property.

At the time Maskell was married, the suit contended, but had separated from his wife.

After Maskell and Miss Kidd broke up, the suit added, she married William Hill.

Last October she filed suit claiming Maskell's subsequent deals with the property were illegal.

"Neither law nor morals would be vindicated by permitting a man to steal his former mistress's property by forgery perpetrated after all personal or property transactions between them had come to an end," Judge Collins wrote in the Court of Appeals opinion.

Mrs. Hill charged that Maskell forged her name to a deed in 1941, transferring the property to him under his real name.

If Mrs. Hill's charges are proved in lower court proceedings, the Appeals bench ruled that Mr. and Mrs. Maskell would share an equal interest in the property with Mrs. Hill.

Officer Gets 5 Years

Trieste, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Maj. Edward Robinson, of Philadelphia, was found guilty tonight of corruption in Venezia Giulia's million-dollar public works scandal and was sentenced to five years at hard labor, a fine of $3000 and dishonorable discharge from the Army.

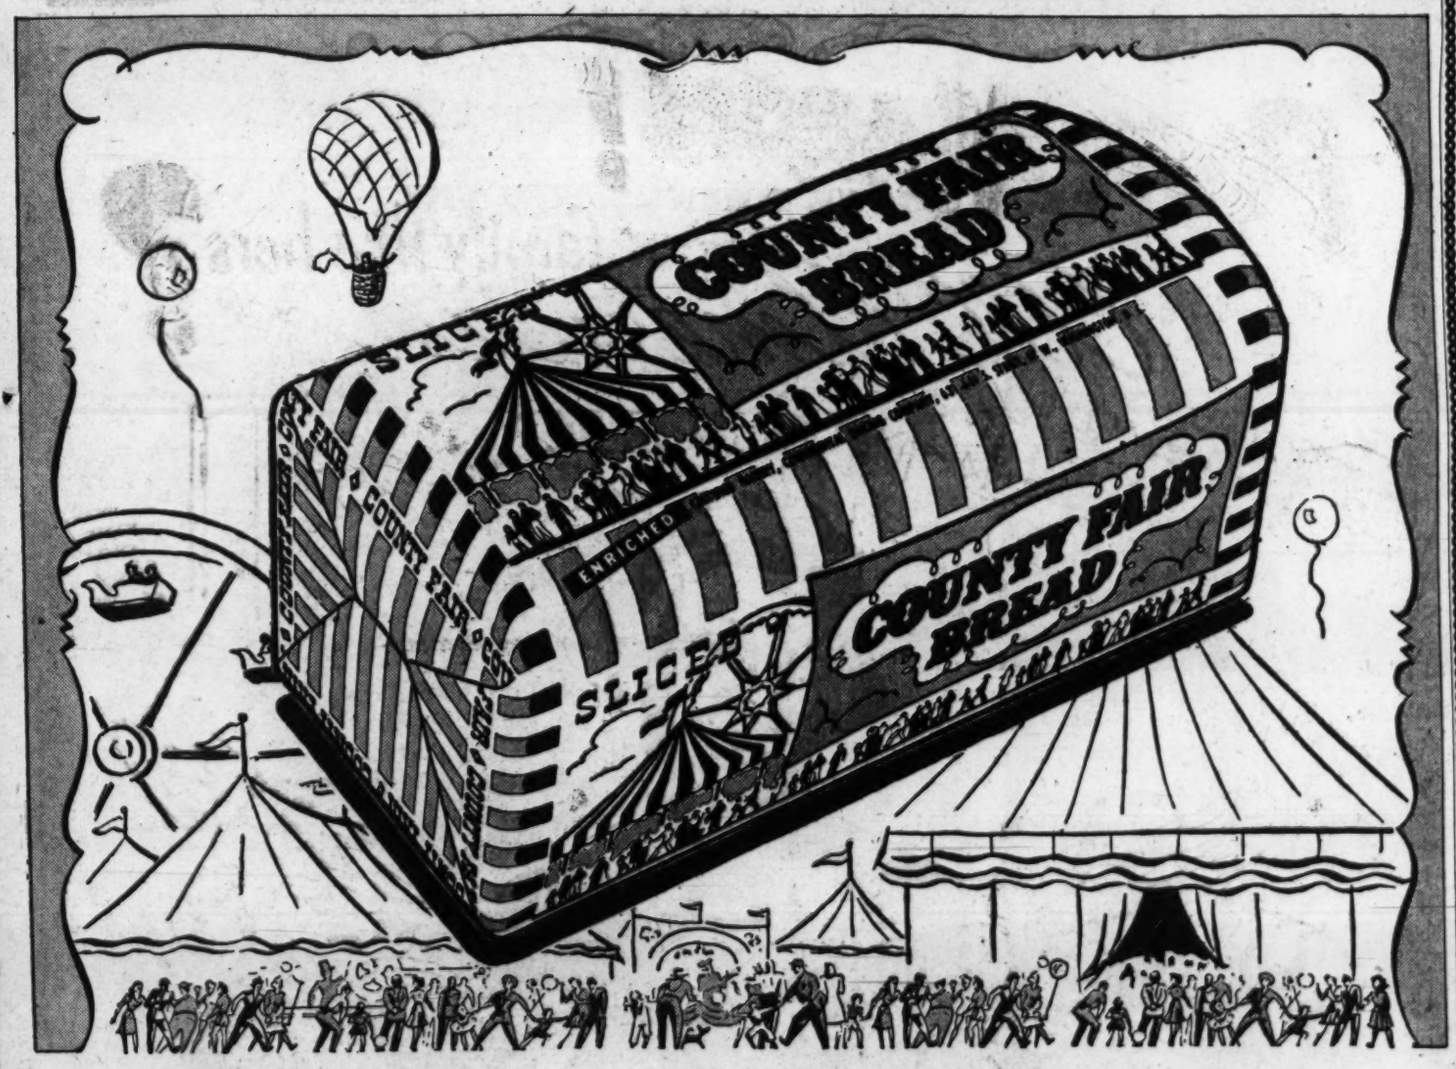
THE SAUSAGE WITH THE Just-right Seasoning!



MISS EMILY HIGGINS, Silver Spring School Teacher and P.T.A. Member, says: "I took one taste of County Fair Bread and decided to serve it regularly, because its flavor is just perfect! Now I know why I've read such high praise of Mrs. Nellie Procter Hewitt's baking skill!"

MISS MARY A. BURNHAM, well-known home economist and writer, says: "I'm telling all my friends I changed to County Fair Bread, because I think they should try it right away. Mrs. Nellie Procter Hewitt must really know what she's doing, for County Fair Bread is delicious!"

All over town Washington women are switching to COUNTY FAIR BREAD

Made Under the Supervision of the Famous First Baker to the Nation's Great—NELLIE PROCTER HEWITT, the Baking Champ From Silver Spring

County Fair Bread is as different as a country lane from a city alley. As different as lilacs fresh-washed by warm rain from the paper kind in the 10¢ store.

Because County Fair Bread is made the way a woman who really knows how to bake bread says to bake it. That's Nellie Procter Hewitt—the baking champ from Silver Spring.

Yes, smells better and tastes better. Like a Saturday morning baking on the farm.

And say—this new County Fair Bread is enriched with Vitamins and Minerals for better health.

County Fair Bread is selling like farm eggs. So get your grocer to save a loaf for you.

So come on, folks, for better eating, get County Fair Bread. Costs no more—so no reason not to have it.

Hurry! Hurry! Hurry! Get County Fair Bread at your grocer's today. It's fresh as a daisy.

French, British People Have Mistaken Idea Of U. S. Motives in Plan for Aiding Europe

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 20.—The British and French people have certain mistaken notions about the motives of the American people in backing the Marshall Plan for aid to Europe.

In France public opinion surveys have found that nearly half the voters think the United States proposed the Marshall Plan because of a need for foreign markets to head off a depression.

In England, polls have found that a majority of people think the United States will want to have a say in running Britain's affairs before we will help the British further.

Both these conceptions are far out of line with what is actually in the minds of the American people as they contemplate further aid to the needy European countries.

1. On the basis of the total adult population only two fifths of Americans believe we should have a say in Britain affairs.

2. Americans attach virtually no significance to foreign markets as a way of preventing a possible business collapse here.

These attitudes are shown in polls conducted from coast-to-coast by the Institute. The theory that we want to interfere in Britain's affairs and perhaps tell her what she should do was tested in the following question put to American voters:

If we lend England and other nations food or money, do you think we should insist on having something to say about the way they run their own affairs, or should we stay out of England's and other countries' affairs?

Have a say	41%
Stay out	48
No opinion	11

* * *

The average Frenchman's idea that we want foreign trade to avoid a depression was tested here in the following question:

What would you say are the best ways to avoid another business depression?

The replies show the significant fact that only 1 per cent of American voters say that the way to avoid another depression is to build up exports abroad or to lend Europe money so that she can buy from us.

The principal suggestions made by the public to avoid depressions are (1) to keep prices down, (2) to resort to Government controls over prices and wages, and (3) to stimulate more production of goods.

The French and British attitudes were measured in recent surveys by Gallup Poll affiliates in those countries, as follows:

FRANCE

In your opinion, is the Marshall Plan dictated by the desire of America to intervene in the internal affairs of Europe or by a sincere desire to aid Europe to recover, or by the need to find foreign markets to avoid an economic crisis in the United States?

Need for foreign markets	47%
Sincere desire to aid	18
Desire to intervene	15
Combination of reasons	3
No opinion	17

ENGLAND

Do you think it is likely, or or unlikely, that America will want a say in running Britain's affairs before she will help us further?

Likely	57%
Unlikely	21
Don't know	22

Government Study Commission Picks Group Chairmen

By the United Press

Former President Herbert Hoover, chairman of a 12-member commission studying the organization of the Federal Government, announced yesterday that leaders have been assigned to study four phases of Federal activities.

He was elected chairman of the presidential commission at its first meeting on September 29. The group is required to submit in January, 1949, recommendations for simplifying and promoting economy in the Government

John W. Hanes, former Undersecretary of the Treasury, has been chosen by the commission to study fiscal, budgetary and accounting methods and their control. Robert Moses, of the New York City planning commission, was assigned to public works.

Franklin D'Olier, chairman of the Prudential Insurance Co., Newark, N. J., will investigate veterans affairs, and Hoover will study the Presidency and its relation to other executive departments.

B-29 to Drop 12 42,000-Lb. Bombs In California

The Air Force announced yesterday that 12 "dummy" 42,000-pound bombs, believed to be the world's largest, will be dropped from a B-29 Superfortress in the California desert in about two weeks.

The experiment is intended to test the release devices and other mechanics of handling the bombs, an Air Force spokesman said.

A B-29 especially equipped to carry the bombs will take off with them from Muroc, Calif.

In a later experiment, ordnance experts will bury loaded models of the bomb and detonate them. The bombs will be planted at a depth comparable to what they would reach if dropped from a high plane.

Pay Hike Favored for Attendants at Gallinger

A plan to raise the pay of attendants in Gallinger Hospital's psychiatric wards was approved yesterday by the Commissioners.

Commissioner Guy Mason said the reclassification of attendants would put them on a level with persons doing similar work at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

"We hope the Civil Service Commission will approve it," he said. "The higher rates, we hope, will attract people whom we need to raise the standards at Gallinger."

Dr. Alvin Sweeney, Gallinger superintendent, said the plan, if approved, would raise $2100 a year attendants to between $2300 and $2600 a year. He said it would affect the positions of about 10 attendants.

Health Officer George C. Ruhland said, "That's good. I think it's splendid and I certainly appreciate it."

Mason said a plan to raise classifications of other groups including psychiatrists also was being considered.

Other Moves Studied

The following moves are under study, he said:

1. Getting treatment rooms in shape so that the practice of manacling patients may be discontinued.

2. Increasing salaries to get additional psychiatrists.

3. Studying administrative methods to see what improvements can be made.

4. Checking with budget officer to see if the District has any money available for painting the wards.

Mason said he also was trying to include in the fiscal 1949 budget funds for planning a new psychiatric building at Gallinger.

Retail Prices Of Food Jump 2.9% in Month

Retail food prices jumped an average of 2.9 per cent in the District betewen August 15 and September 15, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported yesterday.

The report was based on a survey of the average prices of 50 foods and showed a 12.9 per cent rise in eggs; 5.7 per cent in dairy products; 4.2 per cent in meats, poultry and fish; 3.1 per cent, beverages; 2.1 per cent, sugar and sweets; 1.9 per cent, dried fruits and vegetables, and 1.3 per cent in cereals and baked products.

The bureau reported that meats, poultry and fish increased in price for the fourth consecutive month with pork products up 7 per cent; beef and veal, over 3 per cent; lamb, over 5 per cent, and chicken, 7 per cent.

The decline in the price of fruits and vegetables, fats and oils, was not sufficient to offset the price jump in other foods. Fruits and vegetables moved downward 1 per cent as a result of a drop in the prices of fresh and canned foods.

Low prices in cabbage, potatoes, apples and canned tomatoes overcame price boosts in fresh green beans, carrots, lettuce and canned peas.

Fat and oily prices dropped 3.2 per cent although higher lard prices were recorded. Coffee jumped 3 per cent and sugar 2 per cent, BLS said.

A report on selected foods taken from the monthly survey showed substantial changes on several individual items. Fresh carrots jumped 29.4 per cent; lettuce, 19.6 per cent and butter, 15.6 per cent.

Red Minister Orders Hungary Party Dissolved

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 30 (U.P.).—Communist Minister of the Interior Laszlo Rajk today issued orders for dissolution of the Hungarian Independence Party whose former leader, Zoltan Pfeiffer, fled to the United States. The order included confiscation of party property.

The speaker of the House announced that the prosecutor's office had demanded suspension of immunity for four Pfeiffer party deputies linked to the agency allegedly formed to spread false news. Ten other party members were arrested.

Socialist Leader Charles Peyer was believed to have fled the country. The prosecutor had asked that his parliamentary immunity be lifted so that he might be seized and charged with being linked with nine persons recently arrested for alleged "espionage" for a foreign power.

Tobacco Export Hike Planned

By The Associated Press

Tobacco leaders in industry and Government formulated plans yesterday to increase future yearly tobacco exports 25 million pounds over prewar averages of about 340 million pounds annually.

Exports last year totaled 650 million pounds, including 550 million of flue-cured. Estimates are that this year's exports will be about 500 million.

J. B. Hutson, president of Tobacco Associates, Inc., an organization of growers, dealers and warehousemen formed to boost exports, told reporters after an all-day conference of Federal officials and tobacco men:

"It's imperative that some arrangement be made that tobacco continue to flow to western Europe, where three fourths of American tobacco exports have gone previously."

Hutson, formerly Undersecretary of Agriculture, added "no new machinery is needed to provide tobacco markets in the 16 countries for which foreign aid is proposed under the Marshall Plan."

Inclusion of tobacco in products supplied Europe under any aid program such as the Marshall Plan was considered.

Officials of Departments of the Army, Agriculture, State and Commerce, the Tariff Commission and the Export-Import Bank conferred with growers, warehousemen and dealers who came from North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Indiana, West Virginia, Ohio and Florida.

Today the conference will continue at the Capitol, where about 100 members of Congress from the tobacco States will join the tobacco men.

The industry representatives approved resolutions calling for changes in the law so as to allow the Export-Import Bank to facilitate tobacco exports, a program to furnish tobacco for European requirements under recovery programs, and to put American tobacco into German factories.

Reds Use Fronts To Induct Spies, Legion Is Told

By the United Press

The American Legion's "counter-subversive seminar" was told yesterday that Communist front organizations are induction centers "for the recruiting of Kremlin spies."

The statement was made by Dr. J. B. Matthews, former chief investigator for the Dies Committee which preceded the present House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Matthews told 75 legion officials, gathered here from all parts of the country to receive training in methods of exposing and counteracting communism, that many "gullible" persons are inclined to laugh off Communist front groups.

"The cold fact is that the front organizations are used, among other things, for the recruiting of Kremlin spies," he said. "Innocence is no longer to be cited as a valid excuse for giving aid and comfort to that foreign government which alone menaces the peace of the world."

Poolesville High School Fair Successful With 1000 Entries

A real old-fashioned "Community Fair" with all the trimmings was staged yesterday at the Poolesville (Md.) High School and hundreds of Poolesville residents and farmers flocked to the affair.

Maurice Ward, agriculture instructor at the school, said there were more than 1000 entries in the various classes which included prize fruit and vegetable entries as well as household products.

Interest centered in the poultry class, Ward said, and the grand prize for the best poultry display went to Alfred Poole of Poolesville.

Prizes for the best corn were won by Edgar Grubb, William Allnutt and Wayne Gregger, all of Poolesville.

Grand champion of the pet show was a coach dog owned by Jack Rutter of Poloesville, and Johnny Ricketts won an award to the boy winning most points in the show.

The "fair" was sponsored by the Future Farmers of America and the Future Homemakers of America.

GOP Held Set To Hit Truman Aid Program

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (AP).—Democrat Gael Sullivan declared tonight that President Truman's European aid and anti-inflation program faces "angry, vicious, partisan opposition" from Republicans in Congress.

The executive director of the Democratic National Committee spoke before the United Democratic Women's Clubs of Maryland.

Much of the program which Mr. Truman presented to Congress last Monday was made necessary by "stupid and partisan Republican legislation," Sullivan said.

He singled out Senator Taft (R., Ohio) as the "generalissimo" who "can come mighty close to voting the Republican Congress in goose step," he added:

"Senator Taft is an interesting anachronism, a man ideally suited to be a Senator in the days of gas lights and high button shoes, but not quite able to cope with the problems of the 1940's."

He predicted that the selection of Taft as the Republican presidential nominee is "almost a foregone conclusion unless the Republican Party decides to repudiate its own record in Congress and reveal itself as bankrupt of principle or policy."

Sullivan told the women's clubs that opponents of the President's program "subscribe to the doctrine of economic defeatism."

Sullivan said that a big turnout of voters helps the Democrats. He called on the women for hard organizational work—canvassing and doorbell ringing—to get out "a truly representative vote."

Subject Disregards Majesty's Command

Tokyo, Nov. 20.—When one British subject here received an invitation to a reception honoring Princess Elizabeth's wedding today, he noticed R. S. V. P. crossed out. He called the British secretariat and inquired the reason.

"You are one of His Majesty's subjects," boomed a voice at the other end of the wire. "That's not an invitation, it's a command." The man in question did not attend the reception.

FBI Man Links Md. Executive To Gun Theft

Augusta, Ga., Nov. 20 (AP).—A 24-year-old Baltimore man was quoted by an FBI agent in Federal Court today as saying that Karl J. Eisenhardt, Ellicott City, Md., business executive, asked him in January to be "on the lookout for planes for military or tactical use."

The Baltimorean was J. Meredith Russell, a former United States Air Forces flier, associated with Eisenhardt in operation of a charter air line. The FBI agent quoting him was Thomas Leach, jr.

Leach testified at the trial of Russell, Eisenhardt and two others on indictments that they plotted and executed the theft of 21 Navy machine guns from nearby Bush Field in April. All have pleaded innocent and their attorneys have indicated they will contend the guns were bought and paid for as "scrap."

Leach and other Government witnesses told of tracing the guns to the basement of Eisenhardt's palatial home near Ellicott City, their seizure and Russell's arrest. Leach said Russell admitted helping truck the weapons from a B-25 plane at the Baltimore Airport to the Eisenhardt mansion.

After the FBI reported seizure of the Navy machine guns, a Venezuelan embassy official in Washington said they were "destined" for his country. No evidence bearing on this statement has been introduced, however, at the trial.

Nearly 20 witnesses were heard today as the Government developed its charges against Eisenhardt, Russell, Edward Browder, jr., Amarillo, Tex., and Manuel L. Fuego, Miami, Fla, a native of Cuba.

Munt to Leave Richmond

Richmond, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—Christian Munt, assistant executive manager of the Richmond Chamber of Commerce, will leave his post here December 15, to become executive vice president of the newly-former Georgia State Chamber of Commerce, Robert C. Carden, jr., president of the local chamber, announced today.

Holland Given Ten Years in Slaying of Wife

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—Joseph Henry Holland, 43, still claiming innocence, was sentenced to 10 years in the Maryland Penitentiary today for manslaughter.

Holland

An Anne Arundel County court grand jury convicted him yesterday of killing his wife Estelle, 41, last September 11.

"I didn't hurt my wife," Holland told Judges William J. McWilliams and James Clark before sentence was pronounced.

His voice could hardly be heard in the almost empty courtroom.

This was in contrast to his testimony on the stand two days ago, when he spoke rapidly, sometimes loudly.

"There are only three who know I didn't hurt her," he said. "My Maker, my wife, wherever she is, and myself.

"I never laid a hand on my wife to hurt her in the 24 years I was married to her."

Judge McWilliams announced the sentence without comment.

Defense Counsel George B. Woelfel of Annapolis asked the court "to be as merciful as you feel you can."

The jury reached its verdict last evening after five hours' deliberation. State's Attorney Marvin I. Anderson had asked for a first degree murder conviction.

Philco Corp. Votes Stock Dividend

Philadelphia, Nov. 20 (AP).—Philco Corp. today declared a dividend on the common stock at the rate of one share for each 20 shares outstanding, payable December 17 to stockholders of record December 1.

At the same time, the corporation's board of directors declared the quarterly dividend of 37½ cents per share on the common and a year-end dividend of 50 cents per share, both payable December 12 to stockholders of record December 1.

The corporation said brought total cash payments on common this year to $2 a share.

Landing Craft Will Become Bay Ferries

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (AP).—War surplus landing ships will turn Chesapeake Bay into a water highway for trailer trucks traveling between Norfolk, Va., and Baltimore sometime in January, M. R. Greene announced today.

Greene, spokesman for the newly formed Savage Trailer Ships, Inc., said the firm would operate two 400-foot wartime invasion ships in its ferry service.

H. E. Savage of Norfolk is president of the line, which has been granted a ferry franchise by the Interstate Commerce Commission, Greene reported.

Each LST (Landing Ships, Tank) will leave Norfolk and Baltimore every evening, arriving at the opposite destination the next morning. The ships will carry 50 loaded trailers apiece.

The trailers will be loaded and discharged from the bow ramps. Trucks cabs will meet the ships and pick up the trailers.

King and Princess Ride in Ancient Coach—But Heated

London, Nov. 20 (U.P.).—Princess Elizabeth and King George rode to Westminster Abbey today amid all the blazing pomp of ancient British royal splendor, but they made one concession to modern comfort—hot water bottles to warm the seats of the Irish state coach.

The temperature stood at 44 degrees and the air was chilled with the aftermath of a drizzling morning rain, but their carriage was warm and cozy.

The hot water bottles, each three feet long, were placed under the seats of the glassed-in coach. To protect against foggying, the windows were sprayed with an anti-steam mixture so that all could see the princess in her radiant wedding finery.

Stassen Captures Southern Delegate

GOP Presidential Candidate's Journey Below Mason-Dixon Line Held Success

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Orlando, Fla., Nov. 20.—Harold E. Stassen, candidate for the Republican presidential nomination in '48, completed his delegate hunt in Dixie tonight, and his bag was not empty.

Stassen

The big Minnesotan had a live Florida delegate — at least, a prospective delegate — in his camp, openly committed to vote for him at the GOP National Convention in Philadelphia next June. There was some hope that he might be the first of a modest battalion of pro-Stassen delegates south of the Mason-Dixon line.

His name is Miles H. Draper, a Tampa attorney and one-time Republican candidate for the seat now held by United States Senator Claude Pepper. Draper, who came to Florida from Minnesota years ago, introduced Stassen at a St. Petersburg rally last night and told the world that if he should become a delegate to the Philadelphia convention, "I would have the high honor to cast my vote for this candidate (Stassen)."

Since Draper is the Republican boss in his political district, it is a virtual certainty that he will be a delegate. Moreover, he will be able to name a second delegate, who might also turn out to be a Stassen man.

So far as is known, Draper is the first delegate—or prospective delegate—that any 1948 Republican candidate has been able to exhibit in the Southland this far in advance of the national convention.

Stassen cherished him on this last day of his Southern tour. He flew him in his chartered United Air Lines plane from St. Petersburg to Winter Haven. He strolled through orange groves with him, and had him at his side as he inspected packing and canning plants. He ate with him, and had him is his caravan when he motored from Winter Haven to Orlando.

Draper, a husky fellow, was solid evidence that Stassen had broken into territory hitherto allotted to Taft, Dewey and (in a small degree) to Eisenhower.

Here in Orlando the former Minnesota Governor and wartime aide to Admiral William (Bull) Halsey, was in friendly political territory, a district which shocked Florida by sending to the State Legislature its lone Republican.

This encouraged Stassen to speak out at a rally tonight for the development of a "Republican Party of the South." He said:

"You have the right in Florida and each of the Southern States to develop a strong Republican Party with its own views of the manner in which State and national affairs should be conducted.

"You need not echo the position of Republican parties of States of the North . . . You will find there are great differences in positions between the Republican parties in some States of the West and Republican parties in some States of the East."

Having in mind the South's past reputation for hanging a "For Sale" sign over delegates, Stassen told his audience that the region should begin to plan now to send outstanding men and women to the Philadelphia convention.

"They should be men who truly represent the States from which they come," he continued. "They should not be distant adjuncts to any Republican Party of any State of the North.

"They should be men and women who cannot be bought or sold, who cannot be intimidated or deluded. They should be a group of men and women selected without discrimination, without any unconstitutional exclusion on the grounds of race, religion or color."

Stassen had planned to fly from Winter Haven to Orlando this afternoon, but a low ceiling made flying dangerous. He therefore, motored to Orlando. Capt. Bob Dawson, the pilot, flew the plane to Lakeland, and Stassen and members of his party were to go there late tonight and take off for Chicago.

Legion to Step Up Campaign To Outlaw Communist Party

The American Legion will intensify its efforts to induce Congress to outlaw the Communist Party in America, National Commander James F. O'Neil said yesterday.

One of the speakers, Jan Valtin, author of "Out of the Night," asserted every Communist official is "trained to attack any attempt at preparedness in a non-Communist country." Valtin spoke before 75 selected Legionnaires from over the Nation who attended the course. It is designed to train them how to expose and repel communism and other un-American influences.

Past National Commander Paul H. Griffith, recently returned from Europe, declared the bulk of German people are "far from de-Nazified."

Suzanne La Follette, author and lecturer, charged Reds have infiltrated into the YWCA and the parent-teachers associations; pointed to the "penthouse set" as "particularly vulnerable."

Ralph DeToledano, another author, discussed fascism and other non-Communist subversive influences in America.

Berlin Paper Terms Clay 'Saber Rattler'

Berlin, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Soviet-licensed newspaper Berlin am Mittag made a direct personal attack today on United States Gen. Lucius D. Clay, describing him as a "saber rattler."

It did not use the name of Clay, American Military Governor of Germany, referring to him as "this general," but there was no possibility of mistaking the objective of the attack.

NLRB Affirms Position on Red Affidavit Rule

In two more cases, decided yesterday, the National Labor Relations Board reaffirmed its ruling denying its services to unions which have failed to comply with the anti-Communist affidavit provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act.

In one case, involving the CIO Packinghouse Workers, the NLRB ordered the Plankton Packing Co. to bargain with the union, but only if the latter complied with the affidavit filing provision in 30 days. At the time of the decision the union had not complied or taken steps to comply.

In the second case, the board refused to certify the CIO Steelworkers as bargaining agent for the Nashville Corp., formerly Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp. The union, with 1700 members now on strike, had won a collective bargaining election on August 20, two days before the new law came into effect. The board refused to certify the organization, however, because its officers have not filed the required oaths.

Just 24 hours earlier, Philip Murray, president, and other officers of the steelworkers, meeting in Pittsburgh, repeated their intention to refuse to execute the affidavits.

When you entertain—set out small glasses of California Sherry or Port. California Sherry, amber in color, has a "nutlike" flavor that tastes wonderfully good with appetizers before dinner—or with small sandwiches or cakes at any time. California Port is a richer, sweet red wine delightful served alone. It also goes especially well with fruits, nuts and cheese. At today's wine prices, it costs but little to keep both these popular wines on hand.

When you sit down to holiday dinners—enjoy with your turkey either a red table wine (like California Claret) or a white table wine like California Sauterne). These pure natural wines are simply the fermented juice of vine-ripened fresh grapes, mellowed and brought to perfection by age. That is why they go so well with food. Serve your table wines without fuss. Simply pour everyone a glassful. Keep the bottle on the table, and refill your guests' glasses as desired. At today's wine prices it's practical—and extra nice—to offer guests a choice of good California red or white table wine. Wine Advisory Board, 717 Market Street, San Francisco 3

Suspect Charged in D. C. Robbery

A 23-year-old suspect in the brutal assault-robbery of Charles K. Raker, Washington salesman, was formally charged with robbery by Prince Georges County police yesterday following his arrest on an informant's tip.

The suspect, Samuel H. Craddock, 710 6th st. sw., was arrested around 10 a. m. in a restaurant in Northeast Washington. He was held at Hyattsville jail last night in lieu of $1000 bond.

Raker, who lives at 257 Rock Creek Church rd. nw., was brutally beaten September 2 by two men who forced him into his auto near a downtown tavern and made him drive to a secluded road near the Prince Georges Country Club. The thugs escaped with his auto, $500 in cash, a diamond ring and merchandise valued at about $950.

Pearson said Craddock was linked to the robbery by a coat and a slip of paper bearing his address, both found at the scene of the assault.

Russia Rejects Protest On Oilfield Seizure

London, Nov. 20 (AP).—Russia has rejected United States and British protests against her seizure of the rich Lobau oilfields and installations in Austria as reparations, the Foreign Office said tonight.

A spokesman said the matter probably would be raised in the Council of Foreign Ministers which is due to begin German and Austrian peace treaty talks here next week.

Question Of Right

John A. Reilly, president of the Washington Board of Trade, is unquestionably right in saying that the squabble between the District Commissioners and the District National Guard over the Armory is costly to the city. Taxpayers are getting no return from their enormous investment in this building. And merchants are undoubtedly losing money because conventions that might be held there are turned away. Obviously these losses ought to be terminated at the earliest possible moment.

We cannot agree, however, with Mr. Reilly's statement that "We don't care who has control as long as there is one authority with whom people can deal in arranging conventions." An important principle is at stake. This building belongs to the people of the District who paid for it. It is their right to collect from it whatever revenue it can be made to yield in addition to serving the purposes of the National Guard. In other words, it is no case for adoption of an expedient compromise for the sake of getting the building into profitable use at the earliest possible moment. We think the Commissioners have a public duty to perform by insisting that the rights of the community and its taxpayers be upheld, and we hope they will press their case with all vigor in the courts and in Congress.

Canada's Plight

Canada's restrictions on imports from the United States will reduce the drain on her rapidly dwindling United States dollar reserves by an estimated 300 to 400 million dollars during the coming year. The 300 million dollar loan obtained from the Export-Import Bank will also help to finance Canada's huge trade deficit with this country, when and if needed. However, the extra dollars obtained by a forced reduction of imports, combined with the Bank credit, will not suffice to bridge the yawning gap between Canada's purchases from and sales to the United States. For, according to the latest trade figures, Canada's adverse merchandise trade balance with this country has recently been running at an annual rate of approximately 950 million dollars. With her gold and United States dollar exchange reserves down to a half billion, it is obvious that a 300 to 400 million dollar cut in her purchases in our markets would still leave Canada with an annual trade deficit with this country greater than all her remaining United States dollar reserves, and possibly twice as large as the amount of the Export-Import Bank loan.

There is, to be sure, another source of United States dollar funds that the Canadians can tap. For they have an arrangement providing that one-half the net deficit due by Britain to Canada shall be met by drawing on the Canadian line of credit while the other half is to be paid for in United States dollars. Under this arrangement, which has survived the suspension of sterling convertibility, it is estimated that Canada will obtain between 35 and 40 million dollars monthly up to next September or October when the credit will probably run out. However, this method of financing Canadian purchases deprives the British of dollars borrowed from the United States—in other words, it means that we are indirectly supplying Canada with funds with which to cover her trade deficit with us.

Obviously the measures just taken to relieve Canada's shortage of United States dollars are makeshift expedients. They will afford no permanent solution of Canada's exchange problems, which are primarily due to the fact that Canada normally imports much more from the United States than she exports to us, paying for the difference from excess export sales to other countries, chiefly Great Britain. The inability of Canada's European customers, Great Britain in particular, to pay for Canadian shipments in United States dollars has wrecked the prewar system of multilateral trade on which Canada relied. Moreover, the limited exporting ability of Great Britain and other European countries has increased Canada's dependence upon the United States coincident with the drying up of her normal sources of United States dollar supplies. Hence the ultimate solution of Canada's dollar exchange problem depends upon the economic restoration of Europe.

Meantime, it is essential that some provision be made under the Marshall Plan to enable participating European countries to finance imports from Canada and other parts of the world of goods that are in short supply in this country. The Harriman Committee says there is reason to believe that the deficit of nations participating in the Marshall Plan in trade with Canada and Latin America will amount to between 1.9 and 2.1 billion dollars in the first year. The committee concludes, therefore, that dollar exchange should be made available to European governments to finance a substantial part of this deficit. Canada has given generous assistance to the British, with a resultant heavy drain on her monetary reserves. She can continue to aid by exporting wheat and foodstuffs in short supply in the United States. But to do so her European customers must be permitted to finance part at least of their Canadian purchases with Marshall Plan dollars so as to arrest the heavy drain on Canada's monetary reserves. If that is done, Canada can no doubt make the adjustments required to cover her trade deficits with the United States, and live in hope that economic recovery abroad will provide a not-too-remote permanent solution of her exchange troubles.

German Straws

The rumor has gathered strength in the last few weeks that the Russians will open the November 25 meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers with a proposal that all troops be withdrawn from Germany. Undoubtedly Secretary Marshall, who left yesterday for England, has this possibility in mind. It is our guess that Mr. Molotov is not yet ready to make such a proposal. To be sure, the 100,000-man German army that Marshal von Paulus is training in Russian territory for his Muscovite patrons is in a high state of efficiency. And Soviet agents must be everywhere. But a deterrent to Moscow on troop withdrawal is the fact that the German people are not conditioned to the degree of compliance that would ease the task of Sovietization. In our opinion, the Russians, for this and other reasons, are as much interested in keeping their troops on German soil as we are. However, the contingency of a Soviet proposal for troop withdrawal cannot be ignored. The men in the Kremlin are urgently in need of the diplomatic initiative that Secretary Marshall seized last June with his offer to Europe. They are sometimes Machiavellian, sometimes stupid, in their diplomacy, and they might essay a bluff, knowing that it would not be called, but counting on a diplomatic advantage in the present poker game with peace.

No embarrassment need be created by such a Soviet proposal. It should not, of course, result in any rejection of the proposal out-of-hand. Troop withdrawal would call for all manner of prior agreements, and these would indeed embarrass the Russians. Naturally the vacuum in Germany would create the need for more Germanization starting with a provisional German government. How? Our view ought to be that elections would have to be run by the German parties, that the labor unions in the Soviet zone should be freed, that the political prisoners of war outside Germany would have to be released, that control would henceforth cover all Germany under a common Allied authority, and that the veto power would have to be waived in the Control Council. Clearly Moscow could accept no such conditions. If any rejoinder on these lines were made, it might be coupled with a similar proposal for Austria. Certainly the tables would then be completely turned on the Soviet Union. For, even if it were prepared to withdraw its troops from Germany, the same thing could not be said about Austria. Such a discussion in London, of course, would end in smoke.

This is regarded as the likely outcome of the forthcoming meeting in London. Not one question in the preparation of the agenda appears to have been settled by the Foreign Ministers' deputies. What should we do then? In many quarters the notion of a separate peace, first bruited by Mr. Hoover, has been supported. The proposal, to our view, lacks any merit. Nothing has happened since May 31, when this newspaper last commented on the subject, to change our view. At that time we expressed the opinion that Mr. Hoover was right about Japan but wrong about Germany. In Japan there is a functioning government, and no internal complication is present, as it is in Germany, of a country split up into zones run by occupying powers. However, in the event of failure in London we would have to increase German authority in western Europe, so that that key area could be integrated as fast as possible into the Marshall Plan for economic recovery in Europe. The Marshall Plan must take precedence over unilateral action on a future set-up for Germany as a whole, provided there is a break-up in the London negotiations.

Free Labor

Freedom is not only a desirable end in itself; it is an indispensable means to all other ends that are desirable. This truism has been freshly attested of late in the experience of certain American labor unions—especially, for example, in the conduct last week of the United Automobile Workers. At the Atlantic City convention the auto workers used the freedom that was theirs to make a choice—in effect, a choice of freedom. They rid themselves and their organization of Communist influence and interference more effectively than a thousand House Committees on Un-American Activities could have done it for them. Indeed, free men, left to themselves, can always be counted upon so to choose. And the danger that they will choose otherwise arises only when the choice is inhibited.

The American labor movement has fed upon freedom. It has grown mightily, during the years it was left free to grow, in both power and maturity, so that today, as during the war, it is one of the bulwarks of the American way of life. With its increasing influence in national affairs there has developed an increasing sense of responsibility. And nowhere has this been more manifest than in respect of the Nation's external relations. The point is readily illustrated by the foreign policy resolution adopted by the convention of the AFL at San Francisco last month. The reception accorded Secretary Marshall at the CIO convention served at least partially to offset the weakness of the foreign policy platform adopted there.

Labor representatives, moreover, have played an outstanding part, during the war and postwar years, as diplomatic agents of the United States. They have played a leading role in the attempt to bring about an economic and spiritual regeneration of Germany. They have gone forth as missionaries to the labor organizations of the Latin-American republics, preaching the tenets of free trade-unionism. And to labor movements in Europe, threatened by Communist infiltration and control, in some instances mere captive instruments of Russian foreign policy, the American labor unions stand as the preeminent symbols of democracy. The militancy of American labor unions in foreign affairs has just been attested by two new developments. The AFL has announced plans for a "Deminform" (Democratic Information Bureau) in western Europe to counteract the activities of the Cominform (Communist Information Bureau). And the CIO is sending James B. Carey to the Paris meeting of the World Federation of Trade Unions to seek European labor approval of the Marshall Plan.

To the chained and hungry masses of the world, these American unions are the most effective proselytizers for libertarianism. But hunger inevitably inhibits freedom. And it is, above all, through the relief of hunger that we must look for the liberation of men's minds. There need be no fear under whose standards the workers of the world, once their hunger has been relieved, will choose to unite.

Taxes And Prices

What is the public to think when President Truman tells them that tax reduction spells higher prices while Senator Taft urges tax reduction as a deflationary measure? The arguments against tax reduction have been outlined many times in these columns, the chief objection to lowering taxes at present being that it would add to the volume of consumer purchasing power and result in would-be purchasers bidding up prices of goods in scarce supply. Senator Taft maintains, on the contrary, that "when you buy a pair of shoes you help to pay the taxes of the farmer who raises the cattle, the livestock dealer, the packer, the leather processor, the shoe manufacturer and the retailer." He says it is probable that 25 per cent of what the public pays for most articles is made up of taxes.

If we accept the premise that taxes are an essential part of production costs, affecting sales prices in much the same way as do wage payments and material costs, the argument that high taxes make high prices and lower taxes mean lower prices is unassailable. But we believe the Senator's premises are all wrong. There are some kinds of excises that undoubtedly are shifted to the buyer in the form of higher taxes. But these are not the taxes that the Republicans are so eager to reduce. Their aim is to lower taxes on incomes and at a somewhat later date, reduce taxes on corporate profits. In our opinion such taxes are not factors entering into production costs.

It is true that the excessively high income taxes now levied on individuals in the higher surtax brackets and on business are deterrents to enterprise and should, therefore, be removed as soon as inflationary dangers have been overcome. However, under present conditions, with virtually full employment, and with industrial activity at extraordinarily high levels, lowered taxes would not act as an immediate stimulus to greater output. For we are already producing nearly as much as we can; hence the possibility of greater output and consequently lower prices as a result of new investment stimulated by tax reduction lies in the future. Indirectly high taxes on individuals may increase the pressure for higher wages which are a factor in raising prices. But there again the real cause of current high wages lies in the high demand for labor which strengthens the working man's bargaining power. Moreover, the average worker, given liberal allowances for dependents, is not greatly concerned about tax payments while the savings of individuals in the higher surtax brackets are not urgently needed at the present moment to spark industry.

Finally, taxes levied on corporations come out of profits of goods sales after production costs have been met. They are a tax on income surpluses and vary with the amount of such surpluses. At any given price level some concerns have large surpluses after taxes, while competitors selling the same goods at the same prices may have little or no surplus or actual deficits. In short, prices are determined by market demand and supply, with production costs figuring as price determinants insofar as they result in withdrawal from the production field of firms unable to make a profit at the given price level. Taxes that are paid out of the surplus incomes of producing firms do not sensibly influence the price level as thus determined in a competitive economy, although, as stated, in the long run excessively high taxes may discourage maximum production and lead eventually to higher prices. Even that outcome cannot be predicted with certainty, since if taxes are so high as to hamper production, unemployment and depression may follow, with an unwelcome deflation of prices.

We should be interested to know, therefore, by what process of reasoning Senator Taft arrives at the conclusion that the consumer pays the taxes of the producers who turn raw materials into finished goods and the distributors who market those goods. We do not believe he will find support for his views in any authoritative treatise on economic theory.

"The FBI Checkup"

In The Washington Post of November 19 two strange articles on the editorial page, an editorial, "The FBI Checkup," states in part: "The candid and explicit replies of J. Edgar Hoover, head of the FBI to questions put by Bert Andrews of the New York Herald Tribune about methods of conducting investigations under the loyalty program should set at rest unfounded fears that the FBI has become a formidable secret police force spying on Government employes, invading their privacy without cause, violating their civil rights and threatening to reduce them to the status of trembling slaves of a tyrannical government. Mr. Hoover's account of the procedure followed in checking complaints shows the absurdity of such heated imaginings. He points out that the FBI agents do not start an investigation on their own initiative. First they must be supplied with information constituting a substantial basis for an investigation. Then the investigation follows in accordance with executive instructions. In other words the FBI supplies on request the facts bearing on questions of disloyalty, but it does not hunt for suspects nor does it prosecute those individuals who come under its scrutiny."

Then in Marquis Childs' column we read: "In a recent address in Chicago, Clifford Durr, a member of the Federal Communications Commission, made a statement that seems strangely to have been overlooked. Condemning the tactics of the House un-American Activities Committee in its Hollywood investigation, he predicted that radio would be the next victim. Then he said: "Already the FBI is furnishing to the commission unsolicited reports on individuals connected with radio, and I can assure you that if you should be told the kind of things contained in many of these reports you would dismiss the information as baseless gossip." Childs goes on to write: "Note the word unsolicited. It indicates that the FBI initiated investigations and sought to influence FCC decisions by sending reports on certain individuals to the commission. If this is happening, it is something Congress should know about."

I am wondering who is correct The Washington Post editorial or Mr. Childs. L. B.

Scrap Iron, War Dead

A few days ago the bodies of some of our war dead were brought ashore at New York and at San Francisco. I would like to address a question through your newspaper.

Around 1937 the International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union, led by Harry Bridges, conducted a long series of strikes against 35 ships loading scrap iron bound for Japan. The union men did not ask for more pay, shorter hours, or for any personal benefits. They simply refused to load scrap for Japan. They warned the shipowners and the labor arbitrators that the scrap would "come back in the bodies of our men."

The union appealed to the State Department, to use its powers then granted by Congress, to put an embargo on all scrap shipments to Japan, and other war materials as well. In these strikes and these appeals they were supported by the Communist Party, the American League for Peace and Democracy, and by many people's progressive organizations, including religious groups. All this is factual, recorded history.

But the union lost all its strikes—the men were forced to load the ships. The union lost all its appeals—the scrap went on to Japan, and oil and other materials went to Japan.

When the bodies were brought ashore at San Francisco among those longshoremen unloading the caskets were some of the former strikers. Today, as then, the unions and the progressive groups supporting them are branded un-American and subversive. There is an intense antiunion, anti-Communist, antiprogressive campaign.

My question is: Who has acted un-American, the unions and their supporters or the shipowners and their supporters?

"Challenge To Americans"

The Committee for the Marshall Plan, in its full-page advertisement in The Washington Post of November 17, uses as their most eloquent argument a few paragraphs of Henry L. Stimson's "The Challenge to Americans." I can think of no better contribution to the understanding of foreign affairs than for as many people as possible to read the whole of "The Challenge to Americans," which has been reprinted from the quarterly magazine Foreign Affairs.

Unfortunately there do not seem to be enough copies to meet the demand, and it is to be hoped that through the Committee for the Marshall Plan or some other funds Stimson's clear thinking and dispassionate analysis of our foreign policy will be made available in ample quantities.

Mrs. Guerrieri's Trip

It was certainly a beautiful thought of your paper to make it possible for Mrs. Guerrieri to attend the tea party at St. James's Court. Her accounts were most interesting and we at home enjoyed her experiences with her. It was quite an oversight that some of the Washington stores and beauty parlors didn't offer their services in every way so as to send her off in the grand style she so well deserves. After all, out of the kindness of her heart, she made and gave the dress intended for herself without expecting anything in return.

Old Schools

Will you explain the antipathy toward old buildings, old school buildings especially? I cannot comprehend it. I received my entire education in old buildings. Most of my teaching has been done in old buildings. It didn't hurt me or the children.

In old buildings the rooms are large, the ceilings high and there is adequate space in the cloakrooms for the children to hang their wraps. There are usually large closets and several of them. The walls are thick, making them warm in winter and the rooms cool in the summer.

Many of the new buildings lack these salient qualities. Builders try out new inventions which do not work. There are doors which will not shut when opened or open when shut without Herculean effort on the part of the teacher. Sometimes the custodian must be called upon. I know of a new building with a trick heating system. There is a double grating in the outside wall of the room, making direct air contact with the outside. This fine scheme was supposed to let the bad air out and the cold air in, with a blast. Everybody nearly froze to death.

Federal Retirement

I read in The Washington Post of November 17 Jerry Klutz's article telling that Federal employes and annuitants need expect no remedial action by this special session, and it is doubtful if it will be reached at all by the Eightieth Congress.

If there is anything fair in this treatment of Federal workers—many of whom have grown old and infirm in the Federal service, many of whom have dependent wives and children, and all of whom have been hit by the high cost of living—this writer would like to have someone point it out to him.

The last Congress nearly enacted a corrective bill, and would have, except that at the last moment the measure was found by a Republican-dominated Congress too "controversial." Perhaps this session, with the approach of elections, will not find it so controversial. In any event it would seem that, as Mr. Klutz says, the only hope for remedial legislation is to get behind the Langer-Chavez-Stevenson liberalized retirement bill and push for a "cost-of-living" bill for Federal workers. Austerity Vs. Royal Wedding

Perhaps a latent misanthropic trend in my personality has been activated, for I have noted a certain biliousness since these manifold accounts of the wedding of Princess Elizabeth have filled the daily press. I was acquainted with the minutiae of her wedding preparations and was regaled with long lists of gifts representing to me what I used to read of in fairy tales as "the treasures of the East."

Marriage, I feel, is an excellent thing for women, including royalty, but for a superextravaganza to attend the ceremony at the expense of a near-starving and bankrupt populace is something less than austerity. In one section of the Sunday paper was a feature item describing the ascetic existence of an English family, struggling on the minimum in everything. A few pages further was another of the innumerable gurglings over the royal nuptials. And back in the financial pages was another warning of the approaching economic collapse of Britain.

The British government, in promoting its program of severe limitations on personal comfort in Britain, must of necessity set an example for the people in the matter of financial policy within the government. And yet, regardless of the waste attendant on a royal wedding, the people, befogged by sentimentality, were not advised in the government on a course better adjusted to an economy supported by funds from the United States. It is comparable to getting a loan from the Red Cross to tide one over a disaster period and then blowing it in on a little vacation to forget about the hard times.

The final perversion came when the great human urge for a spectacle, come hell or high water, spread to this country, and results in the expenditure of a great sum of money in sending a housewife to England to eat some cake at an afternoon tea while the Welsh miners looked around for an extra piece of bread. It was shortly after a scene like this that Marie Antoinette was hearing the guillotine approach her pretty neck.

Elizabeth has not been guilty of anything akin to "Let them eat cake," but the whole tone of the show approached conditions in the earlier time. It would seem that the money spent for Mrs. Guerrieri's trip would have been better used in sending food packages to British families with the inscription, "From a great American newspaper—a wedding gift to those British that need a gift—the people." I am sure The Washington Post does not realize it, but such a sincere act of clear-headed beneficence would gain it far more publicity than the Cinderella show it sponsored.

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Spy Investigation

SEVEN MONTHS ago, in New York, a Federal grand jury investigation was begun into a purported Communist spy ring in Washington. This long-drawn-out investigation—with the leaks, rumors and speculation accompanying it—has contributed immeasurably to the current atmosphere of suspicion and distrust.

The grand jury will shortly make public a report. According to the latest information, no individuals will be indicted. The jury will, however, report at length on what led up to the inquiry and what was disclosed by it. If that happens, it will be a healthy thing. It will help to clear the air.

The investigation originated 2½ years ago when a woman informant approached the FBI with sensational reports of a spy ring in which she said she had played a part. She gave the FBI the names of a dozen or more persons in Government who, she said, had furnished documents that were passed on to Soviet agents.

She herself, according to the story, had delivered documents and, later in the war years, microfilmed copies of documents to Russian agents in New York. She described a basement room in a Washington residence in which she said the documents were microfilmed.

THE INFORMANT was a woman of education whose circumstantial story called for the most careful investigation. The FBI, in the line of duty, made that investigation. On the basis of information submitted to him, Attorney General Tom Clark decided to present the case to a Federal grand jury.

If he had not done so, he would have been open to the charge that he had suppressed the information. It is not hard to see the political turn that this charge would have taken on the eve of 1948. What is hard to understand is why it required 2½ years to complete the inquiry, when in the light of all information now available, it appears there was actually no conspiracy to transmit documents.

The Government employes listed by the woman informant as participating in the ring were for the most part left-wingers. They may have been card-holding members of the Communist Party.

Here is a disturbing phenomenon. No matter what the grand jury reports, some people will be convinced that, where there was that much smoke, there was bound to be some fire.

The parallel with the Canadian spy ring immediately comes to mind. Many of the individuals implicated in Canada were, in effect, the dupes of two or three clever and calculating agents acting on direct orders from Moscow. They were a pathetic species, suffering from personal frustration, a fanatical and perverted idealism and, in some instances at least, a childish love of power and intrigue.

THEY WERE, in short, one of the by-products of a far-from-perfect democracy. We have in the United States the same kind of misfits, tragically misguided idealists and just plain intriguers. They are pushovers for the brutalized religion of Marxist communism.

It seems to resolve all their doubts. At the same time it gives them a chance to feel wanted and important. This is the theme that runs through many of the personal narratives told before the royal commission that investigated the Canadian espionage ring.

With minor exceptions, what they obtained through their spying in Canada was the kind of document that could have been obtained by writing to a government bureau. The same thing seems to have been true of the alleged ring in Washington. One document mentioned in printed rumors is a report on the financial condition of China—which could hardly have been very secret, since the financial condition of China has been glaringly apparent for a long time.

The real tragedy is that such behavior sows doubt and dissension. It sets brother against brother. That is the menace of communism in this country, and in my opinion it is the only menace.

We can very readily guard against that menace. We can refuse to be stampeded by fear and hysteria into burning down the house to mend a small crack in the plaster.

By proceeding calmly and above all legally, refusing to resort to star-chamber proceedings, we can remove those who might by some remote contingency endanger American security. We should never allow ourselves to forget that the great mass of Americans, of whatever origin, creed, race or color, are loyal to America and to the concept of a free people for which this Nation stands.

Taft's Battle

Senator Robert Taft has sounded the call to battle. The enemy is President Truman's economic program for halting moon-bound prices.

"This is the police state," says Senator Taft, speaking of the President's request to Congress for limited rationing and price control. This argument, by the eminent Senator, is a cloak shrouding those who cherish the right of unlimited exploitation.

We are living in a republic where the sovereignty resides in the people. Nothing prohibits the people, through their elected representatives in Congress, from centering a portion of this sovereignty (in this case, price control) in the President. If the President usurped the power, then the Senator would have justification for crying "wolf."

As long as our Congress can reverse a previous decision to grant powers to the President, we can rest assured that our democracy is a real one. Today the American people want action, action for lower prices! CHARLES E. STEIN.

Matter Of Fact

By Alsop

Time Calls The Tune

BERLIN.—Every responsible American and British official here shares the fervent conviction that after the failure of the London Conference, urgent steps must be taken to form a provisional government in western Germany. These are the practical men dealing with the practical situation. Their opinion deserves respect in any case. Their arguments, moreover, appear to be irrefutable by any realistic test.

They say first that it is vain and time-wasting to continue seeking or hoping for agreement with the Soviets. The Soviet control of eastern Germany is squarely based on ruthless terror and has the total exploitation of eastern Germany, both political and economic, as its purpose. For the present the Soviets cannot conceivably be persuaded to start afresh, with wholly new methods and purposes. Therefore even Gen. Lucius D. Clay, whose highest ambition on coming to Germany was to achieve agreement with the Soviets, now frankly feels that there is no hope.

In the second place, the mere passage of time is pressing these Americans and Britishers who have the task of administering the most important part of the old German state. Their broad problem is neatly summed up in the currency issue. All four zones of Germany still use reichsmarks printed by the Allies as their currency. But the currency is on the verge of losing all value, except as a sort of official script for buying official rations.

A large part of the trouble has been caused by the Soviets. They were negligently given dies to print reichsmarks by our Treasury. They have printed uncounted billions, to pay their troops, to "buy" industries for Soviet account, and to meet all other occupation charges. They have consistently refused to agree to Germany-wide currency reform. A stage of acute danger has now been reached. If the valueless reichmarks are not soon replaced with money having some value, there is likelihood of a general catastrophe. There is also the certainty that the effort to rebuild Germany's economic life will fail. Therefore the task of currency reform must begin at once, and begin separately in the Anglo-American and French zones.

Issuance of a separate currency for the Anglo-American and French zones will, of course, be practically equivalent to the division of Germany into wholly separate political entities. But this is not the only way in which time presses.

THERE ARE no fully responsible governmental authorities in western Germany today. The economic council of the Anglo-American zones and the various land governments can make decisions. But being known to be impermanent, they cannot fully enforce their will. Thus far, the rationing system has continued to assure the great majority of Germans slender subsistence. But leaks in the dyke, little everywhere and some big, as in the Ruhr, long ago began to appear.

In short, the rationing system must be quickly sustained and strengthened, as must the whole administrative machine by which Germany will be rebuilt.

But the Western powers cannot adopt the bloodstained methods of the police state to carry out their decisions in Germany. The job can only be done, in the last analysis, by the Germans themselves. And this requires a still further step. It is now urgent not only to give the Germans of the west a currency of some value. It is equally urgent to give them a genuinely representative provisional government which the German people can hold responsible for future failures. The alternative is administrative collapse.

From such political realities as these there is no escape except into theory. In fact, the remaining open question is not whether another stalemate in London will be the sign for a radical reorganization of western Germany. The question still open is whether the French will join with the British and Americans in setting up this new western Germany which will allow the Germans to contribute to their own salvation.

IT IS to be expected that the extremists among the French will bitterly dislike the whole business. For two years, they have been demanding a divided Germany. They have been urging a form of German federalism as decentralized and as unworkable as the American Continental Congress. They have been deaf to the argument that an unworkable German government would fail, that political and social poisons would be generated by this governmental failure, and that a German drive for national redemption on the old pattern would then result. However, now that a divided Germany is actually in prospect, they have hastily changed their song.

When advocating federalism, they said nothing of the natural German impulse toward national unity. But now they talk of nothing but the danger that a divided Germany will fly together around the nucleus of Berlin. Therefore they urge a policy of bankruptcy—indefinite prolongation of the present hopeless mess, with the certainty of ultimate collapse of administration thereby produced. These men would be less important if it were not for the signs that General de Gaulle adheres to their view.

Fortunately, two new developments provide grounds for qualified optimism. On the one hand, the American policy-makers have at last recognized the folly of our high-handed past dealings with the French government. The practical situation in Germany does not permit endless delays for Anglo-Franco-American haggling, but the French will not again be asked, with ungenial brusqueness, to accept accomplished facts in Germany. This is part of the great change typified in General Clay's own thinking. A year ago, Clay could be accused of suffering from German localitis. Now, however, his whole thought is concentrated on the broad reconstruction of western Europe, and he sees the rehabilitation of Germany as only a part in this larger whole.

Meanwhile, in Paris also, there has been a change of heart in many quarters. The currency problem and the developing dollar deficit in the French zone of Germany are both forcing the French to consider the need for a German administration that will really work. Two representatives of the French Foreign Office, Beaumarchais and de Laboulaye, have actually visited Berlin in recent weeks to survey the possibility of a trizonal merger. Thus there seems to be some possibility of a sound cooperative solution. After that, the task will be to make the solution a success.

A communication, "Unified Reserve," from Maj. Gen. E. A. Walsh, president of the National Guard Association of the United States, will be found on Page C-2 of today's issue.

History Of A Police Raid

Editor's Note: The author of this article is an American newspaper and magazine writer who is now free-lancing from Argentina. He went to Argentina in March, 1946, as a member of the United Press Bureau in Buenos Aires.

AS REPRESENTATIVES of Argentina's leading non-Peronist parties forgot their political differences for the first time in the history of the Peron administration in an attempt to safeguard the nation's century old constitution, federal police raiding squads in Buenos Aires recently broke up an historical meeting—the inaugural session of the Club del Cincuenta y Tres.

On a cool, sunshiny Wednesday afternoon (November 5) Argentine Progressive Democrats, Conservatives, Socialists and Principist Radicals (no Communists) poured into the club's inadequate Moreno st. headquarters. Among them were former supreme court justices, jurists, national senators and nonpolitical businessmen, educators and military officers. They had the necessary municipal and police permission to meet, grudgingly granted several days before.

At 4:55, a city official showed up with an injunction. Two score armed, uniformed PF-men (Policia Federal special detail) were right behind him. A PF cordon materialized to block entrance to the building, while another squad herded everybody outside. Mounted police swiftly cut Moreno st. at both ends of the block, diverting all motor and pedestrian traffic.

Bewildered "Club of '53" officers read the municipal injunction as they were hustled out. It said their headquarters was closed indefinitely under guard because "the building lacks adequate" sanitary facilities."

The injunction was similar to some of those invoked during the past 90 days to padlock the newsplants of Argentina's non-Peronist and independent newspapers, as Peron government repressive measures weekly grew bolder with the diversion of hemisphere attention away from Argentina and toward Russia.

THERE WAS little doubt in Buenos Aires as to why Mayor Emilio Siri had suddenly interested himself in the plumbing at 1390 Moreno st. The "Club of '53," named for the Argentine national constitution in force since 1853, was organized early in September to "exalt respect for and observance of [the constitution's] republican, federal and democratic principles."

Argentina's century-old national charter, on the other hand, would have to undergo some major alterations to allow Peron legally to succeed himself in 1952 when his six-year presidential period is up. The constitution also conflicts with "the continual abuse and violation by the present executive branch . . . of personal liberties, the freedom of opinion, religion and public assembly . . . and the assumption of powers normally belonging to the legislative and judicial branches," according to club charter members.

The resolution founding the "Club of '53" pointed out that "the constitution was not the fruit of academic debate . . . It cost a lot of blood . . . It is our indispensable and urgent duty to return to its essential principles."

So the formation of the Club del Cincuenta y Tres was greeted by vigorous, concerted attacks in the Peronist press. The afternoon paper, Democracia, dubbed the group Il Cinquanta Tre as a slurring allusion to the Italian parentage of some of its members—a favorite Peronist propaganda method despite the prevalence of second-generation Italians on both sides of the Argentine political fence.

SINCE ITS inception, the group's inaugural meeting has been delayed repeatedly by denials of the necessary permission for the "Club of '53" to use any local theaters or public auditoriums. This finally forced the group to schedule its first formal meeting in its own headquarters. Speakers on the inaugural program, slated to begin at 6:30 p. m., included well-known, moustachioed Socialist former Senator Alfredo Palacios, Radical Principista Mauricio Yadarola, Progressive Democrat Horacio Thedy, Conservative Eduardo A. Garcia, army Gen. Juan E. Vacarezza and the navy's Admiral Jose Guisasola.

As federal police started clearing the neighborhood—it took them just 20 minutes—"Club of '53" member Rodolfo A. Fitte gained a vantage point to explain to the crowd of several thousand what was going on. Fitte was well qualified for the job—he was a veteran of the Union Democratica, the joint party coalition which opposed the Farrell-Peron regime through the months of rioting, gunplay and saber-swinging mounted federal police charges preceding the 1946 presidential election.

As the PF-men bulldozed the crowd away, someone started singing the 150-year-old Argentine national anthem. Immediately, others took it up.

"Oid, mortales, el grito sagrado: Libertad! Libertad! Libertad!"

("Heed, ye mortals, the sacred cry: Freedom! Freedom! Freedom!"

THE BLUE-uniformed federal police drove into the crowd, splitting it into small groups and driving people down side streets away from the would-be meeting place. Each fragment went on singing, and the ancient tune floated back from a dozen directions, out of time and off-key.

". . . And those of the world who are free respond,

"To the grand Argentine people, Salud!"

A dozen blocks away, Martin Narvaitz, 23, and Osvaldo Grelo, 17, shouted "Viva la Libertad!" on their way home from the meeting. They were arrested for disorderly conduct.

But the free people of the world apparently couldn't be bothered this week. For West was West and East was Russia in the United Nations General Assembly, and the twain showed no signs of meeting. And the fate of the "Club of '53" was not mentioned in Washington where Peron's Ambassador Oscar Ivanissevitch still led the deadlocked voting for the presidency of the governing board of the Pan-American Union.

Navy Entered 'War' Early, Historian Says

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 20 (AP).—The United States was shooting in the last war eight months before Pearl Harbor and President Roosevelt left a Navy fireman as an impersonator when he set out for the Atlantic Conference with Winston Churchill at Argentia, Newfoundland, in August, 1941.

These are two of many hitherto unknown or little-known facts disclosed in Prof. Samuel Eliot Morison's "The Battle of the Atlantic," published today by Little, Brown & Co. as volume I of the 13-volume history the former Navy captain was commissioned to write of the Navy's part in World War II.

The destroyer Niblack, Comdr. E. R. Durgin, he relates, was nearing the coast of Iceland when she came upon and rescued from lifeboats the survivors of a torpedoed Netherlands freighter.

"Just as the last men were being pulled on board," the account continues, "Niblack's sound operator made contact on a submarine evidently approaching for attack. Commander D. L. Ryan, division commander ordered Mr. Durgin to attack with depth charges. He did, and the U-boat retired. So far as can be ascertained, this bloodless battle of April 10, 1941 was the first action of the war between United States and German forces."

En route to the Atlantic Conference, the history relates, President Roosevelt transferred to the Cruiser Augusta off Martha's Vineyard from the Presidential Yacht Potomac.

"The U. S. S. Potomac," the account continues, "was routed through Cape Cod Canal with a histrionic touch that deceived everyone. A fireman and two bluejackets dressed in white summer clothes and bearing a superficial resemblance to Mr. Roosevelt, Stephen Early and General Watson, lolled in easy chairs on the quarterdeck and waved genially to the public that lined the banks and bridges. Even the chief of the Secret Service did not know where the President was for several days."

Civil Rights Ruling Seen in Spy Trial Case

A new ruling on civil rights may grow out of the prison term given Countess Marianna von Moltke for a Nazi spy plot.

She contends she is innocent.

She pleaded guilty, but counsel told the Supreme Court yesterday that she did so because she was misled by FBI agents—and because she did not have a lawyer.

Smashing of a Nazi spy ring in Detroit was a Nation-wide sensation four years ago. One of those nabbed was the countess. Caught in August, she and seven others were indicted on September 17, 1943, for conspiring to keep the Nazis informed about our war machine.

Four days later, she talked to a lawyer a few minutes in court, then pleaded not guilty. Federal Judge Edward J. Moinet said he would get her a lawyer, but did not.

Talked to FBI Agents

Back in jail, the countess talked several times—once for hours—to FBI agents. They gave her legal advice. On October 7, she took back her not guilty plea and said she was guilty. She alleges that it was not until several months after that that she found out a person does not have to prove his innocence in this country, and that one may know conspirators without being one himself. Then she asked to change her plea and have a trial. But she was turned down and given four years in prison on November 15, 1946.

Early in 1946 she started the habeas corpus action which is now before the Supreme Court. Her counsel G. Leslie Field, of Detroit, told the justices yesterday that the record showed a violation of the Bill of Rights. For the Bill says every person has a right to a lawyer when he is accused to crime.

Signed a Waiver

Field said it was true that the countess signed a "waiver" of this right, but he pointed out that she alleges that she did not know English well, that the waiver would hardly be read, and that the prosecuotr told her to go ahead, that it was just a matter of form.

Assistant Attorney General Frederick Bernays Wiener told the court the countess refused counsel, asserting she wanted to make up her own mind.

Justice Black asked what lawyer she refused to talk to. It seemed that she saw no lawyer except the one in court.

When Wiener said the countess told lies at her habeas corpus hearing, Justice Rutledge asked whether that meant that the FBI agents who backed up part of her story were lying, as well.

What is Role of Lawyer?

When Wiener asked what more a lawyer could do for a client than plead her guilty, Justice Jackson broke in.

"Plead her not guilty, Mr. Wiener," he said.

Justice Murphy asked what happened to her husband, and was told he lost his job as a college professor and is working in a Detroit drug store for $35 a week.

India Loses Tough United Nations Fight

Flushing Meadows, N. Y., Nov. 20 (INS).—India lost a hard-fought battle in the United Nations tonight when the General Assembly rejected her appeal for better treatment of Indians in South Africa.

By a vote of 31 for, 19 against, with six abstentions, the Assembly failed to reaffirm its own resolution of last year censuring South Africa. The vote dropped entirely the case submitted by India a year ago.

Liberty Bldg. To Erect New Home on G St.

By S. Oliver Goodman

Liberty Building Association, one of Washington's oldest loan institutions, has completed plans to erect a new three-story home at 1407 G st. nw. Work is expected to start the first of January and completion is anticipated late next summer.

Emmerich

The institution has occupied its present quarters at 511 7th st. nw., for the past 56 years, according to Secretary Edmund M. Emmerich. During the past three years, he said, assets have shown a record expansion of 50 per cent to the present total of more than nine million dollars.

Liberty's new building will have three stories and basement and will be air conditioned throughout. The location is to occupy the first floor and a mezzanine and will be the two upper floors to tenants not announced.

Potter & Locke are the architects and Walter B. Avery is the general contractor for the new structure. The present building at 1407 G st. site will be razed.

BOARD CHAIRMAN: Charles H. Murchison has been elected chairman of the executive committee of Capital Arlines, it was announced yesterday by President James H. Carmichael.

Murchison

Murchison, a Jacksonville, Fla., attorney, has been general counsel for the Washington-based airline for several years and will continue in that capacity. An expert in aviation law, he is a graduate of the University of Michigan and Harvard Law School.

TRANSIT DIVIDEND: Directors of Capital Transit Co. yesterday declared a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share on capital stock, payable December 22 to stock of record December 1. In announcing the action, the board emphasized that "the dividend will be paid out of surplus earnings of prior years." Reflecting a sharp earning decline this year, Capital Transit stock yesterday sold at a new low of 15¼ a share on the Washington Stock Exchange.

PEPCO LISTED: Listed trading for 2,961,250 shares of new common stock of Potomac Electric Power Co. will start today on both the New York Stock Exchange and the Washington market. This was assured yesterday by formal authorization of the Securities and Exchange Commission. The 225,000 shares of new Pepco 3.60 per cent will be listed on the Washington Stock Exchange, but not on the New York market. Such listing is expected to clear the SEC about December 10, according to Thomas C. Montgomery, president of the Washington Stock Exchange. On the over-counter market here yesterday, Pepco common was quoted at 15⅜ bid and 15¾ asked; the preferred at 46 bid and 48 asked.

UNDERWRITERS: A panel discussion attracted 260 members of the District of Columbia Life Underwriters Association to a luncheon session yesterday in the Mayflower. The discussion revolved around the proper ways of handling a policy application. Participating were J. Donald Sutherland, Dr. Irving Brotman, Bruce Butler, Carl Josephson and moderator was Walter Parker. William B. Rumple, association head, presided and introduced 18 new members.

FDIC Grants 3 Long Weekends Despite Official Disapproval

HOLIDAYS: The issue of long holiday weekends for Federal workers has been revived despite official frowns.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has taken the lead in granting its employes 4-day weekends over Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. Now employes in a score of other agencies are demanding similar benefits. The FDIC memo to employes yesterday reads:

"The corporation's offices will be closed from Thursday through Sunday, November 27 to 30; December 25 to 28, and January 1 to 4, inclusive.

"Annual leave will be charged for November 28, December 26, and January 2 to all employes having annual leave to their credit. All others will be permitted to make up for absence, thereby compensating for the time taken."

In other words, the only FDIC employes who will be required to make up for the three lost days will be those who do not have annual leave that can be used.

A similar holiday work schedule had been suggested by officials in several other agencies. However, all such plans along that line were rejected by the Federal Personnel Council after White House and Budget Bureau spokesmen disapproved them. But the FDIC action raises the issue again.

Last year Congress approved a last-minute bill which allowed Federal agencies to give their employes 4-day weekends on Christmas and New Year's.

Incidentally, Federal agencies can be expected to be excused early the afternoon of December 24—a peacetime practice that was abandoned during the war years. No early closing is planned for New Year's eve.

VA will hire about 700 new employes here by January 1, but the increase may be partially offset by the discharge of other types of workers.

Veterans' Administration had planned to hire the 700 low-paid clerical workers on December 1 to staff its actuary insurance offices that are being moved here from New York. Budget troubles forced the delay to January 1.

Only 23 employes from New York either have or will transfer down here with their jobs. The office had a peak of 1500 employes in New York. However, officials believe the job can be done here with a maximum of 725 people.

Most of the 700 new people will be in the Grade 2, 3 and 4 clerical class. People for this work will be selected from eligibles on the recent general clerical test.

On paper, VA plans to move back here before June 1 several other of its insurance offices in New York that now have upward of 2000 employes. However, Congress must first provide funds with which to make this transfer.

Meantime, VA is making another check of its offices here to see if any are overstaffed and what work, if any, can be consolidated—changes that would wipe out the jobs of several hundred employes.

PROMOTIONS: Like Patent Office and several other agencies, VA has a freeze on job reallocations to higher grades. The freeze is temporary and it will be lifted within a few weeks. The freeze in all agencies was brought about by a new law which provides no jobs can be reallocated to higher grades if they will increase the annual budgets of the agencies.

WAR ASSETS will order a big lay-off of employes next Wednesday. Between 5000 and 8000 jobs the country over will be wiped out by the order. About 350 employes here will get 30-day lay-off notices next week.

EFFICIENCY RATINGS: The new changes in the efficiency rating system will be revealed at a rating conference to be held December 2 and 3 in the Interior auditorium. They will be explained by John A. Overholt, chief of the rating system.

Other speakers will be W. J. McNeil, special assistant to the Defense Secretary; Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming, and Donald S. Dawson, administrative assistant to the President.

CIVIL SERVICE will move its fourth regional office back here from Winston-Salem, N. C., the week of December 15 . . . The ARMY'S Quartermaster General is in need of Grade 2 and 3 typists, stenographers, and tabulating equipment. Call Republic 6700, Branch 71767, for further information . . . ANDREWS FIELD needs electrical linesmen, $1.24 to $1.52 an hour, and aircraft painters, $1.12 an hour. Phone Hillside 3200, Branch 196, for further information.

Royal Pair Starts Honeymoon After Marriage Rites in Abbey

The bridegroom stuck to his navy uniform.

London's day of days—and the day of days for the two principals, the princess, 21, the princely duke, 26—started when the crowd which had waited all night outside saw the lights of Buckingham Palace flash on at 6:47 a. m.

The princess breakfasted with her parents after rising at 7. She started dressing for the wedding at 9:10 and finished at 10:20. Then her hair was dressed.

At 11:03 a. m. Queen Mary, the bride's grandmother, left Marlborough House not far away in her limousine. The proud old lady, straight as a ramrod at 80, was cheered as her car passed down Whitehall to the church.

There were few in the crowd, perhaps, who did not remember that Queen Mary's favorite son the Duke of Windsor, whom she had raised to be King, was 3000 miles away in America—not invited to the wedding because she would not accept his wife.

Behind Queen Mary's car came that of Queen Elizabeth, who rode with Princess Margaret, the bride's sister and one of the eight bridesmaids.

Philip arrived with his best man, the Marquess of Milford Haven, from Kensington Palace where they spent the night with the bridegroom's mother, Princess Andrew, and grandmother, the Marchioness of Milford Haven.

Princess Elizabeth and King George, in a glass coach of state, left the palace to a gigantic roar of cheers at 11:16 and arrived at Abbey at 11:27 a. m.

It was 11:29 when the service started with a fanfare from the Henry V chantry behind the high altar.

The 2500 persons in the abbey—kings, queens, cabinet ministers, royal and noble and diplomatic guests—were caught instantly in an awesome spectacle of high solemnity.

The fanfares rang out during the parts of the wedding with the stirring clang of the martial music to which the princess' ancestors had gone to war centuries ago in France with their knights and bowmen.

The bridal procession started, on the arm of her father the King, the princess in her shimmering, gossamer gown with its innumerable seed pearls walked the 100 yards on a red carpet to the altar.

At the steps of the altar she suddenly stopped. The two little princes, one 5, the other 4, their kilts swinging, had lost control of the 15-foot bridal gown train.

The bridegroom had joined the party now. He turned and murmured to the King. The King, stepping out of the procession which was starting up the steps, bent down and freed the train from a candelabra with the help of the best man. The Duchess of Kent, the King's sister-in-law, looked anxiously at her son, one of the two pages. She turned to the Duchess of Gloucester, likewise a sister-in-law, whose son was the other page and the two mothers exchanged a long glance.

Again, when the newlyweds started to leave after signing the marriage register at the completion of the ceremony, the pages lost control of the train. This time Princess Margaret, as the leading bridesmaid, stepped up and helped the boys down the five steps.

The gorgeous gold and amethyst cross of Westminster led the bridal procession to the altar.

There the princess, solemn and timid, and Philip, tall, blond and militarily at attention, went through their vows. He, too, showed some nervousness and snapped rigidly upright as he stood before the officiating Archbishop of Canterbury.

"Philip, wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife . . .?" said the Archbishop. "I will," the Prince said in low tones.

"Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, wilt thou have this man . . .?" "I will," the Princess said. She was hardly audible.

It was 11:44 when the Archbishop pronounced them "man and wife together . . ."

The Archbishop of York, second ranking prelate in the Church of England, gave the wedding address.

"Notwithstanding the splendor and public significance of this occasion, this service in all essentials is the same as it would be for any cottager who might be married this afternoon in some small church in a remote village," he said.

". . . Before God and man you have made a solemn and deliberate promise that come what may, for better, for worse . . . you will always be faithful to one another . . ."

He called on them to love each other unselfishly, to show thoughtfulness and patience.

The boy choir chanted the twenty-third Psalm—"The Lord Is My Shepherd." There was a final prayer, a fanfare, and to the air of an anthem by the choir the procession went to the chapel of Edward the Confessor where the bride and bridegroom signed the register which makes marriages legal in the eyes of the civil law. The procession moved to the door and the Princess and Philip left.

I watched them go as the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march sounded from inside, where I saw the ceremony. The press of the crowd and the roar which went up from it were almost unbelievable. The gorgeously uniformed household cavalry, which provided escorts for the royal processions, formed in front of the glass coach. Elizabeth and Philip smiled and waved. Entering the carriage behind the famous Windsor gray horses, they clasped hands and kept them clasped while they went to the palace.

At the palace, the special guests had the wedding breakfast in the hall supper room, adjoining the great ballroom, at little round tables. At one end of the room was the 9-foot-high, four-tiered wedding cake which Elizabeth cut with the naval sword Philip wore. King George toasted the bridal couple.

The crowd outside had been shouting steadily for the bride and groom and at 1:34 p. m. they appeared. The King and Queen came out behind them, then Queen Mary and Princess Andrew, the bridegroom's mother, and Princess Margaret.

Still the shouting kept up and at 3:30 the bride and bridegroom with the bridesmaids came out again.

As Elizabeth and Philip started to leave for the station, they found a laughing group of kings, queens, princes and princesses in the courtyard. Suddenly Prince Bernhard of Holland went up to them and threw a big handful of rose petals on their shoulders. The others joined. The newlyweds raced laughing to the carriage.

As it left the King, hatless, stood alone waving. Years ago, he tried to refuse the crown because he had no son and he feared an unhappy life, in these times, for a reigning Queen.

Even after the bridal couple left tens of thousands of people remained outside the palace. Twice during the evening the King and Queen, the second time with Princess Margaret, had to go out on the balcony to be cheered. After the second time, the crowd started to break up—to go into the jammed, hysterical West End to celebrate.

Mrs. Guerrieri Lands in Eire On Return From London Party

Shannon, Eire, Nov. 20 (Spl.). Lois Guerrieri, Washington, D. C. mother of four children and a part-time dressmaker who attended an afternoon party at St. James's Palace in London, arrived here today en route home.

Mrs. Guerrieri, who received an invitation to the pre-wedding function after she made and sent a dress to Princess Elizabeth, left London today.

She will leave Shannon at 8 p. m. tomorrow (Friday) via TWA for New York. The plane is due to arrive in New York at 11:05 a. m. Saturday, and in Washington at 1:35 p. m.

Mrs. Guerrieri shook hands with the King and Queen during the Tuesday afternoon party at St. James's after the Queen's attention was attracted by her hat. She was sent to London by The Washington Post.

Her husband, Louis Guerrieri, is an employe of the District of Columbia engineering department who took leave from his job to help care for their four children during her journey. The Guerrieris live at 1724 S st. se.

All Hospitals Ask Fees for Indigent

Seek Contracts Paying Stated Sum For Eligible Patients

A general request for the District to pay for care of indigent patients not now receiving public assistance has been made by hospitals here, District Health Officer George C. Ruhland said yesterday.

The hospitals are now preparing statistics and case-load information to support their requests for contracts with the District for indigent care, Dr. Ruhland said.

Three hospitals, Casualty, Emergency and Childrens, now have such contracts by which the District pays a stated fee for persons eligible for tax support. They handle the overflow of cases from municipally-owned Gallinger Hospital.

For some time other private hospitals have declared that rising costs and increasingly overtaxed hospital capacity were forcing them into a position where they could no longer care for indigents without District reimbursement.

Daniel W. O'Donoghue, jr., chairman of a committee of the Hospital Council of the National Capital Area which is conducting the hospital negotiations with Dr. Ruhland, said "no formal request" had yet been made for the contracts.

Two classes of indigent and semi-indigent patients are cared for at hospitals here. Those eligible for District funds go to Gallinger Hospital or the three private hospitals holding District contracts—or, if necessary, to other private hospitals.

Health Security Administration, a private agency, directs those able to pay part-costs, and some able to pay no costs, to hospitals which receive limited fee payment from the Community Chest.

Dr. Ruhland suggested that medical schools might assigne "some of their staffs and some senior medical students" to the District's health centers.

Dr. Ruhland also urged that general hospitals expand their outpatient facilities. He said it "might be possible, if the funds could be found," for the District to pay for such care.

Churchmen Called

Liquor Store Plea Fought By Subpenas

Ministers and church leaders appeared under subpena before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday.

Robert E. Lynch, attorney for Mead's Liquors, 3919 South Capitol st., told the ABC board he had had the churchmen subpenaed in his fight on the application of Louis Brisker, 507 11th st. nw., to set up a new liquor store at 4011 South Capitol, only a block from Mead's.

The board will resume the hearing on Brisker's application at 2 p. m. today.

Two Withhold Opinion

The Rev. Frank Squires, pastor of Covenant Baptist Church, 126 Yuma st. se., said his subpena followed a letter from Attorney Lynch. He said his congregation last Sunday voted to oppose the new store "as a matter of principle." He added, however, that neither he nor his congregation wished to appear as favoring either liquor dealer in the controversy.

The Rev. Richard Pursel, pastor of Congress Heights Presbyterian Church, S. Capitol and Chesapeake sts., and Mrs. H. V. Glazier, 4319 1st st. se., a member of his church's board of trustees, said they appeared only because of the subpenas. Both declined to express an opinion, either favoring or opposing the new liquor store.

Brisker now operates a liquor store at the 11th st. address. His attorney, F. Joseph Donohue, said he proposes to move the 11th st. store to the South Capitol location in the new Washington Highlands shopping center.

Petition Introduced

H. A. Nessen, 3961 1st st. sw., a past president of the Patterson School Parent-Teacher Association, told the board "we want a neighborhood identified by fine schools and centers of worship rather than liquor stores."

Mrs. Charles A. Hagerty, 4008 1st st. sw., secretary of the Washington Highlands Citizens Association, said all but two of 60 members attending the association's last meeting voted to oppose the proposed new liquor store.

A petition with 110 signatures against the store, which Edward A. Doty, 4001 Nichols ave. sw., carried, was introduced. Among others opposing the store were Vincent C. Wahler, 4000 Nichols ave. sw., an Eleventh Precinct policeman, who said he felt an increase in liquor stores would increase the area's police problems, and Mrs. J. R. Harris, 3711 4th st. se., who declared: "I don't see how youth can be influenced for the right when such stores are around to tempt older people."

4 Policemen Face Trial Board Today

Four police privates are scheduled to ace the Police Trial Board this morning on charges of violation of police regulations.

Pvt. Robert C. Redding, 45, fined $115 two weeks ago for failure to patrol his beat and communicate with his station house on October 23, once again will face the board.

Redding, who lives at 1530 28th st. se., and has been on the force 23 years, is charged with failure to communicate with his station on the morning of November 4. He is attached to the Fifth Precinct.

Pvt. Harold W. Beechner, 47, was allegedly discovered in a restaurant on November 3 while assigned to patrol a beat in the Fourth Precinct.

Beechner, who has since been transferred to the Third Precinct, has been on the force 21 years and lives at 2244 Minnesota ave. se. He is charged with:

Failure to communicate with his station; failure to report off duty; neglect of duty; willfully telling an untrue statement to a superior officer, and conduct prejudicial to the good order and discipline of the department.

Pvt. Chester C. Harris, 34, attached to the Thirteenth Precinct, is charged with neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming an officer.

The charges arose from his reported failure to appear for roll call on November 11. A policeman for fuor years, he lives at 842 19th st. ne.

Pvt. William A. Gordon, 30, on the force a year, who lives at 121 Adams st. nw., is charged with failure to report off duty on November 5 at the Thirteenth Precinct.

Chest's Gain To Be Given At Luncheon

Results of yesterday's special drive in the Community Chest Federation campaign will be made at today's report luncheon.

Workers were urged by Chairman Edward H. Foley, jr., to devote all of yesterday to the campaign, and residential unit solicitors were asked to cover their areas in a house-to-house canvass.

At the last progress report on Tuesday, the Chest Federation drive had realized a total of 54.1 per cent, or $2,109,352 of the $3,900,000 goal.

This compares with the $4,566,000 officially estimated by the budget committee as the actual need of the 125 Red Feather welfare and social service agencies for 1948.

All contributions and pledges received at the Chamber of Commerce Building up to 11:30 a. m. will be reported at today's luncheon, which will feature the reports of the residential unit. Business, Government, special gifts and Montgomery County units will also report. Mrs. C. Leslie Dunn will speak briefly.

Today is designated as Youth Service Day, and a 10-year-old Campfire Girl and a teen-age Boy Scout will speak at the luncheon. Foley will preside.

Chairman Keith Merrill of the Fairfax County (Va.) unit reported $6798 in contributions, of 15.8 per cent of its quota, as of Wednesday. Fort Belvoir has reached 120 per cent of its $2000 quota.

What Am I Saying! — By Frank Morgan

The Federal Diary

FDIC Grants 3 Long Weekends Despite Official Disapproval

HOLIDAYS: The issue of long holiday weekends for Federal workers has been revived despite official frowns.

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation has taken the lead in granting its employes 4-day weekends over Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. Now employes in a score of other agencies are demanding similar benefits. The FDIC memo to employes yesterday reads:

"The corporation's offices will be closed from Thursday through Sunday, November 27 to 30; December 25 to 28, and January 1 to 4, inclusive.

"Annual leave will be charged for November 28, December 26, and January 2 to all employes having annual leave to their credit. All others will be permitted to make up for absence, thereby compensating for the time taken."

In other words, the only FDIC employes who will be required to make up for the three lost days will be those who do not have annual leave that can be used.

A similar holiday work schedule had been suggested by officials in several other agencies. However, all such plans along that line were rejected by the Federal Personnel Council after White House and Budget Bureau spokesmen disapproved them. But the FDIC action raises the issue again.

Last year Congress approved a last-minute bill which allowed Federal agencies to give their employes 4-day weekends on Christmas and New Year's.

Incidentally, Federal agencies can be expected to be excused early the afternoon of December 24—a peacetime practice that was abandoned during the war years. No early closing is planned for New Year's eve.

VA will hire about 700 new employes here by January 1, but the increase may be partially offset by the discharge of other types of workers.

Veterans' Administration had planned to hire the 700 low-paid clerical workers on December 1 to staff its actuary insurance offices that are being moved here from New York. Budget troubles forced the delay to January 1.

Only 23 employes from New York either have or will transfer down here with their jobs. The office had a peak of 1500 employes in New York. However, officials believe the job can be done here with a maximum of 725 people.

Most of the 700 new people will be in the Grade 2, 3 and 4 clerical class. People for this work will be selected from eligibles on the recent general clerical test.

On paper, VA plans to move back here before June 1 several other of its insurance offices in New York that now have upward of 2000 employes. However, Congress must first provide funds with which to make this transfer.

Meantime, VA is making another check of its offices here to see if any are overstaffed and what work, if any, can be consolidated—changes that would wipe out the jobs of several hundred employes.

PROMOTIONS: Like Patent Office and several other agencies, VA has a freeze on job reallocations to higher grades. The freeze is temporary and it will be lifted within a few weeks. The freeze in all agencies was brought about by a new law which provides no jobs can be reallocated to higher grades if they will increase the annual budgets of the agencies.

WAR ASSETS will order a big lay-off of employes next Wednesday. Between 5000 and 8000 jobs the country over will be wiped out by the order. About 350 employes here will get 30-day lay-off notices next week.

EFFICIENCY RATINGS: The new changes in the efficiency rating system will be revealed at a rating conference to be held December 2 and 3 in the Interior auditorium. They will be explained by John A. Overholt, chief of the rating system.

Other speakers will be W. J. McNeil, special assistant to the Defense Secretary; Civil Service Commissioner Arthur S. Flemming, and Donald S. Dawson, administrative assistant to the President.

CIVIL SERVICE will move its fourth regional office back here from Winston-Salem, N. C., the week of December 15 . . . The ARMY'S Quartermaster General is in need of Grade 2 and 3 typists, stenographers, and tabulating equipment. Call Republic 6700, Branch 71767, for further information . . . ANDREWS FIELD needs electrical linesmen, $1.24 to $1.52 an hour, and aircraft painters, $1.12 an hour. Phone Hillside 3200, Branch 196, for further information.

Royal Pair Starts Honeymoon After Marriage Rites in Abbey

The bridegroom stuck to his navy uniform.

London's day of days—and the day of days for the two principals, the princess, 21, the princely duke, 26—started when the crowd which had waited all night outside saw the lights of Buckingham Palace flash on at 6:47 a. m.

The princess breakfasted with her parents after rising at 7. She started dressing for the wedding at 9:10 and finished at 10:20. Then her hair was dressed.

At 11:03 a. m. Queen Mary, the bride's grandmother, left Marlborough House not far away in her limousine. The proud old lady, straight as a ramrod at 80, was cheered as her car passed down Whitehall to the church.

There were few in the crowd, perhaps, who did not remember that Queen Mary's favorite son the Duke of Windsor, whom she had raised to be King, was 3000 miles away in America—not invited to the wedding because she would not accept his wife.

Behind Queen Mary's car came that of Queen Elizabeth, who rode with Princess Margaret, the bride's sister and one of the eight bridesmaids.

Philip arrived with his best man, the Marquess of Milford Haven, from Kensington Palace where they spent the night with the bridegroom's mother, Princess Andrew, and grandmother, the Marchioness of Milford Haven.

Princess Elizabeth and King George, in a glass coach of state, left the palace to a gigantic roar of cheers at 11:16 and arrived at Abbey at 11:27 a. m.

It was 11:29 when the service started with a fanfare from the Henry V chantry behind the high altar.

The 2500 persons in the abbey—kings, queens, cabinet ministers, royal and noble and diplomatic guests—were caught instantly in an awesome spectacle of high solemnity.

The fanfares rang out during the parts of the wedding with the stirring clang of the martial music to which the princess' ancestors had gone to war centuries ago in France with their knights and bowmen.

The bridal procession started, on the arm of her father the King, the princess in her shimmering, gossamer gown with its innumerable seed pearls walked the 100 yards on a red carpet to the altar.

At the steps of the altar she suddenly stopped. The two little princes, one 5, the other 4, their kilts swinging, had lost control of the 15-foot bridal gown train.

The bridegroom had joined the party now. He turned and murmured to the King. The King, stepping out of the procession which was starting up the steps, bent down and freed the train from a candelabra with the help of the best man. The Duchess of Kent, the King's sister-in-law, looked anxiously at her son, one of the two pages. She turned to the Duchess of Gloucester, likewise a sister-in-law, whose son was the other page and the two mothers exchanged a long glance.

Again, when the newlyweds started to leave after signing the marriage register at the completion of the ceremony, the pages lost control of the train. This time Princess Margaret, as the leading bridesmaid, stepped up and helped the boys down the five steps.

The gorgeous gold and amethyst cross of Westminster led the bridal procession to the altar.

There the princess, solemn and timid, and Philip, tall, blond and militarily at attention, went through their vows. He, too, showed some nervousness and snapped rigidly upright as he stood before the officiating Archbishop of Canterbury.

"Philip, wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife . . .?" said the Archbishop. "I will," the Prince said in low tones.

"Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, wilt thou have this man . . .?" "I will," the Princess said. She was hardly audible.

It was 11:44 when the Archbishop pronounced them "man and wife together . . ."

The Archbishop of York, second ranking prelate in the Church of England, gave the wedding address.

"Notwithstanding the splendor and public significance of this occasion, this service in all essentials is the same as it would be for any cottager who might be married this afternoon in some small church in a remote village," he said.

". . . Before God and man you have made a solemn and deliberate promise that come what may, for better, for worse . . . you will always be faithful to one another . . ."

He called on them to love each other unselfishly, to show thoughtfulness and patience.

The boy choir chanted the twenty-third Psalm—"The Lord Is My Shepherd." There was a final prayer, a fanfare, and to the air of an anthem by the choir the procession went to the chapel of Edward the Confessor where the bride and bridegroom signed the register which makes marriages legal in the eyes of the civil law. The procession moved to the door and the Princess and Philip left.

I watched them go as the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march sounded from inside, where I saw the ceremony. The press of the crowd and the roar which went up from it were almost unbelievable. The gorgeously uniformed household cavalry, which provided escorts for the royal processions, formed in front of the glass coach. Elizabeth and Philip smiled and waved. Entering the carriage behind the famous Windsor gray horses, they clasped hands and kept them clasped while they went to the palace.

At the palace, the special guests had the wedding breakfast in the hall supper room, adjoining the great ballroom, at little round tables. At one end of the room celebrate was the 9-foot-high, four-tiered wedding cake which Elizabeth cut with the naval sword Philip wore. King George toasted the bridal couple.

The crowd outside had been shouting steadily for the bride and groom and at 1:34 p. m. they appeared. The King and Queen came out behind them, then Queen Mary and Princess Andrew, the bridegroom's mother, and Princess Margaret.

Still the shouting kept up and at 3:30 the bride and bridegroom with the bridesmaids came out again.

As Elizabeth and Philip started to leave for the station, they found a laughing group of kings, queens, princes and princesses in the courtyard. Suddenly Prince Bernhard of Holland went up to them and threw a big handful of rose petals on their shoulders. The others joined. The newlyweds raced laughing to the carriage.

As it left the King, hatless, stood alone waving. Years ago, he tried to refuse the crown because he had no son and he feared an unhappy life, in these times, for a reigning Queen.

Even after the bridal couple left tens of thousands of people remained outside the palace. Twice during the evening the King and Queen, the second time with Princess Margaret, had to go out on the balcony to be cheered. After the second time, the crowd started to break up—to go into the great jammed, hysterical West End to

Mrs. Guerrieri Lands in Eire On Return From London Party

Shannon, Eire, Nov. 20 (Spl.). Lois Guerrieri, Washington, D. C. mother of four children and a part-time dressmaker who attended an afternoon party at St. James's Palace in London, arrived here today en route home.

Mrs. Guerrieri, who received an invitation to the pre-wedding function after she made and sent a dress to Princess Elizabeth, left London today.

She will leave Shannon at 8 p. m. tomorrow (Friday) via TWA for New York. The plane is due to arrive in New York at 11:05 a. m. Saturday, and in Washington at 1:35 p. m.

Mrs. Guerrieri shook hands with the King and Queen during the Tuesday afternoon party at St. James's after the Queen's attention was attracted by her hat. She was sent to London by The Washington Post.

Her husband, Louis Guerrieri, is an employe of the District of Columbia engineering department who took leave from his job to help care for their four children during her journey. The Guerrieris live at 1724 S st. se.

All Hospitals Ask Fees for Indigent

Seek Contracts Paying Stated Sum For Eligible Patients

A general request for the District to pay for care of indigent patients not now receiving public assistance has been made by hospitals here, District Health Officer George C. Ruhland said yesterday.

The hospitals are now preparing statistics and case-load information to support their requests for contracts with the District for indigent care, Dr. Ruhland said.

Three hospitals, Casualty, Emergency and Childrens, now have such contracts by which the District pays a stated fee for persons eligible for tax support. They handle the overflow of cases from municipally-owned Gallinger Hospital.

For some time other private hospitals have declared that rising costs and increasingly overtaxed hospital capacity were forcing them into a position where they could no longer care for indigents without District reimbursement.

Daniel W. O'Donoghue, jr., chairman of a committee of the Hospital Council of the National Capital Area which is conducting the hospital negotiations with Dr. Ruhland, said "no formal request" had yet been made for the contracts.

Two classes of indigent and semi-indigent patients are cared for at hospitals here. Those eligible for District funds go to Gallinger Hospital or the three private hospitals holding District contracts—or, if necessary, to other private hospitals.

Health Security Administration, a private agency, directs those able to pay part-costs, and some able to pay no costs, to hospitals which receive limited fee payment from the Community Chest.

Dr. Ruhland suggested that medical schools might assigne "some of their staffs and some senior medical students" to the District's health centers.

Dr. Ruhland also urged that general hospitals expand their outpatient facilities. He said it "might be possible, if the funds could be found," for the District to pay for such care.

Churchmen Called

Liquor Store Plea Fought By Subpenas

Ministers and church leaders appeared under subpena before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday.

Robert E. Lynch, attorney for Mead's Liquors, 3919 South Capitol st., told the ABC board he had had the churchmen subpenaed in his fight on the application of Louis Brisker, 507 11th st. nw., to set up a new liquor store at 4011 South Capitol, only a block from Mead's.

The board will resume the hearing on Brisker's application at 2 p. m. today.

Two Withhold Opinion

The Rev. Frank Squires, pastor of Covenant Baptist Church, 126 Yuma st. se., said his subpena followed a letter from Attorney Lynch. He said his congregation last Sunday voted to oppose the new store "as a matter of principle." He added, however, that neither he nor his congregation wished to appear as favoring either liquor dealer in the controversy.

The Rev. Richard Pursel, pastor of Congress Heights Presbyterian Church, S. Capitol and Chesapeake sts., and Mrs. H. V. Glazier, 4319 1st st. se., a member of his church's board of trustees, said they appeared only because of the subpenas. Both declined to express an opinion, either favoring or opposing the new liquor store.

Brisker now operates a liquor store at the 11th st. address. His attorney, F. Joseph Donohue, said he proposes to move the 11th st. store to the South Capitol location in the new Washington Highlands shopping center.

Petition Introduced

H. A. Nessen, 3961 1st st. sw., a past president of the Patterson School Parent-Teacher Association, told the board "we want a neighborhood identified by fine schools and centers of worship rather than liquor stores."

Mrs. Charles A. Hagerty, 4008 1st st. sw., secretary of the Washington Highlands Citizens Association, said all but two of 60 members attending the association's last meeting voted to oppose the proposed new liquor store.

A petition with 110 signatures against the store, which Edward A. Doty, 4001 Nichols ave. sw., carried, was introduced. Among others opposing the store were Vincent C. Wahler, 4000 Nichols ave. sw., an Eleventh Precinct policeman, who said he felt an increase in liquor stores would increase the area's police problems, and Mrs. J. R. Harris, 3711 4th st. se., who declared: "I don't see how youth can be influenced for the right when such stores are around to tempt older people."

4 Policemen Face Trial Board Today

Four police privates are scheduled to ace the Police Trial Board this morning on charges of violation of police regulations.

Pvt. Robert C. Redding, 45, fined $115 two weeks ago for failure to patrol his beat and communicate with his station house on October 23, once again will face the board.

Redding, who lives at 1530 28th st. se., and has been on the force 23 years, is charged with failure to communicate with his station on the morning of November 4. He is attached to the Fifth Precinct.

Pvt. Harold W. Beechner, 47, was allegedly discovered in a restaurant on November 3 while assigned to patrol a beat in the Fourth Precinct.

Beechner, who has since been transferred to the Third Precinct, has been on the force 21 years and lives at 2244 Minnesota ave. se. He is charged with:

Failure to communicate with his station; failure to report off duty; neglect of duty; willfully telling an untrue statement to a superior officer, and conduct prejudicial to the good order and discipline of the department.

Pvt. Chester C. Harris, 34, attached to the Thirteenth Precinct, is charged with neglect of duty and conduct unbecoming an officer.

The charges arose from his reported failure to appear for roll call on November 11. A policeman for fuor years, he lives at 842 19th st. ne.

Pvt. William A. Gordon, 30, on the force a year, who lives at 121 Adams st. nw., is charged with failure to report off duty on November 5 at the Thirteenth Precinct.

Chest's Gain To Be Given At Luncheon

Results of yesterday's special drive in the Community Chest Federation campaign will be made at today's report luncheon.

Workers were urged by Chairman Edward H. Foley, jr., to devote all of yesterday to the campaign, and residential unit solicitors were asked to cover their areas in a house-to-house canvass.

Today's report luncheon, is scheduled for 12:15 p. m. at the Chamber of Commerce Building, 1615 H st. nw.

At the last progress report on Tuesday, the Chest Federation drive had realized a total of 54.1 per cent, or $2,109,352 of the $3,900,000 goal.

This compares with the $4,566,000 officially estimated by the budget committee as the actual need of the 125 Red Feather welfare and social service agencies for 1948.

All contributions and pledges received at the Chamber of Commerce Building up to 11:30 a. m. will be reported at today's luncheon, which will feature the reports of the residential unit. Business, Government, special gifts and Montgomery County units will also report. Mrs. C. Leslie Dunn will speak briefly.

Today is designated as Youth Service Day, and a 10-year-old Campfire Girl and a teen-age Boy Scout will speak at the luncheon. Foley will preside.

Chairman Keith Merrill of the Fairfax County (Va.) unit reported $6798 in contributions, of 15.8 per cent of its quota, as of Wednesday. Fort Belvoir has reached 120 per cent of its $2000 quota.

Armed Bandit Gets $25 From Cleaners

Two Women Rob Third of $262 by Pocketbook Trick

An armed robber obtained about $25 from the Aristo Cleaners and Dyers, 3427 14th st. nw., shortly after 5 p. m. yesterday, while earlier two women took a women took a third for $262.25 with the old pocketbook trick.

Mrs. Herbert

Mrs. Jessie Herbert told police that she was in the rear of the Aristo store when she heard a noise in front and went to investigate.

A young man whipped out a revolver, "waved it in my face," grabbed about $25 from the cash register and fled, she told police.

The robber was described as a white man, brown haired, wearing glasses, about five feet, 10 inches tall, weighing 135 pounds, wearing a blue overcoat and armed with a nickelplated automatic.

Savings Withdrawn

Shirley Diggs, 20, of 2016 14th st. nw., reported to police that as she emerged from a shop at 11th and F sts. nw. with another woman she had met shopping there they were accosted by a third, who said she had found a pocketbook containing $900.

She disappeared into the store for a moment and returned to say that her employer also had found a pocketbook containing $3000. She proposed dividing the money up but asked "security."

Miss Diggs withdrew money from her bank and postal savings accounts and put up $262.25, she told police, after which the women disappeared.

Mrs. Rebecca Levit of 4870 Blagden ave. nw., reported theft of a red wallet containing $300 from her pocketbook on the seat beside her at the Palace Theater.

Mrs. Myrtle K. Werner, principal of Cranch Public School, 12th and G sts. se., reported yesterday the theft of various articles from the school, including swings, a bench vise, a classroom flag and a fire extinguisher.

Billfold Stolen on Trolley

Eileen Talbert, 22, of 2902 Bladensburg rd. ne., report theft of a billfold containing $10 when she was jostled by a man while riding the Seat Pleasant streetcar.

Maurice A. Greenberg, 653 Kenyon st. nw., reported that theives who forced the door of his garage at the rear of 459 New York ave. nw., took two .32 caliber automatics, a 38 caliber revolver, two fifths of whisky, and $10 in coins.

Moran Forbes of the Distinctive Specialties Co., 1413 H st. nw., reported that two cigarette lighters and a table model radio were stolen from the store. Police evaluated the loss at $62.50.

Seasonal Note

Fake Santas Keep Police Busy Here

The police are angry enough to arrest Santa Claus.

In epidemic proportions, bogus Santas have made their seasonal visits to Washington, grabbing momentary custody of junior while a team-mate takes his picture.

Police are irate. Parents are irate. Junior is disillusioned. "It's tough on the little ones who thrill and get saucer-eyed at seeing one Santa Claus and then round the corner and see another," grumbled Capt. Robert C. Pearce, who is no skeptic about Santa Claus.

If the film-flamming Santas have a street photographer's license and a solicitor's license about all police can do is frown and cluck their tongues.

Parents, if they are aroused enough, police said, can go to Municipal Court and swear out a warrant on assault charges.

Police regulations forbid anyone from standing more than five minutes in the same location in such intent, but judicial interpretation is hazy on what "same location" means.

Another law forbids "catching hold or soliciting" a person to "induce or compel them to buy an article or thing from any store or stand."

The photographer Santas don't operate from a store or stand, so they are not liable to arrest, Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert C. Chalfonte said.

Brief Case Missing

Loss of a yellow leather brief case containing $1170 in unindorsed checks and traveler's checks was reported to police by Senor Asdrubal Urdanetta, former commercial counselor at the Venezuelan Embassy. Urdanetta, who lives in New York City, told police he left the brief case in a taxicab about 5 p. m. Wednesday.

Trial Set on Appeal

Joseph A. Wagstaff, jr., 23, of 5506 Grove st., Chevy Chase, Md., will be tried in Montgomery County Circuit Court on December 8 on a malicious property destruction charge, Attorney Barnard Welsh said yesterday.

The case was appealed from Bethesda Police Court, where Judge Warren Browning found Wagstaff guilty of the offense. Another conviction appealed, that of assaulting a police officer, will be dropped, Welsh said.

Truck Overturns

For the third time in as many weeks, a big trailer truck turned over on Route 211 near Centerville, Fairfax County, early yesterday, spilling its contents of calves and hogs over the countryside.

Two weeks ago a truck load of calves and last week a 4500-gallon gasoline truck turned over losing half its cargo.

A Fairfax police said the truck yesterday was carrying 72 hogs and 50 young beef cattle to the Baltimore stockyards when driver Cleveland J. Bailey, Remington, Va., apparently fell asleep at the wheel. A few pigs were the only casualties.

Prayers for Board Set

A meeting to pray for the Board of Education was called yesterday by the National Negro Council.

Edgar G. Brown, director, said the meeting will be held at 9 a. m. Sunday in Lafayette Park in front of the White House.

The organization has appealed to President Truman to "use his good offices now to order abolition of all educational inequalities in the Nation's Capital," Brown said. The council, he said, opposed the transfer of five white schools to use by Negro children, approved Wednesday by the Board of Education.

Yule Show Planned

Plans for a spectacular "Holiday Lane" along Georgia ave. in Silver Spring were disclosed yesterday by merchants who guessed hopefully it would attract more than 100,000 persons to their stores for Christmas shopping.

Plans completed thus far will cost more than $6000, the merchants said, and it is hoped more than 100 stores in the Silver Spring area will participate.

A "Holiday House" will be erected in front of the Silver Spring Armory and it will serve as headquarters for the affair.

Yule Tree Plans Mapped

Plans for this year's National Community Christmas tree, to be erected on the south lawn of the White House, were started yesterday at a meeting at the Board of Trade.

Chairman of a 29-member Christmas Tree Committee, which will supervise erection of the tree and the lighting ceremony Christmas Eve night, is Miss Sibyl Baker, 3100 Newark ave. nw., of the Recreation Board.

Sponsoring this year's Christmas tree services, Miss Baker said, will be the District Recreation Board, the National Capital Parks, the Electric Institute of Washington, the American Forestry Association and the Greater National Capital Committee of the Board of Trade.

Two Sailors Held In Yoking of Cabbie

Two sailors were held by police yesterday in the yoking and robbery of a cab driver from whom $18 was taken Wednesday night.

The sailors are Seamen 1/s William L. Morris, 29, and Clyde Selby, 22, of Quarters K, Arlington, Va.

They were arrested in a tavern on 11th st. by Detective Sergts. John Boccina of the fugitive squad, and Ernest Winters of the robbery squad about 11:30 p. m., about 30 minutes after Joseph W. Fulton, 46, a Yellow cab driver living in the 1100 block of New Hampshire ave. nw., reported to police that he had been robbed.

Court Holds 2 on Charge Of Extortion

Two men were held yesterday by Municipal Court Judge Armond W. Scott on charges that they impersonated police officers and attempted extortion. Bond was set at $1500 and their cases were continued until December 14.

One of the men, John B. Skrosky, 32, 25 E st. nw., was held on an additional charge of robbery. The other man is James Bennet Norton, 32, of the same address.

Both men were arrested by robbery squad detectives on a description furnished them by the complainant, an elderly man. According to the police the two men approached the complainant, representing themselves as detectives, and accusing him of a sex offense.

Police say they told the complainant they would have to hold him under a $1000 bond. The man agreed to put up the bond at a police station or headquarters.

According to police the defendants then told the complainant that they would quash the case upon payment of $100 each. The man refused and the defendants fled. The complainant reported the incident to police, they said.

At a police line-up he identified both men. At the same lineup the victim of a robbery early Sunday morning, Addie W. Embrey, 1900 Southren ave. se., identified Skrosky as one of the men who held him up and robbed him of 41 and his overcoat, police reported.

Hope's Faith Finds a Way . . .

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

HELPS AT HOME Pretty Hope Henderson, 16-year-old cheer leader of Montgomery Blair High School, Silver Spring, Md., who injured her spine October 3 while practicing stunts which she hoped to perform at the football game between her school and Georgetown Prep, is out of bed and up and around again. Doctors, who at first held little hope for her full recovery, are amazed at her progress. She cannot yet walk up steps, or lift heavy objects, but Hope is now able to move actively about her home, 745 Thayer ave. And she's looking forward to future school dances

Rededication Week Opened In Meetings

Government and civic groups met yesterday to mark the opening of Rededication Week in Washington.

The week will be one of special observances dedicated to the American heritage and leading up to the arrival of the Freedom Train on Thanksgiving Day.

Announcement that President Truman would visit the collection of famous historical documents on the train next Friday was made by John A. Reilly, chairman of Rededication Week, at a program attended by almost 2000 Government employes yesterday in the Department Auditorium.

Truman Sends Greetings

The presidential message brought greetings to the program participants and pledged Mr. Truman's approval, cooperation and support for the rededication.

Attorney General Tom C. Clark told the Federal workers that "the lighthouse of freedom cannot be guarded by Rip Van Winkles."

Clark said he thought it fitting that the first day of Rededication Week was "Government Day," because "you who carry out the policies of the Government have a double responsibility, to protect not only your own freedom but also that of millions of other Americans."

District Commissioner Guy Mason said he hoped everyone would read the basic documents of United States freedom so we can be united "against the foe that is nibbling at our door." United States District Attorney George Morris Fay acted as chairman, and led in reciting a "Freedom Pledge."

Defends Capitalism

Reilly, who is president of the Board of Trade, had earlier addressed the Cosmopolitan Club in a defense of the capitaliste system and economic competition.

Warning that "our hard-gotten gains" in liberty and human rights are "being swept away," Reilly said America should "reacquaint herself with her own best way of life," and not "throw it away before she has completely understood it and practiced it."

Rededication programs were also held at the Department of Agriculture an dthe National Defense Department. Employes of the latter heard Lieut Gen. Idwal H. Edwards of the Air Force.

A "Youth Day" program will be broadcast over WWDC at 1 p. m. today. Prepared by students and teachers of the public school system, it will be heard in special assemblies at all schools.

Breaks Leg in Leap

2 Injured In 2d Floor Home Fire

Two persons were injured, one in jumping from a second story window, when fire broke out yesterday afternoon in an alley dwelling behind 517 New Jersey ave. nw.

The blaze, which started in a wood stove, ruined the upper floor of the two-story brick building.

Pearl Holmes, 43, of College Park, Md., received a fractured left leg when she jumped from the window to escape the smoke and flames. She was treated at Casualty Hospital and transferred to Gallinger Hospital.

George F. Travis, 54, an occupant, said she was cooking supper on the stove, when the flames shot up.

Engine Company No. 3 and Truck Company No. 1, called by phone at 1:59 p. m. and a box alarm at 2 p. m., brought the blaze under control quickly.

M. H. Dalberg, Government Lawyer, Dies

Melvin H. Dalberg, 71, prominent Government attorney, died yesterday at Georgetown University Hospital after a two weeks' illness.

Mr. Dalberg

Mr. Dalberg, who gave up his New York City law practice in 1934 when appointed by President Roosevelt as chief trial examiner for the Federal Communications Commission, had since served, in turn, with the Federal Power Commission, the United States Maritime Commission and the Department of Justice.

He had been with the Department of Justice since 1945, and for the past four months in its Office of Alien Property Custodian. At his death he was living at the Dresden Apartments, Connecticut ave. and Kalorama rd. nw.

Close Friend of Roosevelt

His friends here recall his "close friendship" with President Roosevelt, a relationship resulting from Mr. Dalberg's active part in the Wilson presidential campaign of 1912. At that time he was chairman of the speakers' bureau of the Democratic Party.

He was born in St. Louis, Mo., and was graduated from Columbia University in 1894. Two years later he received a bachelor of laws degree from Columbia Law School.

From 1896 to 1898, when he opened his New York law office, he wrote for several Manhattan newspapers.

Mr. Dalberg was assistant tax commissioner of New York City from 1906 to 1908, and between 1906 and 1907 was a member of the board of inspectors of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. there.

Managed Opera Company

For several years during his early legal career he managed a German opera company on its tours of this country.

He was a member of the National Press Club, the FCC Bar Association, the Columbia University and Columbia Law School Alumni Associations, the Columbia University Club of Washington and the Zeta Psi Fraternity.

He is survived by a daughter, Mrs. L. T. Steele of New York City.

Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. today at the S. H. Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw.

Walter Scott Royer, 78, retired Washington stock broker, died unexpectedly Wednesday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Wayne Johnson, at Worton, Md.

Mr. Royer, of 5525 Lincoln st., Bethesda, Md., was a native of Carey, Ohio. He came to Washington about 1889.

A stock broker for many years, he was associated with John L. Edwards & Co. at the time of his retirement about 15 years ago.

Mr. Royer was a member of Osiris Lodge No. 26, A. F. and A. M.; Albert Pike Consistory of the Scottish Rite, and Almas Temple of the Shrine.

Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Margaret Pate Royer; two daughters, Mrs. John L. Reddy of Washington and Mrs. Johnson of Worton and New York City; a son, Walter Earle Royer, Bethesda; six grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Saturday at the Pumphrey Funeral Home, 7557 Wisconsin ave., Bethesda, with burial in Rock Creek Cemetery.

G. R. Shields, Lawyer Here, Dead at 68

George R. Shields, 68, District lawyer, died yesterday at Georgetown University Hospital after a short illness.

Mr. Shields

A native of Pigeon Forge, Tenn., he was a graduate of Murphy Collegiate Institute, and attended George Peabody Teachers College, Nashville, Tenn. For several years he taught school in Tennessee.

In 1911 Mr. Shields was admitted to the District bar, and one year later received an LL.M. degree from National University Law School.

For the past 15 years he had lived at his home, Gray Rocks, Silver Spring, Md. He was a member of the Masons, the University Club, the National Press Club, the American and District Bar Associations.

His wife, Mrs. Agnes Hill Shields, died last February. He is survived by a son, Fred W. Shields, Mount Vernon, Va.; a daughter, Mrs. Philip Shore, 6503 Fulton st., Chevy Chase, and two grandchildren, Nancy and Roger Shields, Lincoln Park, N. Yanks Demand That Chandler Investigate Player Deals Wrecking St. Louis Browns

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

FIGHT ON, TEAM—For a couple of days now I have been trying to find something nice to say about the George Washington U. football team that comes up to its game with Georgetown tomorrow at Griffith Stadium, still seeking its first victory of the season. And now, Eureka!

POVICH

The George Washington kids, be it known, are entitled to one boast. They're the only team, except Penn, to score two touchdowns against Virginia this season.

All season long Skip Stahley's lads have been having a sorry time of it. Last week at Detroit when they were out in front, 6-0, in the final quarter against Wayne University, they got a sour break. Wayne got the ball on the GWU 49-yard line on a pass interference penalty, and banged out the winning touchdown on two quick plays.

Even sadder for the Colonials was that episode at Lexington, Va., earlier in the season when they had V. M. I. licked 7 to 6, with the final gun cocked and ready for firing. One play remained in the ball game and a substitute V. M. I. quarterback threw a 30-yard touchdown pass to conk the Colonials with a 13-7 defeat.

Georgetown is favored to lick 'em by two touchdowns tomorrow in the seventeenth game of their series. The Colonials haven't won any of 'em. Closest they came was the 0-0 tie of 1907. But methinks tomorrow they'll be the sentimental favorites.

THAT BROWN TASTE—The St. Louis Browns couldn't be wrecking their ball club more systematically if they were using a bulldozer. In the past week they've traded off their best shortstop, their three best pitchers, and their only first baseman. The rest of the league is panicked by the Red Sox's acquisition of Vernon Stephens and Jack Kramer from the Browns.

It's the biggest raid on a downtrodden ball club that needs cash since the Yankees bought up the grist of Red Sox stars from the impoverished Red Sox of Harry Frazee about 1920. In succession, Babe Ruth, Joe Bush, Wally Schang, Waite Hoyt, Everett Scott and Joe Dugan were bought from Boston by the rich Yanks, who almost immediately won three straight pennants.

"It's not going to help our league any," comments Connie Mack of the Browns' sales. Coming from Mack, however, that has a strange ring. He sold off Jimmy Foxx, Lefty Grove, Rube Walberg, Mickey Cochrane, Max Bishop and Al Simmons, I recall, and hasn't finished in the first division in the last 14 seasons.

PROS AND CONS—The fussin' and feudin' between the National Football League and its lusty young rival, the All-American Conference, broke out anew this week in New York. Tim Mara, owner of the Giants of the NFL, scornfully declared the new league is "running out of millionaires," and invited the Cleveland and San Francisco clubs to join up with the NFL.

Promptly, Dan Topping, owner of the New York Yankees of the AAC, countered with telegrams from Arthur McBride of Cleveland and John Morabito of San Francisco, ridiculing any desire to quit the Conference. This week, Topping can afford to be expansive, anyway.

Topping's Yankee are in head-to-head conflict with the Giants for the patronage of New York fans this week, and will do very well. His team plays the league-leading Cleveland Browns while the winless Giants, experiencing their worst season in the league, take on the Green Bay Packers. Mara may have chosen a poor time to scoff at the All-American Conference, because scarcely a half mile from the Polo Grounds the new league will be outdrawing his Giants perhaps by as many of 20,000 fans.

BREAK FOR FANS—The surge of the Yankee football team in New York is a distinct break for the football-going public, which is no longer bound up in the National Football League monopoly. When the Giants were operating the only game in town, they had a tight hold on the fans with season tickets, who once buying the tickets, had no other choice of games.

Now the New York fan, with the Yankees operating in the Conference, can take his choice of the better attraction. That puts it strictly up to the team owners to make good with the fans, who formerly were asked to invest in season tickets even before they knew the kind of football they would watch.

It's no secret that the All-America Conference is eyeing Washington. Only the lack of a suitable stadium at this time may be keeping 'em out. In a year when the Redskins are down in the race, they may be fortunate they don't have to meet the kind of a challenge the New York Giants now have to contend with.

Bob Elliott Top Player Invaluable

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—To Bob Elliott goes the distinction of having been the first third baseman in the major leagues ever to have been proclaimed the most valuable player of his circuit.

The hard-hitting Boston Braves infielder was named the National League's MVP by a 24-man committee of the Baseball Writers Association. He received 205 votes in the balloting for the Kenesaw Mountain Landis Memorial Award to win handily over Ewell Blackwell, Cincinnati's no-run, no-hit pitcher, who placed second with 175 votes.

Johnny Mize, New York first baseman who tied with Pittsburgh's Ralph Kiner for the home run championship of the majors with 51, was third with 144 and Bruce Edwards, aggressive Brooklyn Dodger catcher, was fourth with 140.

Elliott, who came to the Braves from the Pirates in September of 1946 in a trade for Billy Herman, was the first member of a non-pennant-winning team to earn the award since Ernie Lombardi of the fourth place Reds was named in 1938. Elliott batted .315 last season and drove in 113 runs. He hit 22 homers.

American Five Lists Strong 24-Game Card

American, tied for third in the Mason Dixon Conference last season, faces some tough nonconference opposition.

The Eagles travel to C. C. N. Y. and University of Connecticut after two warm-up games. These teams were ranked, respectively, fourth and fifth in the East last year.

Other top-ranking fives to be met are Penn State and Muhlenberg.

The schedule:
November 22, Alumni; 24, Marine Corps Institute; 29, at City College of New York.
December 1, at University of Connecticut; 5, University of Baltimore; 6, Maryland State Teachers; 11, Mount St. Mary's; 13, Muhlenberg; 17, Western Maryland.
January 5, Loyola of Baltimore; 7, at Penn State; 10, Quantico Marines; 12, Catholic University; 14, at Quantico Marines; 17, University of Connecticut.
February 4, Randolph Macon; 6, at University of Scranton; 7, at Muhlenberg; 10, at Mount St. Mary's; 14, Johns Hopkins; 16, at Western Maryland; 18, at Catholic University; 23, at Loyola of Baltimore; 28, at Randolph Macon.
March 4, 5, 6, Mason Dixon Conference Tournament in Baltimore.

3 Vital Games In Boys League

Merrick and Alexandria, 120-pound teams, battle for leadership in their division in the Boys Club of Washington Football Conference tomorrow on the Ellipse.

Both teams sport identical four and one records.

In other conference games involving league leads, undefeated and unscored upon Eastern sends its 105-pound team against second-place Georgetown, and Georgetown's undefeated 90-pound eleven faces Eastern.

The day will be a homecoming celebration for Georgetown and a full schedule of passing and punting contests and band music is planned.

The schedule:
90-pound class: 9:30 a. m.—Alexandria vs. Merrick, Trinidad vs. Georgetown.
90-pound class: 10:30—Eastern vs. Georgetown, Merrick vs. Trinidad.
105-pound class: 11:30—Eastern vs. Georgetown, Alexandria vs. Merrick.

Brewers May Get Trimming in Deal For Young Pitcher

Willards, Md., Nov. 20 (AP).—The Milwaukee Brewers got a 17-year-old pitcher today but the Boston Braves' farm system had to buy him a barber shop before he would sign the contract.

Ray Bradford, right-hander who won 19 and lost 3 for his high school, Junior American Legion and Central Shore Amateur League teams last season, insisted the barber shop be made part of the deal.

Ray entered barber college in Baltimore after graduating from Pittsville, Md., High School last spring and had bought more than $1000 worth of equipment to set up a shop here in partnership with his high school battery mate, Bob Davis.

Last week he turned down offers by the Philadelphia Athletics and the Pittsburgh Pirates because he didn't want to leave town still owing for the barbering equipment.

Alumni Gather For Game Broadcast

More than 400 Vanderbilt alumni will gather at the Lafayette Hotel tomorrow at 2 p. m. to listen to a radio broadcast of the Maryland-Vanderbilt football game to be played at Nashville, Tenn.

California-Stanford rooters will hear their game broadcast at the Washington Hotel at 4:30 p. m.

Prominent Grads Heated Up Over Tech-Central Battle

Prominent alumni of Central and McKinley Tech high schools were making plans yesterday to turn the big Interhigh championship football game into a rousing reunion at Griffith Stadium the night of November 28.

Among the alumni of the two schools are Gen. Brehon Somervell, wartime commander of the Army Service Forces; J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and Lieut. Gen. Elwood Quesada, commander of the tactical air force at Langley Field, Va.

Comdr. Andrew Lee, president of the Central Alumni Association, said: "We'll be out there in full force."

Bryon Hayden, jr., founder of the Tech Alumni Circle T club, said: "We'll all be out there to put the hex on Central."

Plan Bonfire Rally

Bob Newby, secretary of the Central Alumni C Club, said that his group would go the Tech boys one better, by staging a big pregame Central rally, with bonfires that would equal those of "the good old days."

General Somervell, Central graduate of 1909, now president of the Koppers Co., in Pittsburgh, said yesterday that he was going to Philadelphia to see the Army-Navy game, November 29, and that we would try to take in the Tech-Central game.

"I remember those old Tech-Central games, when we all went out to cheer for Central. We always were the better team, and I'm sure that this year is no exception. Central is a cinch to win," he said.

Former Tech Captain

General Quesada, who led the Ninth Tactical Air Command in the African and Italian invasions during the war, was captain and quarterback of the 1922 Tech team.

He recalled yesterday, "We lost that game, 12-6, our points coming on two drop-kick field goals by Charlie Pugh. It was a rough game, and even though we lost, I always felt we had a better team. I know that Tech will come through to wrap the football around Central's neck."

Dodgers Buy St. Paul Club

St. Paul, Nov. 20 (AP).—The St. Paul baseball club today was sold to the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Sale of the Saints was announced jointly by Walter Seeger, president of the St. Paul Club, and Branch Rickey, president of the Brooklyn Dodgers.

The amount of money involved in the deal was not revealed. At present, the Saints have 34 players on their roster.

Potomac Post No. 40 eleven meets Falls Church Garage in an unlimited class football clash Sunday at 2 p. m. on the Palisades Field at Edmunds and Sherrier pl. nw.

Terps' Seibert Hurts Shoulder

Halfback Vern Seibert, Maryland's 150-pound scatback, injured a shoulder so severely in yesterday's practice session that he probably won't be able to play against Vanderbilt Saturday.

Seibert is suffering from a possible shoulder separation. He alternated with Johnny Idzik, another fleet-footed Old Liner, in the left-halfback spot and is Maryland's No. 1 safety man. Despite his size, Seibert is considered one of the best defensive backs on the Terps have.

Another last-minute setback to Maryland was the illness of Tackle Joe Drach, a defensive wheelhorse against North Carolina last Saturday, missed practice yesterday. He was confined to the infirmary with a 102-degree temperature.

Werner Won't Go

Halfback Hubie Werner, out since the Richmond game in October with a bad knee, was re-injured in the final hard drill for the Commodores and won't even make the trip to Nashville.

Otherwise, the Terps are in good shape. A party of about 49 players, coaches, trainers, managers and newspapermen will leave for Nashville at 9:30 this morning via charted plane. The Old Liners will hold a brief signal drill on Vanderbilt's Dudley Field this afternoon.

Vanderbilt, considered even stronger than North Carolina, has been installed a two-touchdown favorite.—MORRIS SIEGEL.

Lions Get More Help

The improved Lions' sextet will have another newcomer in the lineup tonight against the Philadelphia Rockets in an American League game at Uline Arena.

Herb Lovett, 6-foot, 170-pound right winger from Kansas City of the United States League, joined the home club yesterday and is expected to make his debut.

Although the Lions beat the Rockets here, 6-2, they face a much stronger club. One, in fact, that handed them a 7-0 setback in Philadelphia.

Phil Hergesheimer, league-leading scorer last year with 92 points, will play here for the first time after being sidelined with a broken jaw. Other recent Rocket acquisitions are Goalie Harvey Jessiman, former leading goalie with Omaha of the United States League, and Jimmy Jamieson, a hot center.

Highs' Title Game Tickets

Ticket information about the Central-McKinley game at Griffith Stadium the night of November 28, for the Interhigh football championship:

Tickets are on sale at Griffith Stadium, the Fairway Sports Shop, 1328 G st. nw., and the lobby of The Washington Post (The Post's ticket counter will be open from 8 a. m. to 9 p. m. daily).

Prices for reserved seats are $1.80 and $2.40, including tax. General admission (unreserved) seats, $1.20, including tax, will be sold at the ball park only the day of the game.

Parents of students may purchase tickets at the high schools.

Students who hold athletic cards will be admitted for 25 cents if they purchase tickets at their respective schools by November 26, last day of school before the Thanksgiving holidays. Thereafter students must pay regular prices.

Students at private, parochial and county schools also may purchase 25-cent tickets, if they hold athletic cards. These 25-cent tickets will be available at the various schools.

Proceeds of the game will go to the athletic funds of the eight Interhighs, and to the Community Chest. The game is under the sponsorship of the Board of Education and The Washington Post.

Muncrief, Judnich Go To Tribe in Third Trade

St. Louis, Nov. 19 (AP).—The St. Louis Browns turned another player deal today—their third in less than a week—as General Manager Bill DeWitt plunged ahead with hybla-headed plans to lift the club out of the cellar, provide new faces and acquire much-needed cash.

The latest transaction sent two more Brownie regulars — First Baseman Walt Judnich and Pitcher Bob Muncrief—to the Cleveland Indians for Pitcher Bryan Stephens, Outfielder Joe Frazier, a player still to be named and an indicated $25,000 or more in cash.

The deal followed quickly two trades with the Boston Red Sox which drew criticism from the veteran Connie Mack and left the Brownies with only three regulars from their surprise pennant-winning club of 1944 still on their roster.

O'Neill, Veeck Join Mack

Mack, who disposed of most of the Philadelphia Athletics' top pitchers and his great catcher, Mickey Cochrane, during the winter of 1933, voiced the opinion that the deals with the Red Sox "apparently have wrecked" the Browns "and are not going to help our league any."

He joined Steve O'Neill of the Detroit Tigers and Bill Veeck of Cleveland in the belief that the Browns' deals with Boston have given Joe McCarthy of the Red Sox the green light on the 1948 pennant road.

These trades, in which the Browns acquired a bundle of cash reported around $300,000 but no players of established renown, was noteworthy, in the view of rival American League moguls, from the standpoint of what the pennant-contending Red Sox obtained.

The particular Boston acquisitions causing concern to these rivals are Shortstop Vern Stephens, American League home run king a few seasons ago, and unpredictable right-hander Jack Kramer, both of whom can come up with stellar performances when in the mood.

To all this, De Witt, who served an apprenticeship under Branch Rickey when that noted David Harum was with the St. Louis Cardinals, replies:

"We are not interested in 'name' players. We had 'name' players last year and finished in the cellar. We want younger men who will help the club in years to come."

The Browns admittedly had a poor season financially in 1947 when paid attendances often fell below the 1000 mark and even as low as 300, but the cash considerations in the three deals have left more than just small change in the coffers.

Whether any of this new cash will be spent on new players "depends on just what's available in the way of players," said De Witt.

May Trade Some More

He has peddled six players this week, received 13 in exchange and will trade any "we have left if we think it may help us in our complete overhaul program."

Among those still around are Paul Lehner, an outstanding rookie outfielder last year; Bobby Dillinger, the bespectacled third baseman who led the league in stolen bases in 1947, and Jeff Heath, the husky long-hitting outfielder.

Dean Has Only Self to Remind Him of Stardom

Dallas, Nov. 20 (AP).—Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean was plumb burned up today.

The voluble Dean, mad as a hornet, said "it ain't gonna be healthy for that guy if old Diz ever lays his hands on him." His were his losses:

The Hertz award for the outstanding athlete in America, 1934.

The Chicago Advertising League award for 1938.

The Philadelphia Sports Writers Trophy as the most courageous athlete in America in 1938 when he pitched in the World Series with an ailing arm and almost beat the New York Yankees.

Southern California vs. UCLA—A healthy vote for Southern Cal.

Tulane vs. Notre Dame—As usual, Notre Dame.

Louisiana State vs. Alabama—Three cheers and a big vote for Alabama.

Ohio State vs. Michigan—Look for the Wolverines to pull out all the stops in this one, their last appearance of the regular season, and carry a perfect, as well as awesome, record to Pasadena. Michigan.

Penn State vs. Pittsburgh—Here's where the Nittany Lions complete a perfect season and avenge last year's 14-7 defeat with a shower of touchdowns.

Rice vs. Texas Christian—Mark it down for Rice.

North Carolina vs. Duke—The Tar Heels can knock Duke out of the Southern Conferenee lead, although they can't win the title unless William and Mary bows to Richmond. North Carolina.

Oklahoma vs. Nebraska—The Sooners need this one to clinch a tie for the Bib Six crown. Should get it.

Missouri vs. Kansas—Kansas can clinch a Big Six tie here, but the winner will be the undisputed champion if Oklahoma loses. Kansas.

Syracuse vs. Columbia—The Lions will be shooting for their fifth win in a row and their fourth straight shutout. Columbia.

Dan Topping Fears Sales Cut League To '7 Teams'

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—The New York Yankees declared tonight they would ask Commissioner A. B. Chandler and President Will Harridge of the American League to open a "complete investigation" of the situation at St. Louis which has caused the St. Louis Browns to dispose of their star players in recent days.

In a statement signed by Daniel R. Topping, their president, the Yankees said they did not want "to see the American League become a seven-club league," and that they believed "something radical must be done to bring about discontinuation of these trades."

Something to Say Later

Chandler, contacted at his Versailles, Ky., home said he had no comment to make at this time, but indicated he would have something to say later.

Harridge, at Chicago, said, "I have nothing to say until I receive the (Yank) request."

Yankee officials were in a huddle most of the day before reaching their decision to protect the Browns' actions. They were said to have been in telephone touch with Del Webb, co-owner and vice president of the club, who is in Arizona.

The statement said:

Bad Enough in St. Louis

"It is the desire and intention of the New York Yankees to bring to the attention of President William Harridge and Commissioner A. D. Chandler our feelings of alarm over the situation caused by the actions of the St. Louis Browns in their recent selling trades of star ballplayers.

"We are not concerned with the acquisition of these players by the Boston Red Sox and the Cleveland Indians, but are concerned with the effect it has on the St. Louis situation—which is not good at best—and believe something radical must be done to bring about discontinuation of these trades.

"We, on our part, do not want to see the American League become a seven-club league. We do not want another 'Old Phillies' situation in the American League.

"The Yanks will request that, through Commissioner Chandler and President Harridge, a complete investigation of the situation be made."

'Bad Situation,' Says Griffith

"It's a bad situation," commented Nat Owner Clark Griffith last night on the wholesale player sales the Brownies have indulged in the last few days.

"It's a pity that they're selling those fellows to the top clubs," Griff added. "The only thing I can see is that they got disgusted with the team after the poor showing this year and decided to clean house. It's hard on the league. They must have to raise money out there and this was the only way out."

Griff said he didn't think the sales presage a transfer of the Brownie franchise to another city.

Rockets Close Season Tonight

Chicago, Nov. 20 (AP).—The Chicago Rockets of the All-America Conference, defeated in 10 of their 11 games, close their disastrous home season tomorrow night against the San Francisco 49ers in Soldier Field.

The Rockets' only victory was achieved, 27-21, over the Baltimore Colts here November 9.

Referee Slaps VPI Player, Apologies Make Things O. K.

Richmond, Va., Nov. 20 (AP).—The Richmond News Leader today quoted Floyd Bowles, Virginia Tech quarterback as saying that he was slapped on the cheek by Referee Jake Miller, of Elkins, W. Va., during last Saturday's football game between Tech and the University of Richmond at Blacksburg.

The paper printed a 250-word telegram from Bowles, who said that Miller apologized to him and to Tech Head Coach Jimmy Kitts. Asked about the alleged slapping incident Monday, Kitts said there was no incident and that Miller could "referee any of our games at any time."

Bowles, in his statement, said that late in the game "I was involved in a very messy incident.

"It occurred when our fullback, Ray Beasley, was tackled on an attempted end run, Bowles said. 'Several of my teammates and myself thought the Richmond man who made the tackle was guilty of roughing Beasley by twisting his neck after they were on the ground. I rushed up to the referee and complained that the action was illegal.

"He said that it was a perfectly legal tackle. During the course of this two-sentence debate, I touched the ball, which was held by the referee and extended toward me, and it squirmed out of his hands. He immediately slapped my cheek with his right hand."

Bowles said that when Miller informed him his action "would cost my team 15 yards, his index finger was stuck in my mouth."

His 78th

Beanie Caps and Screeching Dames Do Not Win Games'

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (AP).—A two-man aerial raiding party took off in a Cub plane today to plaster the Western Maryland campus at Westminster with propaganda leaflets intended to demoralize the enemy on the eve of the Western Maryland-Johns Hopkins football game here Saturday.

Stuart Friant, the pilot, and Bombardier Milton Roberts were armed with 11,000 leaflets which proclaimed:

"You may start the game Green and Gold but you'll wind up Black and Blue.

"Beanie caps and screeching dames cannot win football games."

Laran Draws Away in Stretch Duel to Win Bowie Feature by 4 Lengths

Jockey Kirk Also Wins With Hefty

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Bowie, Md., Nov. 20.—E. A. Nicodemus' Laran drew out to an easy victory in the Martha Raye purse, featuring the Thursday program here.

Jockey Carson Kirk, of Silver Spring, Md., booted the son of Hairan home four lengths in advance of W. Newmeyer's Balu Mike with the latter a half length in front of the Pentagon Stable's Bahrameter, coupled with the winner as the Trainer F. A. Bonsal entry.

The crowd of 8000, including Martha Raye who is appearing at a Washington night spot, installed T. T. Mott's Pebalong as the favorite and watched the son of Big Pebble rally only mildly to finish a beaten-off fourth in the field of eight fair 3-year-olds.

The Bonsal entry paid a $7 mutuel in the role of second choice and Laran was clocked in 1:47 1/5 for the mile and a sixteenth. The track was in the fastest condition to date and a warm sun appeared just before the feature.

Laran Always in Contention

Kirk never had Laran far from the front. Saracen Miss took the lead early and drew out with Soma Lad closest and Laran being in third position.

Leaving the backstretch, Saracen Miss and Soma Lad began to tire and Kirk placed Laran to a drive. The gelding responded by moving to the front. Bahrameter and Balu Mike then made their bids with each looking like a probable winner in the earth stretch.

However, Bahrameter faltered and Balu Mike hung. Laran, with some punch laft, drew out in the final 20 yards.

The victory made it four victories in 17 tries this year for Laran. The 3-year-old picked up $1800 today to bring his 1947 earnings to $10,725.

Three-year-olds also competed in the second best offering of the day—the Art Brown Purse. The winner was E. B. Townsend's Harold Harter, a $4 favorite. B. F. Christmas' Laurania was second with Mrs. W. W. Vaughan's Neddie Gal third.

Harold Harter, with Jockey A. Gray aboard, shook off several challenges and held on with good courage in the final drive.

Jockey Kirk rode another winner in addition to Laran. He piloted High Ground Stable's Hefty to victory in the fourth, a test of six furlongs for 2-year-old.

Hefty, warming up for the $10,000 added Endurance Handicap, not only won but worked out an extra quarter. Hefty led Wayne Kendrick's Equisun into the wire with Cedar Farm's No Bull third. Hefty paid $3 and stepped the three quarters in 1:13 1/5.

Solunar Tables

The schedule of Solunar Periods, as printed below, has been taken from John Alden Knight's SOLUNAR TABLES. Plan your days so that you will be fishing in good territory or hunting in good cover during these times. If you wish to find the best sport that each day has to offer.

The Major Periods are shown in boldface type. These begin at the times shown and last for an hour and a half or two hours thereafter. The Minor Periods, shown in regular type, are of somewhat shorter duration.

Use Eastern Standard Time

Must Bump Pitt

Final Hurdle Gives Higgins The Jitters

State College, Pa., Nov. 20 (AP).—Bob Higgins, who has been coaching college football teams for 28 years, admitted today he's "just plain jittery" on the threshold of his first all-victorious season.

Higgins' Penn State eleven, possibly the best in Nittany Lion history, runs up against oft-beaten Pittsburgh in its season finale Saturday and, Higgins offered cautiously, "Pitt has always given us trouble."

He could have said that again. Last year, an underdog Panther eleven rose up to smack down Penn State after it had beaten Navy. In 1940, Penn State lost an unblemished record and a Rose Bowl bid as Pitt engineered a 20-7 upset.

"It's funny," Higgins said, "how jumpy the well-wishers can make you. Sure, I feel very good about our record (eight wins against no losses) but I wish people would stop reminding me about it."

"Sometimes it's best," he added, "to lose your first game or two. Then you don't have to worry about pressure."

And it's that pressure that Higgins has been cautioning his team against all week as it tapered off practicing. Penn State has the best record in the country both offensively and defensively.

"But don't sell that Pitt line short," Higgins said, pointing out that the Panthers have played one of the Nation's stiffest schedules and have held such clubs as Notre Dame and Illinois to respectable first-half scores.

"Of course they're not as deep as we are," he said, "and that's what I hope will make the difference. I think we can get by."

Higgins said his main objective is Pitt. He sidetracked all inquiries about postseason bowl games by saying it was up to the team to decide; that the Lions had not committed themselves to any January 1 dates.

Penn State's squad includes two Negro stars, Back Wally Triplett and End Dennie Hoggard.

"Of course we're not playing any games without them," Higgins said, adding that he had been told the Lions would be a "cinch" for the Sugar Bowl if they agreed to play without Triplett and Hoggard.

Golden Glove Novices Advance in Tourney

Anacostia, Coolidge In Feature

The interhigh football season closes today except for the big championship classic between Central and McKinley Tech on the night of November 28 at Griffith Stadium.

Two games close down the slate with Calvin Coolidge's last ditch bid to move into third place occupying the spotlight.

The 1946 championship Coolidge team now in fifth place, invades Anacostia to battle the surprising Indians, who currently hold down the third spot. In the other game, the cellar-dwelling Roosevelt Rough Riders, who have yet to score this season, tangle Western's Red Raiders at Western.

Kickoff for both contests is 3 p. m.

Tomorrow, two of the area's four undefeated and untied teams will be out to complete the first perfect records in their history. Bullis, ranked among the strongest prep teams in the East, goes after its eighth straight against the Naval Academy Plebes at Annapolis.

Episcopal, of Alexandria, which was undefeated until its last game in 1946, entertains the team that ruined its record, Woodberry Forert of Orange, Va. Pacing Episcopal in his final game will be Fullback Tommy Birge, the team's leading scorer for two successive years. Birge is leading the Metropolitan Washington schoolboy scores with 102 points.

Jones Trying To Shed Weight

Herbie (Biff) Jones, local southpaw who faces Fiberto Osario, Puerto Rican boy, in Monday night's 10-round feature bout at Turner's Arena, is working overtime at thet Merrick Boys Club, in an effort to strip weight so he can get to his best poundage of 126.

Osario, fighting out of the Chris Dundee stable that brought Johnny Williams and Johnny Walker to victory in the local ring, has won five of his last six battles and has defeated Charles Reilly, Clint Miller and Jimmy Callura while drawing with Jimmy McAllister.

Out Hunting

By Jack Bell

EACH YEAR an increasing number of Washington sportsmen are wending their way into the Blue Ridge Mountains of Virginia to hunt deer.

From all over the State come reports of increasing activity and in the number of deer hunters. Now that the short season is over in most counties, the great annual deer kill guessing contest is booming.

There are indications that the kill will be large in some counties. However, after a careful check of local nimrods, they have not been so lucky.

The Bureau of Standards operated shorthanded early this week because of the large number of hunters who'd gone afield. Simns Boardman, 4330 3d st. nw., and party of three hunting in Shenandoah County, saw only one buck. Howard Miller, 101 N. Irving st., Arlington, Va., and his party of seven saw only two. However, both parties reported seeing plenty of grouse, doe deer, hunters and a few turkey. Because of snow covering the ground the hunters passed up several easy shots at turkey.

Although in season, it is illegal to hunt or shoot turkey when the ground is covered with snow.

* * * *

CHECKING WITH the Front Royal checking-in station, it was learned that five buck deer were checked in Saturday and seven Monday.

George Haymaker, Larcom le., Arlington, Va., returned from Bath County, it is reported, with a six-point buck.

Hunting in Augusta County, C. G. Alley, 1332 Belmont st. nw., downed a big 250-pound ninepointer. Lacey Yeago, engineer, St. Elizabeths Hospital, bagged an eleven-pointer, hunting in the same county. Yeago, while dressing out his buck, says a nice fourpoint buck walked up to within 40 feet for a "look-see."

Paul Knowlden, Mr. and Mrs. Donald Rohr and Mr. and Mrs. Verne D. Close, all members of the Washington Chapter of the Izaak Walton League, returned empty-handed from Augusta County, where they hunted during the two-day season.

Ray Cleary, Arlington, Va., and Larry Westcott, Falls Church, Va., did return with venison and bear meat.

They were not fortunate to kill the game, but as a reward for their hard work in bringing out the buck and bear killed by the son of their host, they now are enjoying the meat.

With Maryland hunters it's a case of off and on again. With the close of the first half of the waterfowl season Saturday, upland game hunting opened on the same day.

By choice, Maryland selected a split waterfowl season losing 4½ days in making the deal. Now because of poor shooting a howl is being raised.

La Motta Says 'Fix' Talk Is 'A Dirty Lie'

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Jake La Motta, the Bronx fighter whose knockout by Billy Fox of Philadelphia last Friday is under investigation both by the State athletic commission and the New York grand jury, underwent two lengthy sessions today in the district attorney's office.

Also appearing for questioning were Frankie Carbo, described by the district attorney's office as an underworld link with boxing; Frankie Palermo, manager of Fox, and Bill Daly a widely known manager of fighters who currently handles Lee Savold and Pat Comiskey.

La Motta, still sporting a discolored eye, was accompanied to the Criminal Courts Building by his father, Jose, and his brother, Joseph, jr., who also had grand jury subpenas.

Before submitting to official questioning, La Motta was asked by reporters about a published report that his father and his manager, Al Silvani, had conferred some time before the Fox fight with Palermo, Fox's manager.

"I read about that," La Motta asserted. "All I can say is it's a dirty lie."

The Bronx battler, whose purse has been withheld, along with that of Fox, reiterated to newsmen that "all I know is I fought the best I know how."

Carbo, a natty dresser, told reporters that if there had been a "fix" in the La Motta-Fox bout he "knew nothing about it." Though a familiar figure in boxing circles here, Carbo has not been officially connected with any fighter, at least in recent years.

Chandler Fixes Training Date

Cincinnati, Nov. 20 (AP).—Baseball Commissioner Chandler today officially notified major league clubs that spring training in 1948 will start on March 1 and that they shall "not suggest, invite or encourage players to report before that day or on some subsequent date that the club might fix."

Chandler previously had announced the action after it met with the approval of the executive council which met here November 6.

At Bowie

Dear Folks:

Gallorette was out on the track for a workout but is a doubtful starter in Saturday's $10,000 Prince Georges Autumn Handicap. However, Trainer Ed Christmas may send the famous mare after the $20,000 pot in the Bryan and O'Hara, the closing day feature. Double Jay will go postward in the weekend test with Johnny Breen doing the riding. Bowie, long noted for longshots, has done well by the favorite players with a 50 per cent average. Dan Chamblin, who has enjoyed success with a public stable, has sent A. C. Paul's Gold Braid to the owner's farm. He shipped L. G. Schorch's Bura Peg to Gulfstream. Chamblin will winter his horses at Leesburg, Va., following the close of the Charles Town meeting. Alan Clarke naturally is elated at the performance of his Fritz Maisel in winning the Bowie Breeders' stake. However, he will know the real value of the son of Little Beans after the colt goes in the 10,000-added Endurance Handicap. If Fritz Maisel takes this purse, then Clarke can start thinking of Derbys and Preaknesses. Trainer Dion K. Kerr is taking several horses to Charles Town, including Toonerville and Kitty Kilts, for the Teaville Farm. See you on the rail.

One on the Aisle—

In James' Dry Style

'Moment' Rates Label, 'Unusual'

By Richard L. Coe

HOW FAITHFUL A transcription of the Henry James novel it is, we can't say, but "The Lost Moment" is at least an unusual picture. The Capitol's film is handsomely made and well cast, though it has a dry quality which will not appeal, say, to regular readers of Popular Mechanics.

As a film, you'd call "The Lost Moment" a romantic melodrama. Its heroine is definitely balmy but is cured by healthful love; its setting is a musty old house in Venice. Martin Gabel, who used to be in radio, has directed with an effective use of the soundtrack. It's by no means a great movie, but it's a fair one.

James' story was called "The Aspern Papers." To avoid the unusual proper noun, the poet, whose love letters are what the story is about, is now called Ashton. He wrote them to a highborn Italian beauty and then mysteriously disappeared. When the story opens, we find an American publisher searching for those classic letters in a murky old home of their recipient—still alive at the age of 105.

Juliana is tended by a young relative, Tina, who resents the publisher's arrival—under another name—as a paying guest in the old house. Tina, we finally discover, is a thoroughly successful split personality. Usually she's the cold, reserved companion of her aunt. But sometimes she steals away to an upper room furnished in the period of the old romance. Here she thinks she's Juliana, dreaming of her imaginary, long-dead poet and caressing the faded letters.

The old lady knows what's going on and when the publisher finally succeeds in getting his clutches on the letters, the real Juliana knows what their loss will mean to Tina. Fortunately a priest has taken a hand in these preceedings and is able to suggest to the publisher that real love may be a cure for the pathetic girl.

Suspension of Disbelief

All this reads, of course, like utter nonsense, but that willing suspension of disbelief of a half-way friendly onlooker gives the story some credibility. There is no explanation of how the young girl happens to be in the household, but frankly it didn't bother us. The poet's death and the sordid end of his idyllic romance is undeniably clear, though it is by no means so pointed as the average moviegoer would normally expect. As far as we're concerned, that's all to the good.

Producer Walter Wanger has certainly leaned over backwards to make an unusual picture and for this alone we thank him. With Robert Cummings as the insistent publisher, Susan Hayward as Tina and Agnes Moorehead as the aged Juliana, he has an able cast if not a brilliant one.

Gabel's direction manages a few engrossing moments, particularly, as we noted, on the soundtrack. But excitement never was a James quality. That was a literary style which is literally impossible to capture in terms of a picture story, so the unavoidable result has a vacuum quality.

"THE LOST MOMENT." Universal-International release produced by Walter Wanger. Screenplay by Leonardo Bercovici from Henry James' novel "The Aspern Papers." Directed by Martin Gabel. Music by Daniele Amfitheatrof. At the Capitol.

THE CAST

Lewis ..... Robert Cummings
Tina ..... Susan Hayward
Juliana ..... Agnes Moorehead
Amelia ..... Joan Lorring
Charles ..... John Archer
Father Rinaldo ..... Edwardo Ciannelli

Tim Herbert brightens the stage bill with a quiet banter that achieves some originality. Meribeth Old's contortions remain as fantastic as ever and the girl has a cheerful humor about them. The Angie Bond Trio offers three girls, three instruments and some music. Jack Denett has a novel bit with his fingertips imitating Bill Robinson and Tony Donadio brings back some of his songs from "Going Native."

"Gridiron Greatness," the short, is followed by newsreel clips of three football games: Penn-Army, Alabama, Georgia Tech and Michigan-Wisconsin.

FOR BEST SERVICE PLACE YOUR ADS EARLY

The steadily growing volume of classified ads in The Post, combined with the practice of many advertisers who phone late in the day, is making it difficult to devote the time and assistance to these late callers which is needed to prepare the most effective possible copy.

To assure receiving this help from your ad-taker, please try to call during the morning or early afternoon.

Judge Orders Records Given In School Suit

Arlington school records were ordered made available yesterday to counsel of Constance Carter, 15-year-old schoolgirl who has filed a racial discrimination suit against the School Board.

After argument on a motion presented by Leon A. Ransom, Miss Carter's attorney, Alexandria District Court Judge Albert V. Bryan ordered the following information be given Ransom, if possible, within 30 days:

1. Comparative figures on enrollment and attendance at Hoffman-Boston (Negro) and Washington-Lee (white) High Schools for this year and last.

2. Number of Arlington junior and senior high school students, white and Negro, attending schools outside the county.

3. Number of children, white and Negro, in the county, of school age.

4. Number of teachers at the two high schools, together with training, experience and number of subjects they are required to teach.

5. Courses offered at the two schools and number of students enrolled in each.

6. Capital investment of the county in land, buildings, equipment and repairs since their establishment of the two schools.

7. Cost of operation—salaries, equipment and materials supplied in the two schools.

8. Permission was also granted for an expert to examine the two schools to observe the physical plant and methods of instruction.

Judge Bryan stipulated this did not mean the information would be admissible as evidence. Date for a pretrial hearing will be set in a month, he said.

The suit, which seeks to restrain the county from practicing inequality between the separate school systems, was entered in September after Miss Carter had been denied admission to the Washington-Lee School, Miss Carter, who lives at 3425 S. 22d st., Arlington, Va., sought admission on the ground that courses she wanted were not offered at the Negro school.

Md. Income Tax Drive Pays Off

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (AP).—Apparently some Marylanders have taken to heart State Comptroller James J. Lacy's announcement his office was preparing a drive on State income tax delinquents.

A flurry of off-season activity developed today at the income tax office. Lacy said he had received about six calls from people who reported: "It was just an oversight—I'll get busy on it right away."

The income tax office here said many queries came in about what to do about overdue returns, and one man came in and paid up three years' back taxes.

"We the people, believe in a civil rights program now."

Kendrick Freed on Bond in Traffic Case

John A. Kendrick, 49, former member of the old Tri-State gang, was released on $1000 bond yesterday after being held on four traffic charges and a charge of disorderly conduct.

Kendrick

Municipal Court Judge Aubrey Fennell set December 22 as the date for a jury trial on the five charges, which were consolidated by agreement between Assistant Corporation Counsel Robert Kneipp and Kendrick's attorney, James K. Hughes.

The five charges against Kendrick were an outgrowth of an auto collision late Wednesday night at 11th st. near R st. nw. in which a vehicle driven by Kendrick collided with a car operated by Bernard E. Smith, 38, of 300 F st. nw.

Police said Kendrick, who gave his address as 1504 15th st. nw., was driving partly on the wrong side of the street and that his car struck Smith's vehicle even though Smith swerved up on a streetcar loading platform in an attempt to avert a collision.

Kendrick was charged with driving while drunk, leaving after colliding, driving on the wrong side of the street, driving with a suspended license and disorderly conduct. He forfeited $3 on another charge of failing to exhibit a registration card.

Kendrick is already scheduled to be tried in District Court on December 3 on a charge of assault with intent to kill Tommy English, who also is a former member of the notorious gang which got its name from its activities in three States adjacent to the District.

Navy Hero Killed In Jet Plane Crash

Lieut. Comdr. Robert P. Friesz, of Salisbury, Mo., a World War II combat veteran and holder of the Navy Cross, was killed yesterday 3 miles southwest of the Naval Air Test Center, Patuxent River, Md., when his jet fighter plane crashed in a swamp.

The Navy said his widow, Mrs. Elizabeth Johnson Friesz, lives at Somerset Farms, Virginia Beach, Va., and his mother, Mrs. Arthur L. Friesz, at Clifton Hill, Mo.

The cause of the crash was undetermined last night. The Navy said the plane was making a routine test flight.

LeViness Is Disbarred From Md. Practice

Baltimore, Nov. 20 (AP).—Charles T. LeViness, 3d, former Assistant State Attorney General and former head of the Baltimore Board of Liquor License Commissioners, was disbarred from practice of law today.

Judges of the supreme bench signed an order to that effect despite a plea of LeViness that income tax evasion, of which he was convicted in a Federal court, did not represent an offense of "moral turpitude." No public hearing preceded the disbarment order.

Naval Gun Factory Worker Finds Wife Shot on Porch

The 42-year-old wife of a Naval Gun Factory worker was found by her husband lying on the back porch of their apartment with a bullet wound in her head yesterday when he returned from work.

The woman, Mrs. Mary E. Crittenden, 3004 30th st. se., was pronounced dead on arrival at Gallinger Hospital shortly before 6 p. m. Police said that the bullet had apparently been fired through her open mouth and emerged from the back of her head. A .32 caliber revolver was found lying beside the body.

Her husband, Glenn Crittenden, told police that Mrs. Crittenden had been undergoing treatment following an operation, but that she had seemed in good spirits when he left for work about 7:30 a. m. yesterday.

D. C. Soldier's Condition Described as 'Serious'

Army authorities yesterday described as "serious" the condition of Pfc. Reginald D. Jackson, 17, son of Mrs. Lulu Jackson of 1520 Swann st. nw. Jackson's spine was fractured Monday when an ambulance he was driving to Ikego ammunition dump, near Tokyo, Japan, overturned. He has been in Japan since August. He was a former student at Dunbar High School.

Frederick Policeman To Face Charges Nov. 25

Frederick, Md., Nov. 20.—The Frederick City Police Commission has set November 28 for a meeting on charges against Lieut. Reno Six, when they will submit their recommendations to the Board of Aldermen.

Alms House Farm Sold

Princess Anne, Md., Nov. 20 (AP). Somerset County has sold its Alms House Farm which it owned since 1864.

The farm was bought at public auction by John B. Roberts of Princess Anne for $12,000. The poor house farm consists of 71 acres on the Princess-Mt. Vernon road.

School Transport Urged for Children

Fairfax County should provide bus transportation for all children attending the St. James (parochial) School, the City Park-Jefferson Village Citizens Association urged yesterday in an open letter to county school superintendent W. T. Woodson.

As long as public schools in the Falls Church area are unable to accommodate all of the community's children, the letter said, all schools deserve and have a right to transportation to and from school."

Pointing to "overcrowded" conditions in the town's three public schools, the letter added that the parochial school is "helping to alleviate a serious educational crisis" by absorbing some of the overflow. The problem "rises above discrimination," the citizens group said, and is "a problem of necessity."

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Atlas! How could you make such a monster!
With odds and ends, O'Malley.
An old radio, a small radar outfit, a piece of a hot water boiler, a geiger counter, parts of a jeep, a few electronic devices, bolts, nuts, bits of wire. All very simple . . . Stewing up plutonium for his fuel system was tedious. It took me half a morning to get a pile barely a foot high, and—
But, Atlas, mightn't he blow up?
Not unless he gets over-heated. Don't cross him, O'Malley. Or get him excited—

Minister Is First Negro Elected To Fairfax Democratic Body

The Rev. Wallace E. Costner of Falls Church, newly elected to the 49-member Fairfax County Democratic Executive Committee, is the first Negro to hold such a post in the memory of county politicians.

Costner

The 52-year-old Falls Church Baptist parson is also the first of his race to be elected to any higher-level Democratic post in the county's history, according to Fairfax politicians.

Gardner L. Boothe, chairman of the Eighth Congressional District Democratic Committee, said there are no other Negro committee members in the district, nor, so far as he knows, in the State.

Pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Falls Church since he came to the county 12 years ago, Mr. Costner has worked extensively to get Negroes to register, pay their poll taxes and vote. Not only in Falls Church, but in other precincts such as Herndon where, he says, Negroes voted for the first time this year.

Mr. Costner was automatically elected without opposition to the committee when only 11 candidates appeared for the 11 seats from Falls Church.

NOW SHE SHOPS "CASH AND CARRY"

Without Pain—Backache

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. They help most people pass about 3 pints a day.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, a stimulant diuretic, used successfully by millions for over 50 years. Doan's give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Chest Agency Helps In Family Problems

Social Hygiene Society Gives Guidance To Troubled Minds, Spreads Information

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

"I'm going to leave my husband," she said. "I can't live with him any longer."

The woman was tearful, and her problem was acute. She told it to Ray H. Everett, executive secretary of the Washington Social Hygiene Society.

The woman was well along in middle age. She had married young and had three children, all still in school. Her husband wasn't any world beater, but he always had provided for his family.

And now, he was seeing another woman. It was the old eternal triangle, and the woman who had come for advice could see no way out but divorce.

Couldn't Think Straight

She was confused, and she couldn't think straight because of her emotional problem.

She didn't see that her emotional problem, if she solved it by divorce, would just lay the groundwork for another problem, almost as serious—the problem of the economics of living.

The woman had never worked and had no knowledge of any work but housework. She had no financial resources, nor had her husband, beyond his job.

She was advised to return to her home and postpone an action so drastic as divorce until she had figured out a way to support herself.

While the woman still battled her problem, the "other" woman tired of the triangle and moved to another city. And the husband returned to his own family, penitent and determined never to err in such fashion again. The marriage is scarred—but not broken.

Only 3 of 516

Last year, 516 people came to the Washington Social Hygiene Society for marital conferences—and only three of those persons had to resort to divorce to solve their problems.

The society gets all kinds of problems and all kinds of cases. Many of the persons who seek it out for aid are referred by ministers, or by friends who have been helped by the society, or by public librarians, to whom they go for help on social hygiene problems.

Some of the girls are pregnant and unmarried, and the society directs them to the agency best fitted to handle their cases. In the cases of those who have contracted venereal disease, the society again directs them to the proper medical services.

Spreads Information

The society does yeoman service in spreading public information on the hazards of venereal infections. Ray Everett, who has been in social work for the past 30 years, was one of Washington's pioneers in securing public acceptance of the fact that ignoring syphilis and gonorrhea does nothing to cure the evil.

Everett believes that we have passed the peak of our divorce rate. He believes that marriages fail usually from one, or a combination of, five reasons: financial disagreements, sexual maladjustment; recreational differences, health hazards and religious differences.

And if the cause of the maladjustment can be gotten at quickly enough, and the participants can be made to see their trouble, then the marriage can be saved. That is one of the aims of the society—to help toward better marriage and homemaking.

Available to All

The society's services are available to any individual or agency in the District of Columbia, without charge. And the society's staff does as much as it can, through lectures and classes, to promote sound principals of social hygiene.

In some cases, the society has been able to bring about a satisfactory marital adjustment simply by pointing out to husband or wife a way in which they can establish a community of interests. The society has held premarital discussions with young people to iron out in advance, as much as possible, the difficulties the young couple is sure to encounter in the first days of marriage.

The society also does what it can about one statistic—that one woman out of every nine will pass through life unmarried—by showing how a single life, if necessary, can be constructively used.

Many Washington's residents will never need to use the facilities and the kind understanding which is available in full measure at the Washington Social Hygiene Society. But for those whose need for such services is desperate and urgent, the society can mean the difference between happiness and disaster.

This is one of the agencies of the Community Chest Federation which you help to support with our contribution.

Two Pastors Get Change Of Pulpits

By Robert Tate Allan
Post Reporter

Two important pastoral changes in the Greater Washington area were disclosed last night.

They involve the Rev. William E. Firth, who has been transferred from the Colesville (Md.) Methodist Church to the St. Paul Methodist Church, 13th and Crittenden sts. nw., and the Rev. Leslie L. Bowers, sr., who has requested a transfer—for reasons of health—from Fifteenth Street Christian Church, 15th st. and Kentucky ave. se., to the Broadway Christian Church, Pueblo, Colo.

The official board of Fifteenth Street Church and the congregation refused to let Mr. Bowers formally resign. But they consented to let him "transfer" to the Colorado pulpit. He has served his present church from 1915 to 1920, and from 1931 until now. He is the oldest Disciples of Christ minister in Washington, in point of service. He will leave January 1 for his new charge. A son, the Rev. Leslie L. Bowers, jr., is minister of the First Christian Church at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Mr. Firth, who has served his 1st Church, 13th and Crittenden Colesville congregation 5½ years, will preach his first sermon at the St. Paul Church this Sunday at 11 a. m., discussing "First Things First." He was educated at George Washington University and Emory Theological Seminary, Atlanta, Ga. He will succeed the Rev. William Elliott, who was transferred to First Methodist Church, Cumberland, Md.

U. S. Physical Study Urged

Government sponsorship of a measuring survey of the American population to determine physical trends is proposed by Dr. T. Dale Stewart, Smithsonian curator of physical anthropology.

Dr. Stewart suggested the project, a sort of Gallup poll with calipers, in his section of the recently released annual report of the Smithsonian Institution.

Though the prime purpose of the survey would be anthropological, he justified it economically in its value to design of clothing, furniture "and other things dependent on body size."

He reported the "impossibility" of detecting "through available measurements" any general trend in this country to a distinctive "American type" which might be emerging from the American melting pot.

Groups making up the original immigration (to America) are undoubtedly amalgamating through intermarriage at a much faster rate since the shutting off of unrestricted immigration, Dr. Stewart observed.

This, he said, raises the question of whether a definite physical type is evolving such as are characterized broadly in the populations of various European countries.

RUSSIA: Workers' Heaven or Workers' Hell?

IN 1932, John K. Leino, an American carpenter, visited Russia under a two-year working contract. He stayed more than 14 years.

Today, he rips aside the Iron Curtain, to give Collier's readers an eye-opening description of what it's like to be a cog in a sputtering industrial machine.

From the time the Russian worker gets up in the morning, says Mr. Leino, his efforts are thwarted by bureaucratic inefficiency and frustrating regulations. He must allow from 30 minutes to an hour for the almost inevitable transportation breakdown. If he is late, even through no fault of his own, he is reprimanded or fined.

Defective materials, lack of materials, mechanical failures hamper him all day long. If he suggests improvements he is ridiculed. He belongs to a union, but the union is dominated by the government and is never consulted on wage scales. And the party line is constantly snarling the assembly line.

Although Moscow's handouts continue to boast of production triumphs, Mr. Leino concludes, America has nothing to fear from Russia along the industrial front. For a veteran union man's view of conditions in this so-called workers' paradise, read U.S.S.R. — *Workers' Inferno, in Collier's, out today.

National Guard Chieftain Holds Cost Would Prohibit Unification With Reserve Corps

A Communication

The Washington Post is glad to print the following letter from Gen. E. A. Walsh, president of the United States National Guard Association. It comments on an editorial advocating creation of one unified reserve force.

ON NOVEMBER 11, The Washington Post printed an editorial entitled "Unified Reserve." The Washington Post stated that in its opinion the ideal solution would be to abolish separate titles and to amalgamate all reserves into one organization that could supervise a well-rounded training program. The Washington Post could see no reason for interservice feuding or for duplication of effort. With reference to the foregoing, I find no particular fault and certainly The Washington Post is entitled to its opinion in the matter, irrespective of whether that opinion is based on a thorough knowledge of the situation based on a study of all factors.

You are probably well aware that of late proposals have been made by a number of reserve officers, including Maj. Gen. Harry H. Vaughan, aide to the President, for a consolidation or amalgamation of the National Guard and the Organized Reserve Corps. Disregarding for the moment the constitutional and legal difficulties which are involved, I seriously question if anybody in his right mind really seriously proposes such a course for the reason that the cost would be utterly prohibitive.

If the Organized Reserve Corps, which is now a second line of defense, should be organized on the identical basis which the National Guard is organized, there would be required a capital investment, for 25,675 units, of $5,135,000,000 for armories and other facilities. In addition, there would be required an annual appropriation of $2,695,875,000. Add to this the appropriation of the National Guard. Taking into consideration the appropriations for the armed forces for the current fiscal year, and an additional $1,750,000,000 for universal military training as estimated by the Compton Commission, you will find the entire national defense budget would approximate 17 billion dollars annually. I contend this is fantastic.

IT IS NOT with the foregoing that I am concerned, but rather with statements contained in The Washington Post editorial that the National Guard has lagged far behind in its goal of enlistments and that the ultimate result of a helter-skelter reserve program is likely to be no effective reserve at all. The statement that the National Guard has lagged far behind in its enlistments is, of course, a statement not supported by facts.

In this connection, may I invite your attention to the approved War Department policies of October 13, 1945, affecting the National Guard of the United States and the Organized Reserve Corps. Under these policies, there is a precise and definite organization of the reserve components of the Army—that is, the National Guard and the Organized Reserve Corps. The Regular Army and the National Guard constitute the first line of defense as provided by the National Defense Act, and in addition, constitute the M-Day balanced force.

Complementing these approved policies is the War Department troop basis, which sets up the strength and the tactical organizations of the several components. In this connection, I invite your attention to the War Department troop basis and troop allotments for the National Guard of October 20, 1946. This troop basis fixes the strength of the National Guard at 682,796 and organizes that strength into 25 infantry divisions, 2 armored divisions, 18 infantry combat teams, 24 tank battalions, 24 tank destroyer battalions, 24 field artillery battalions, 24 combat engineer battalions, and a given quota of antiaircraft artillery medical troops and other service units.

THE SALIENT feature of the approved policies of October 13, 1945, is the assumption that there will be established in this country a system of universal military training, and all postwar planning is predicated on that assumption. It was not then contemplated, and is not now contemplated, that the National Guard would ever attain a strength of 682,796 unless there were established a system of universal military training. To date, no such system has been established, yet at the moment, the National Guard has a strength of over 180,000 contained in more than 3100 units. I suggest you compare this situation with the one existing after World War I. It will be found that the National Guard today is more than 10 years ahead of the organizational schedule in the period succeeding World War I.

For the fiscal year 1947, Congress appropriated 110 million dollars for the National Guard, which was to provide for 3000 units with a strength of 150,000. On December 28, 1946, the War Department took away from the National Guard 60 million dollars which was transferred to the pay of the Army account. This was a cut of 66 2/3 per cent and was done in violation of the appropriation act of the second session of the Seventy-ninth Congress. In June, 1947, 12 million dollars of this was restored. Notwithstanding the cut and the almost complete cessation of enlistments as a result, the National Guard, nevertheless, on June 30, 1947, had a strength in excess of 97,000.

For the current fiscal year, that is 1948, Congress has made available 149 million dollars to provide for 4500 units of the National Guard with a strength of 250,000. At this moment, we have in existence more than 3100 units, leaving a total of 1400 units yet to be organized in this fiscal year. If we obtain the 88,000 recruits contemplated by "Operation 88,888," we will then have a strength of 208,000. In my opinion, this strength will be reached about December 31.

Subtracting that from 250,000, we will have only 42,000 men left to be contained in 1400 units, or an average of 30 men per unit. Obviously, no unit can function efficiently with 30 men, nor can it meet the requirements imposed by the National Defense Act. Yet we cannot incur a deficiency. Therefore, you may see the unique situation of no further recruitment of the National Guard because of budgetary limitations. Still, we are enlisting men at a rate of between 1000 and 1100 each day. Based on this, I would like to know where the National Guard has lagged.

I AGREE absolutely that it is high time that the joint committee to study reserve problems, recently appointed by the Secretary of Defense, came into being, for there is a world of work for it to do. The only reserve in being is the National Guard, and that has always been the case. The States have a capital investment of approximately 500 million dollars in armories and other facilities and are appropriating on an average of 35 million dollars annually for the support of the National Guard. If we follow the suggestion of giving to the States a Home Guard or purely State militia, the States would still require their armories and the Federal Government would have to provide immediately more than a billion dollars for armory construction and other facilities.

To think for a moment that the National Guard would go over lock, stock and barrel into a single Federal Reserve of Federal militia, divorced from State control, is to ignore the history and tradition of more than 160 years. It would not result in any economy, but would impose a tremendous financial burden and the net result would be no semblance of a reserve force.

The National Guard provided 18 divisions in World War I and the same number in World War II, together with numerous task forces, GHQ Reserve Corps, and Army troops. Many so-called authorities have contended it took the National Guard more than two years to get ready. Such a statement will not hold water. The National Guard was ready for mobilization on July 15, 1940, but the last unit was not mobilized until nearly a year later.

The facts in the case were there were no facilities in the field which could house and provide training for the National Guard. It is immaterial whose fault this was. Neither was the War Department able to provide clothing, arms, and other equipment. The divisions which were sent overseas early, notably the Thirty-fourth Division which was the first to go early in 1942, were equipped entirely with World War I equipment.

As a matter of fact, the National Guard mobilized with a strength of 200,000 and by April 15, 1941, had been brought up to full strength through filler replacements from Selective Service. Yet, as late as the Third Army maneuvers in Louisiana, in the late summer and early fall of 1941, we were still using sawhorses and stovepipes to simulate artillery and tank-destroyer weapons. Furthermore, there was not a round of ammunition in the Thirty-fourth Division and other divisions, as the ammunition had been requisitioned to be sent to England and China.

In this whole matter of the reserve components of the Army and Navy, it seems to me that the people are entitled to the facts and it should be the mission of a great metropolitan daily to give those facts.

E. A. WALSH,
President, National Guard Association of the United States.
St. Paul, Minn.

Physicist Asks Less Emphasis On Science

At a ceremony honoring his own scientific achievements, Dr. Merle A. Tuve, noted research physicist, said he found the world "unbalanced" with "over-emphasis on science."

"The universities are head over heels in atomic institutes and schools of business or engineering, with literature and arts relegated to the category of prerequisites for professional schools," declared Dr. Tuve.

Dr. Tuve, 46, director of the department of terrestrial magnetism, Carnegie Institution of Washington, spoke after receiving the Research Corporation Award, with a $2500 honorarium, for his work in development of the proximity fuse and research in exploration of the ionosphere. Some 150 guests, mostly scientists, attended the award dinner at Hotel Carlton Wednesday night.

Declaring that his view—the need to develop the humanities—was shared by many fellow scientists, he stated:

"I do not feel that the outstanding need of today is for a further great acceleration in science. The really outsanding need of today lies squarely over in the humanities.

"We need many more of our gifted and creative thinkers working in the broad field of human relationships and not just politics or economics, but the relation of man to other men and the true nature of his relation to himself."

He charged the Federal Government with "avoiding this area" while "expanding its subsidies for physics and chemistry and engineering."

Dr. Tuve advocated fostering and encouraging a new generation of students to formulate a pattern which will give "richness and meaning and a sense of direction and warm human relationship" to life.

Suggestion for Universities

"If I could command the attention of the deans and presidents and regents of our great universities I would tell them that the most fruitful thing they could do would be to seek out the great humanists on their faculties and give them positions of prestige and influence and resources and support even more conspicuous and generous than those of their most brilliant scientific specialists," he declared.

Dr. Vannevar Bush, president of the Carnegie Institution and himself a winner in 1939 of the Research Corporation Award, presided at the dinner. The Research Corporation, a nonprofit organization, was founded in 1912 to further advancement of science and technology.

Versatile Air Force Band Can Be Orchestra and Glee Club

Bolling Field Is Home For Musical Group Under Maj. Howard

By Paul Hume

Every morning from 9:30 to around noon, Maj. George S. Howard, director of bands and music for the United States Air Force, rehearses the concert orchestra of the U. S. Air Force Band. A 65-piece symphony orchestra, the ensemble is only one of almost a dozen different combinations which can be made out of the 115-man band.

Five dance bands, a glee club, a marching band, drum and bugle corps, or concert band can be drawn from the players, in addition to the concert orchestra. But it is the orchestra which is heard every Thursday night from 9 to 10 at the Department of Interior Auditorium, in free concerts.

Full-Time Program

Established during the regime of General Arnold, the band and its various divisions now centers around a full-time program under Major Howard's expert direction. At present 30 Air Force bands in this country are supplied with personnel from the school at Bolling Field. At the same time eight bands of 34 members each hold down far-flung assignments in Alaska, Japan, the Philippines, Hawaii, Panama, Puerto Rico, Okinawa and Newfoundland.

Only four years old, the concert orchestra of the band includes men from the leading orchestras of the country, with 11 from the National Symphony and others who have played under Conductors Stokowski, Reiner and Goossens, as well as Kindler. What's more, their playing shows it. The string section, drawn from the top orchestras of the land, puts out a beautiful tone, with all the gloss and sheen one wants.

Behind them on the left are woodwinds whose work equals that of top symphony men today. M/Sergt. Harry Meuser, first bassoonist, played for a while under his father, who was first bassoon for the Cincinnati Symphony. But a young fellow can't sit around waiting for his father to give up his job, and so Harry is with the Air Forces orchestra.

The Washington Post

CONFERENCE AT THE PODIUM—M/Sergt. Abrasha Robofsky (right), baritone soloist of the United States Air Force Band, and Wac Lieut. Helen B. Barnes, band adjutant, talk over a score with Maj. George S. Howard, band director

Paul Wolfe, concertmaster, is a son of Jacques Wolfe who won fame by writing "Shortnin' Bread." For a sample of fancy solo playing, watch for a spot announcement on the radio. Script by Sergt. Michael Harrigan, music by Sergt. John Leffler, the spot will give the low-down on a pair of happy recruits to the Air Forces Band. And in that spot, young Paul Wolfe, as well as the tuba, piccolo, and trumpet, do some plain and fancy solo work.

Spot announcements are only one part of the work of the band and orchestral personnel in an average day. A full staff of radio men prepare weekly broadcasts; (WASH-FM and the Continental FM network Thursdays 9-10 p. m.; and WOL-Mutual, Saturdays, 11-11:30 a. m.) With Lieut. Cass Bielski as announcer (he's also supply and promotion officer for the band), Capt. Robert P. Kiem in the role of producer, and S/Sergt. Gerald Gholson running the engineering, the broadcasts come off as smoothly as any of the expensive professional shows on the air.

What kind of talent do you want in a show? They've got it. Arrangements are turned out at the rate of four or five a week by T/Sergt. Fred Kepner, whose version of "Laura" sounds like a Broadway-Hollywood alliance. Big stuff in the vocal solo line comes from M/Sergt. Abrasha Robofsky, graduate of Curtis Institute, who looks back on opera experience in this country and abroad.

Another promising composer is Cpl. Bill Pursell. His latest contribution is music for a dramatic skit based on "High Flight." It was Airforceman John Magee, son of a wartime rector of St. John's Church, Lafayette sq. who wrote the poem "High Flight" shortly before his death while on duty.

The war came close to members of the orchestra, too, in the cases of M/Sergt. Maury Block, who was a combat flyer with the RCAF, and T/Sergt. Robert Moore, who served with the Sixth Armored the sergeant who did the script for the fast-moving spot announcement, served first with the British army, before landing in the Air Force. (And with a name like "Harrigan!")

But nowadays, Maury Block plays trombone for Major Howard, and the major says, "That trombone part hasn't enough character. It needs more m-pah, m-pah." And Robert Block has changed from the Sixth Armored Division to pounding those big drums known as tympani.

In something like Serge Prokofieff's "Lieut. Kije Suite," which is top-drawer concert level, the orchestra turns loose its battery of percussion instruments. Right after that, just like turning from hot to cold water, they go into "Laura," or the accompaniment for the "Pagliacci" Prologue for Abe Robofsky.

Paper work, administrative assistance and the other things that go with being an "adjutant" are handled—hold everything— by a WAC lieutenant. First Lieut. Helen B. Barnes, only woman in anything like her position, does more than shows on the surface to keep matters running right. The Air Force is not strictly a man's world.

Out of its short but dazzling past the United States Air Forces Band points to a tour of England where they took over the biggest halls of the land, including the Royal Albert Hall in London with its 10,000 seats. (Three concerts there.) And they remember the celebrities who have appeared with them, or clapped for their best work.

Victor Babin, famous concert pianist; Glenn Darwin, baritone of the Metropolitan; Conductor Alexander Smallens and acting luminaries, Joseph Cotten, June Knight and Fred Stone line their walls.

Pinhoe Bazaar Will Show Copies Of Princess' Gifts

Visitors to the Pinhoe Bazaar at the British Embassy on Tuesday, December 2, will have the opportunity of seeing a duplicate set of the Steuben glass plates sent to Princess Elizabeth by Ambassador and Mrs. Lewis Douglas as a wedding gift.

The 12 plates, each depicting American wild life, are outstanding examples of American craftsmanship and design, carved in intaglio on the bottom.

Loaned to the Washington committee sponsoring the bazaar, the plates are to be on exhibition all during the day. And in addition, there will be a print of the Steuben merry-go-round bowl presented to the royal couple by President and Mrs. Truman.

First Lady Feted By Democratic Club At Benefit Tea

Mrs. Truman was guest of honor at a gala benefit tea yesterday given by the Woman's National Democratic Club at the Foxhall rd. home of Mrs. Dwight F. Davis. Approximately 200 guests came to view the hostess' rare collection of paintings and antique English furniture.

Mrs. J. Borden Harriman, former Minister to Denmark and current club president, received with the First Lady and Mrs. Davis.

Presiding at the tea table were Mrs. J. W. Fulbright, Mrs. John Nicholas Brown, Mrs. Raymond Clapper, Mrs. Oscar Cox and Mrs. Joseph Casey.

Chic Explorer Is Visitor; Envoy, Studying Slang, Is Thrown by 'Take a Powder'

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

LADY explorers are rarities these days, but for the past week Mrs. Conger Pratt has had the most bracing of this intrepid breed in tow. She is chic, aristocratic Louise Arner Boyd, who has made nine treks to the Arctic, the first time on her own private ship. The follow-up trips were made for all sorts of worthwhile institutions, including the Department of Commerce's fascinating Bureau of Standards. Figuratively, mushing through the frozen North, Miss Boyd picked up honors as well as skills.

She has become an outstanding expert on photographing ice, has been awarded the Cullum gold medal for distinguished exploration and a section of chilly Greenland has been named after her. It's called Wiesboydland, which, we are told, is how the Danes say "Miss Boyd Land."

Like many pleasant things, Miss Boyd's "trade" started by accident. Wealthy, uniquely without relations, she had chartered a yacht, invited guests for a spot of Northern shooting when Explorer Amundsen was lost. Immediately she offered her boat, with the proviso she come along, too. Tasting ice, she liked it, went back for more. At the moment she's fairly quiescent, finishing a book leisurely, enjoying life at her place out in San Rafael, Calif.

Slang's Apt Pupil

DR. OSCAR IVANISSEVICH, the Argentine Ambassador, is a medical doctor not a doctor of philosophy. He has just left on a sprint through North Carolina, Georgia, Alabama to look-see our educational and medical institutions. Before leaving Washington the Ambassador dined with Dr. Milton Clayton, head surgeon of the Southern Railroad, in the latter's private car. The talk soon veered from shop to slang, Dr. I.'s favorite subject. The Ambassador, eager to get a good grasp on colloquial Americanisms, has been studying slang seriously. His mentor has been Embassy Counselor Luis Drago, who has found his boss an apt pupil with only minor defects. No matter how carefully it's explained, the Ambassador simply can't get the hang of two expressions. 1. Casing the joint. 2. Taking a powder. They sound medical to him—and that's that. So Dr. Clayton was called in to pinch-hit for Drago, clear up the situation with a skilled diagnosis. After this session we believe that Dr. Ivanissevich has as good a control of slang as of scapel.

Radio Hearings Exciting

THERE has been a lot of commotion in the radio world lately. Hearings, just as exciting for radio experts as the Hughes investigation was for you and me, have been going on in the Inter-Departmental Auditorium on Constitution ave.

Television, it seems, is quite a villain, monopolizing half the spectrum air waves skip about on, cutting out FM. FM means frequency modulations. It's a man-made wave on which static can't hitch-hike, and was invented back in 1933 after Edison, Marconi, Steinmetz thought the feat impossible.

It's inventor, Maj. Edwin E. Armstrong, is in town and is an amazing person. Big, stooped, bald-headed, he is a gourmet, a fast driver, runs up several thousand dollars in monthly telephone bills long-distancing his manufacturers, hams, licensees, scientific friends. Hailing unromantically from Yonkers, son of the American representative of the Oxford Press, while still in his 'teens he discovered the regenerative circuit which makes the vacuum tube useful, invented the super-heterodyne which makes ordinary radio what it is today.

As major in World War I, assigned to tracking down spies by listening in on their "air" conversations, he stumbled across what is known in radio parlance as the "upper circuit."

In this last war he worked out the best of the walkie-talkies, gave the Government free of charge all his licenses, royalties, though they were to be in force, paying him income only four more years. By this gesture the Government was assured its most important single means of wartime communication.

Right now the major does his experimenting at Alpine, N. J., where he has erected a 400-foot tower, which, except for the Eiffel Tower, is the world's highest all-steel contraption. Oddly enough, he and his wife live in New York's social River Club, have a good time when they can entangle themselves from radio tubes and aeriels.

On Capital Party Calendar

WIVES of West Point graduates, Class of '43, lunched together Tuesday at Laura Lee's tea house in Alexandria. Mrs. Edward L. Sheley, jr., and Mrs. Robert Muldrow acted as hostesses.

Other guests included Mrs. Robert E. Harrington, Mrs. McGlachlin Hatch, Mrs. William E. Lewis, Mrs. Carlos M. Palbott, Mrs. John J. Gorman, Mrs. James B. Cobb, Mrs. Younger A. Pitts, jr., Mrs. Morton C. Carmack, Mrs. Robert F. McDermott, Mrs. Donald W. Thompson, Mrs. Henry B. Sayler, Mrs. William A. Knowlton, Mrs. Albert L. Lane, jr., Mrs. Walter W. Hogrefe, Mrs. George K. Sykes, Mrs. David H. Barger, Mrs. Barton K. Young, jr.; Mrs. James F. Hackler and Mrs. James O. Younts.

Mrs. C. C. Calhoun Will Give Tea Party

MRS. C. C. CALHOUN will be at home Saturday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock in her apartment at Stoneleigh Court. This will be one in a series of teas which Mrs. Calhoun is giving through November and the first two Saturdays in December.

Mrs. P. A. Drury came to pour last Saturday, bringing with her Mrs. Jennings Randolph. Mrs. Geneva Dunham and Mrs. A. C. Burrows also assisted. This week Mrs. William Bulow will pour, assisted by Mrs. C. Holden Miller.

Miss Marlys Haas Becomes Bride Of Mr. Bettencourt

Miss Marlys Hulda Haas, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo H. Haas of Washington, was married in San Rafael, Calif., yesterday to Delbert Francis Bettencourt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Y. Bettencourt of Gustine, Calif.

The ceremony took place at Trinity Lutheran Church with the Rev. John C. Jacobsen officiating. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

A reception was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles P. Collins of San Anselmo, Calif. The couple left afterwards for a stay at Carmel-on-the-Sea and will make their home in Gustine, Calif.

The bride attended Cornell University and George Washington University. She has been working as a bacteriologist at St. Luke's Hospital in San Francisco. The bridegroom was graduated with a B. S. in agriculture from University of California and served four years in the Army as a first lieutenant.

Mrs. Williams Is Guest

Mrs. Rebecca Williams of Pittsburgh is in Washington for a visit with her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Roth.

Congressional Tea

The Congressional Club's second informal fall tea will be held this afternoon, 3 to 5, in the United Nations Club.

Mrs. Bunker Is Hostess At Inter-American Luncheon

Inter-American friendship found new expression at the luncheon yesterday at the Army and Navy Club given by Mrs. Charles W. O. Bunker, wife of Admiral Bunker, with Mrs. Leon Tashof as cohostess, in honor of Senorita Minerva Bernardino, president of the Inter-American Commission of Women.

Mrs. Bunker, motivated by a long-cherished dream of "Americas United," suggested some ideas for monthly get-togethers, honoring on each occasion an American nation, with a travelogue, either across the luncheon table or over the tea cups. Interesting highlights of customs, culture, music and food of the Americas, could be discussed, thereby proving the existing basic similarities of the peoples of our hemisphere.

Guests at the luncheon yesterday were Senora De Caceres, Senora De Ivanissevich, Senora De Enciso, Senora De Thomen, Senora De Mora, Senora De Medevios, Senora De Lott, Senora De Morales Lopez, Senora De Mindello, Senora De Drago. Senora De Rovira, Senora De Sanchez Gavito, Senora De Copello, Senora De Munilla, Senora De Inchazo, Bolivian newspaperwoman and educator.

Others were Senora Ricardo de Alfaro, wife of the Foreign Minister of Panama; Mrs. Walter Tuckerman, Mrs. Clark Woodward, Mrs. Martin Vogel, Mrs. Joseph Farrington, Mrs. Frank Morrow, Mme. Rybar, Mrs. Robert Guggenheim, Mrs. Burke Summers, Mrs. Constantine Brown, Mrs. Thomas Cajigas, Mrs. Lorton Sims, Mrs. Burton Wheeler, Mrs. Charles Thomas, Mrs. Henry Howells and Mrs. Manuel J. Davis.

Senorita Bernardino made a brief talk to the group, expressing her belief that the strengthening of bonds of hemispheric understanding and friendship can be attained through the power of women.

Secretaries Begin Regional Sessions At Party Today

The National Secretaries Association will open its three-day regional convention with a cocktail party this afternoon in the Carlton Hotel. Members of the local Presidential Chapter will be hostess to delegates and representatives of the 17 chapters in the Southeastern district of the association in town for the conclave.

Douglas C. Vaile, director of field service, National Savings and Loan League, will talk on "America's Key Women" at a banquet following the all-day business session tomorrow in convention headquarters at the New Colonial Hotel.

Concluding events will be a breakfast-business meeting Sunday followed by a cocktail party in the afternoon given by members of the Huntington, W. Va., Chapter.

Mrs. Whiteley Is Tea Hostess

Mrs. Richard Whiteley, member of the executive board, D. C. Chapter, Women's Action Committee for Lasting Peace, entertained about 35 of her friends yesterday at a tea in her home at 2915 Woodland dr. Purpose of the get-together was to hear Mrs. Edgar Ansel Mowrer, president of the District branch, WACLP, relate the happenings of the International Assembly for Women's World Fellowship's Paris conclave.

Mrs. Mowrer outlined the aims and functions of the WACLP, told of the organization's current membership drive.

Among those presiding at the tea table following the program session were Mrs. Edward Sturdevant, Mrs. Henry Butler, Mrs. David Borden, Mrs. Andrew Brown, Miss Elaine Lefevre and Miss Elma Baker.

Jacksons Have Grandson

Associate Justice and Mrs. Robert H. Jackson have a new grandson. Robert H. Jackson Loftus was born October 29 to Dr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Loftus, jr., of Orangeburg, N. J. Mrs. Loftus is the former Miss Mary Margaret Jackson.

To Visit in West

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard B. Schloss left this week for an extended vacation. They will go first to Birmingham, Ala., to visit their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Emmanuel Schloss, and from there to California for about two months.

Girls Study 'Family Style' Cooking In Turning Out Thanksgiving Meal

By Lucia Brown

PUMPKIN pie was baking and cranberry salad in the making when we visited Calvin Coolidege Senior High this week.

In the spice-laden atmosphere of the foods laboratory, teen-agers in gay red and white aprons were learning to cook traditional Thanksgiving dishes. A few doors away in the model apartment provided for home economics classes, other girls were arranging a harvest centerpiece of varicolored fruits on the dining tables.

"We believe in following the seasons in our food classes," smiled Mrs. Irene Kent, the teacher as she watched the busy, enthusiastic group.

"We don't go so far as to bake a Thanksgiving turkey," she added, "but we prepare other holiday foods. It adds interest to the course, and helps bring out points about seasonal planning and marketing."

Coolidge, the newest high school in the District, has the most modern facilities for training tomorrow's homemakers. In the foods laboratory or kitchen, are rows of gleaming white cabinets, gas and electric ranges, automatic refrigerators and other up-to-date equipment

Cook Family Style

But the cookery the girls are taught is good old "family" style. Students work in groups of three—simulating a small family. They have a home-size range to use, flanked by two cabinets filled with cutlery, utensils, and dishes needed for that "unit." Near each range are a small maple table and chairs where the girls usually serve and eat the food they cook. They learn basic recipes that will be useful later in their own homes, so its fitting that holiday dishes traditionally served at the family board should be included in the course.

Every "family" in Foods II, the first class we visited at Coolidge, was making either a large pumpkin custard pie or three individual pumpkin chiffon pies. The pretty faces of the girls were serious and intent as they concentrated on Mrs. Kent's instructions, crimped pastry edges, whipped up pumpkin filling, checked on the ovens and tested pies for "doneness."

Written on the blackboard were the recipes, the one for pumpkin chiffon being as follows:

PUMPKIN CHIFFON PIE

3 egg yolks
½ cup sugar
1¼ cups pumpkin
½ cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon ginger
½ teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon nutmeg
1 tablespoon (envelope) gelatin
¼ cup cold water
3 stiffly beaten egg whites
½ cup sugar
1 9-inch pastry shell

Beat yolks and sugar until thick; add pumpkin, milk, salt and spices; cook in double boiler until thick. Add gelatin, softened in cold water; stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add egg whites, beaten stiff, then beat in remaining sugar. Pour into baked shell and chill. If desired, top with sweetened whipped cream.

Class Molds Salad

The cranberry salad had been made by another class (Foods I) and was congealing in the refrigerator. When the bell rang for classes to change, members of this group returned to the laboratory, coiffed their hair demurely in nets, donned aprons with their names embroidered on the front, and set to work unmolding salad.

The recipe by which it was made is as follows:

CRANBERRY FRUIT MOLD

1 cup ground raw cranberries
1 cup ground unpared apples
1 cup sugar
1 package lemon gelatin
1 cup hot water
1 cup pineapple syrup
½ cup seeded Tokay grape halves
1 cup broken walnut meats
6 pineapple slices (optional)

Combine cranberries, apple and sugar. Let stand. Dissolve gelatin in hot water. Add pineapple syrup; chill until partially set. Add cranberry-apple mixture, grape halves and nut meats. Pour into large ring mold or small individual molds. This recipe serves six persons.

The class at Coolidge used both a ring mold and small molds. The ring mold was arranged on a large plate, garnished with lettuce, grape halves and pineapple sections. Each individual mold was turned out on a pineapple slice arranged on a crisp lettuce leaf. The salads were served with mayonnaise.

95 Girls Enrolled

The foods course at Coolidge High is elective, and this year 95 girls are enrolled in it. One complete year's training is offered. Also given by the home economics department are courses in clothing, child care, home management, home nursing and nutrition.

The "housekeeping" apartment at the new school is a great asset in teaching these classes, Mrs. Kent said. It's certainly the sort of place where you look around and say, "Wish they'd had all this when I went to high school!"

Besides the combination living room and dining room, the apartment has a bedroom with adjoining bath, a laundry room and, of course, the kitchen. It's modern equipment includes an electric washing machine, ironer and dryer. There are also many small appliances—electric mixers, pressure cookers, electric roasting oven, toaster and percolator.

"The girls learn to use this equipment and know the value of the different appliances," Mrs. Kent explained, "but we try not to let them become too dependent on it. We want them to be able to cook without automatic equipment, too!"

EASY does it! Shirley Sager, 5128 North Capitol st., carefully trims the edge of dough from around a pie shell

HERE'S how to put custard pie in the oven without spilling a drop! Hold out a cupful of the filling and add it to the pie after it is in the oven, as Betty Beall (left), of 6705 Second st. nw., does here. Georgia Economos, 5603 North Capitol st., stands by to close the oven door

THIS pretty Thanksgiving table was arranged by home economics students of Calvin Coolidge High School at one of their classes this week. Pat McLister, 721 Sheridan st. nw., lights the candles, while Joan Palmer, 11 Cleveland ave., Takoma Park, pours water, and Joan Blakelock, 6915 Sixth st. nw., places the salads on the table

THE dexterity with which Anne Poole, of 1335 Kalmia rd. nw., removes cranberry fruit ring from its mold is admired by Marilyn Ashley (center), of 1549 North land la., Silver Spring, and Elaine Silverstone (right), of 709 Somerset pl. nw.

Philippine Wares Will Be on Sale

A sale of handwoven luncheon sets made in the Philippines will be held at the Philippine Embassy on Tuesday, December 9. The sets were ordered by Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, wife of the former American Ambassador. Proceeds will go to the weavers in the Philippines who are endeavoring to restore their war-torn industry.

Arrangements for the sale are being handled by a committee composed of Mrs. Narciso Ramos, wife of the Philippine Minister, Mrs. McNutt, Mrs. J. Weldon Jones and Mrs. Carlos P. Romulo.

Mrs. Clark to Speak Over Radio Monday

Mrs. Tom Clark, wife of the Attorney General, will appear on WTOP'S "Home Service Daily" as the guest of Elinor Lee, Monday at 9:15 a. m.

Mrs. Clark's visit is in connection with Monday's celebration of women's day in Washington's rededication week, from November 20 to 27. The week of rededication prepared the way for the arrival of the Freedom Train in Washington next week.

Mrs. Howard G. Nichols, general chairman of the women's day activities, will introduce Mrs. Clark.

MRS. JOHN J. BECK
. . . New York honeymoon

In Bridal Procession

Miss Mary Mildred Wood became the bride of John Joseph Beck at St. Joseph's Church November 8 with the Rev. John V. Connor officiating. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Wood of this city and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John F. Beck, jr., also of Washington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore ivory satin made with a bustle skirt and long train and with a wide ruffle of lace at the neckline. Her veil of illusion was held by a coronet of orange blossoms and she carried roses.

Miss Frances Wood, the maid of honor, wore ice blue satin, fashioned similarly to the bride's dress, with matching headpiece and mittens and she carried rose-colored pom-pom chrysanthemums. The bridesmaids, Misses Jeanne Wood and Theresa Beck, sisters of the bride and of the bridegroom, wore rose moire taffeta frocks with matching headpieces and mittens and carried yellow chrysanthemums.

Russell Beck was best man for his brother and the ushers were Berry Oliver, jr., and Gene McHale.

A reception was held at Raleigh Hotel after which the couple left for New York City. They will make their home in Washington.

Mr. Beck served for 32 months in the Coast Guard.

Urmey—Smith

Miss Mary Louise Smith, daughter of Mrs. George M. Smith of Birmingham, Ala., was married at the First Baptist Church November 15 to Frank W. Urmey, son of Mrs. Lydia K. Urmey of Jacksonville, Fla.

The ceremony took place at 11 a. m. in the pastor's study, with the Rev. Edward Dowdy officiating. Mrs. Hale H. Brown served as matron of honor and William O. Burtner as best man. Immediately afterward, Mr. and Mrs. Brown entertained at a reception at their home in Arlington.

Upon their return from a brief wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Urmey will live at 2222 I st. nw. The bride attended the University of Tennessee and Mr. Urmey is an alumnus of Washington and Lee University.

Barrett—Mitchell

The wedding of Miss Beverly Ruth Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Mitchell of Solomons, Md., and Carl Thomas Barrett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Barrett of Appeal, Md., took place November 15 at St. Paul's Church, Lusby, Md.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Flora Mae Barrett as maid of honor and by Miss Doris Barrett and Miss Wanda Fetcho, bridesmaids. Daniel Barrett, jr., served as best man.

Markow
MRS. JOHN R. GLYNN
. . . wed in Virginia

Glynn—Wedderburn

Miss George Wedderburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Addison Wedderburn of Wedderburn, Va., and John Robert Glynn, son of Mr. and Mrs. James M. Glynn of Reno, Nev., were married on November 15 in Falls Church, Va. The wedding took place in the Falls Church, with the Rev. Francis W. Hayes and the Rev. Henry C. Parkman officiating.

Escorted by her father, the bride wore a gown of ivory satin featured by illusion yoke edged with a scalloped bertha and a draped skirt ending in a long, scalloped train. Lace inserts trimmed her veil, which was attached to a Dutch cap of pearls, and she carried a nosegay of gardenias surrounded by stephanotis.

Mrs. Bernard J. McGinnis, matron of honor, was gowned in green satin and carried Joanna Hill roses. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Robert Snyder, Miss Sarah Dunnington, Mrs. Douglas Diamond and Miss Clarise Butler. All were costumed in gold satin and carried gold and bronze chrysanthemums.

Bernard J. McGinnis acted as best man and ushers were Robert Snyder, William H. Nixon, Robert Fitzgerald and Harry McGinnis.

Following a reception at Hotel 2400, Mr. and Mrs. Glynn left on a wedding trip to New York. They will make their home in Wedderburn. The bride attended George Washington and Maryland Universities and Mr. Glynn is an alumnus of the University of Nevada.

Skaters to Give Exhibition Sunday

The Washington Figure Skating Club will give an exhibition at the Chevy Chase Ice Palace birthday party, Sunday evening at 8 p. m.

Solos will be given by the top skaters, Ann Davies, Ferne Fletcher, Carol Ann Peters, Carlton Hoffner, and Donald Laws. Ann Davies and Carlton Hoffner will skate together.

French Teachers to Be Entertained Today

The George Washington University department of romance languages will entertain the Washington Chapter of the American Association of Teachers of French today from 4 to 6 p. m. in Columbian House, 21st and G sts. nw.

Two university faculty members will address the group. Mrs. Doris Percival, doctor of philosophy, Cambridge University, will discuss "Views on American and British Methods of Modern Language Teaching"; and Miss Marie Therese Grandjean, a graduate of the University of Paris, has chosen as her topic "Activities While Aiding the Resistance Movement During German Occupation."

Mother Is Greatly Distressed by Daughter's Intent to Marry Her 18-Year-Old Sweetheart At Christmas; Boy's Parents Favor the Plan

DEAR MARY HAYWORTH: I am greatly distressed by my daughter's intent to marry her 18-year-old sweetheart at Christmas. She will be 19 this month. She finished school last year and immediately found employment that offers steady advancement.

We are a devoted family and until recently she and Tom were happy in their original purpose to be married after he finishes his college course, four years hence.

However, Tom's family moved to a nearby city a few months ago, since when this talk of immediate marriage developed, encouraged by Tom's parents, who base their endorsement on the fact that they, too, married early and have never regretted it.

Boy Is Launched On College Course

TOM'S college offers cabin accommodations to married students, and although Tom is three months younger than Nancy, has no income and can expect only moral support from his parents, he has persuaded her that marriage at Christmas would be ideal; and that it would be all right for her to get a job there and help meet expenses.

Tom's father sanctions this plan, invites them to stay with him until they can get campus quarters, and says that in case of an early visit from the stork, it will be all right for Tom to quit school and go to work.

All my reasonable efforts to dissuade them are ignored. I think their plans are premature; that Tom, though a nice boy, isn't qualified in any way to accept the responsibilities of marriage at present. Is there anything I might say or do to convince them, and Tom's parents, that in urging them to wait I am stating a common sense view?

I am in a mood to wash my hands of the whole affair; but in the event they go through with their plans to be married at Christmas, should I be agreeable and help Nancy with arrangements? Please advise. D. R.

Lad's Prospectus Seems Quite Brash

DEAR D. R.: The postwar trend among colleges to provide special housing for married students was intended to benefit veterans whose schooling was interrupted by military duty, or who left the service with a desire for higher education at government expense—to which they were entitled.

Is Tom a veteran? It seems unlikely, in view of his tender years; and if he isn't, he definitely doesn't rate the housing facilities he's counting on. Even supposing he is a veteran of sorts, this emergency-planning of college authorties didn't have striplings his age in mind.

The idea was to give adult-age veterans some form of help and encouragement in rounding out their education, while getting married in normal season—i. e., in their twenties. It had no thought of encouraging lads Tom's age—not yet dry behind the ears—to bring a bride to school.

Moreover, objective surveys of conditions in these campus communities, where couples live at subsistence level; bring to light a rather depressing over-all picture.

Are They Prepared To Endure Poverty?

ONE reliable reporter tells me the situation generally is borderline; that is to say, the strain of poverty—of warding off debt and hunger—is ever present. Any social crisis affecting the pocketbook is apt to precipitate a charity case—unless the pair have parents to fall back on.

It's a tough grind, which only strong characters can profitably take in stride; and it means "curtains" to youth for couples who see it through, even though their love may survive the ordeal. If Tom and Nancy aren't prepared for this, they are leading with their chins into grim disillusionment; and in my opinion Tom's parents are counselling folly in urging them to go ahead.

However, if their minds are made up, if they won't turn back, then my advice is to drop the argument and give Nancy the nicest possible wedding, warmed by your loving help on the score of arrangements. M. H.

Exercise to Tone Those Flabby Mid-Muscles

By Ida Jean Kain

At any age the spread begins in the middle, and requests for exercises to tone and strengthen the stomach muscles outnumber all others put together. Why do we have such difficulty keeping this part of the figure in shape? Let's get the "inside" information . . .

We stand and walk upright—therefore we have to counteract gravity. In a horizontal position, the abdominal organs lie normally in place, even when the abdominal muscles are flabby. In a standing position, the weight of the organs pulls them downward. Inside the abdominal cavity, soft membrane enfolds the arteries, veins and nerves; we do not have strong, fibrous ligaments for support. Therefore, proper support for this part of the figure must come from the muscles which surround it.

Vital to Health

Nature has equipped us with four powerful muscular bands for this purpose and the coordinated action of these muscles can hold the organs in position and the figure in beautiful shape. Incidentally, proper tone in these muscles is vitally important to good health, too.

Now that you know what happens when the middle muscles lose tone, corrective exercises may not seem a waste of time.

Take It Lying Down

To prevent strain, beginning exercises should be taken lying down. Today's first exercise moves the organs upward to normal position.

Position: Place a chair without arms sideways to wall. Then lie on back on floor with lower legs across seat of chair, bend of the knee at edge of chair. Have arms down at sides.

Movement: Lift hips off floor and at same time fling arms up on floor overhead. Contract and tighten the middle muscles, but do not arch small of back. Continue six counts, rest, repeat six more counts. Relax.

Now a tightener:

Movement: Pull both knees back in a rocking motion, raising hips just slightly off floor. Repeat six times, relax, repeat six times.

The Marble Clock

The dark marble clock needs a little attention now and then, too, in order to look its best. Dip a soft cloth into olive oil and rub the marble well wtih it. Then polish with a clean chamois, it will look beautiful.

Goldblum—Harris

Under a canopy of chrysanthemums and lilies of the valley, Miss Shirley Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Harris, and Joshua Goldblum, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Goldblum, were married at Hotel 2400, October 26.

Rabbi Harry Silverstone officiated and the bride's father gave her in marriage. She wore a seed-pearl trimmed, white satin bridal gown with a finger-tip veil held by a coronet of net and seed pearls and she carried her family Bible with white orchids.

Mrs. Myron Garfinkle, serving as matron of honor, wore a faille gown with a headdress of hunter's green and carried talisman roses.

Mr. and Mrs. Goldblum will reside at 32 Varnum st. ne., after honeymooning at Miami Beach and Havana.

MRS. ROBERT W. BARTON
. . . Episcopal service

Barton—Judd

The Episcopal Church of the Transfiguration was the scene of the wedding at 8 last evening of Miss Sally Frances Judd and Robert Wharton Barton. The Rev. John J. Queally officiated.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Bernard Samuel Judd of this city and her husband is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Barton, also of Washington.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore ivory satin made with an off-the-shoulder neckline, filled in with net, a fitted bodice and full skirt. She wore a Mary Queen of Scots headdress with her veil of illusion and carried orchids, stephanotis and white roses. She also wore the lace trimmed petticoat that was in the trousseau of her great-great-grandmother, Martha White Williamson.

Miss Doris L. Holloway was maid of honor, wearing rose velveteen. She carried orchid chrysanthemums with a matching headdress. Miss Felicia Miller, in purple velveteen, and Mrs. John F. Sayers (nee Margaret Cook), in dark green, were bridesmaids. They carried bronze chrysanthemums.

Sergt. R. G. Martel was best man and the ushers were Charles R. Bird, jr., John F. Sayers, Frank Daugherty and Herbert Faulconer.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The couple left for a wedding trip to New York and will live in Silver Spring, Md., when they return.

The bride attended Hollins College and was graduated from George Washington University. She is a member of Delta Zeta and Alpha Pi Epsilon Sororities. Mr. Barton is attending George Washington University.

Smith—Williams

Miss Betty Jane Williams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Frederick Williams of Mount Rainier, Md., became the bride on November 15 of Aubrey Todd Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Smith of Pink Hill, N. C. The wedding took place in Mount Rainier Methodist Church, the Rev. Clarkson Banes officiating.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of white marquisette trimmed with lace. Her veil fell from a tiara of seed pearls and she carried white roses.

Miss Peggy Dore, costumed in yellow marquisette and carrying orchid pompons and yellow roses, acted as maid of honor. The bridesmaids, Miss Barbara Parker and Miss Anna Marie Krumbine, were gowned in orchid and green marquisette, respectively, and carried bouquets of yellow pompons.

Ralph Hoglund served as best man and ushers were Marvin Miserendino and Allan Thomas.

Following a Northern honeymoon, Mr. and Mrs. Smith will make their home in Washington.

Burkhead—Babashan

In Hamline Methodist Church on November 9, Miss Dorothy Babashan was married to James Burkhead, with the Rev. H. W. Burgan officiating. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Benjamin Babashan of Washington and the late Mr. Babashan, and her husband is the son of Mrs. Edgar M. Burkhead of Greensboro, N. C., and the late Mr. Burkhead.

Escorted by her brother, Benjamin E. Babashan, jr., the bride was gowned in ivory satin and

Brown-Suares

Washington Clubwomen Plan Varied Activities

Capital Hill History Club will celebraate its golden anniversary with a luncheon, Monday, 1 p. m., at the Dodge Hotel. Presentation of Mrs. Daniel Shook and Mrs. Jason Waterman, both of whom joined the club in 1901, will be a feature of the program that will include talks by Mrs. Edgar C. Magdeburger, president of the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs; Mrs. William M. Collins and Mrs. Waterman.

Mrs. Geoffrey Creyke, past president of the Twentieth Century Club, and Mrs. Edgar Merritt, also a past president of the D. C. Federation and former member of the History Club, will be among the honored guests.

Several musical numbers will be given by Miss Phebe Stine, soloist, and Mrs. H. Anderson, pianist.

The Capital Hill History Club was formed in 1897, the same year the Congressional Library was opened.

Jewish Women's Council Has Membership Tea

Floral arrangements submitted by members of the floral arrangement group were one of the features of the member-bring-a-member tea held by the D. C. Section, Council of Jewish Women, at Woodmont Country Club yesterday.

Also exhibited were samples of work done by various divisions of the organization. Booths were set up showing work done by the Juanita K. Nye Council House, the Economy Shop, the foreign aid group, legislative division and cultural group, which includes classes in music, public speaking, child study, book review as well as floral arrangement.

Big Ten Dance to Honor Michigan Alumni

The University of Michigan, winner of the Big Ten football championship, will be honored at the twenty-eighth annual Big Ten round-up dance tomorrow, 9 p. m. to midnight at the Statler Hotel.

Michigan's Senator and Mrs. Homer Ferguson, distinguished alumni of the State university, who are among the sponsors of the event, will be on hand for their alma mater's gridiron victory celebration. An absentee sponsor will be Richard C. Mitchell, commissioner of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Your Questions on Homemaking

I am going to have my first baby and I know very little about infant's care. Could you recommend a good book dealing with such problems? F. R. S.

A bulletin which has been the standby of mothers all over the country for the care of the child from birth through the first year can be had by writing to the United States Children's Bureau, Washington 25, D. C. The title is "Infant Care" and single copies can be obtained without cost. The Children's Bureau also has a bulletin which deals with the older child. Its title is, "Your Child From One to Six." A book which can be purchased at most book stores is, "Home Guidance for Young Children," by Grace Landon. It was published by the John Day Co., New York.

How can I get rid of red ants? I have sprayed DDT, also some liquid preparation which I purchased at a drug store. A. M. H.

To determine the method of getting rid of them, ants in a house should be closely watched to note whether, after securing food, they carry it indoors or into cracks in the woodwork. When they disappear into cracks, kerosene should be squirted in with an oil can, and the cracks closed with cotton wool wet with kerosene. Another method is to use a syrupy preparation which can be purchased at a drug store. Pour the syrup onto a piece of cardboard and place it in the path of the ants. They take this back to the nest and in this way the queen is killed. It is necessary to kill the queen if you are to be permanently rid of the ants.

Dust collar of the jacket with cleaning powder and allow to stand for 20 minutes. Brush thoroughly. Repeat if necessary.

Will you tell me how to remove black crayon marks from a new rose broadloom rug? I have not tried any kind of cleaner. A. W.

Sponge the marks with a lintless cloth dampened with carbon tetrachloride. Or make a paste of cornstarch and carbon tetrachloride and work into the rug. Allow to dry and brush away. If this doesn't remove marks, I suggest you try a professional rug cleaner.

Because I'm allergic to dust, the doctor told me to use an oiled dust mop on the bedroom floor every two weeks. We have lovely hardwood floors and I'd like to know if there is any preparation to use on the dust mop that won't ruin the waxed finish of the floors, or if you could recommend any other care that would help keep the dust at a minimum? P. E. S.

To reduce the amount of dust, use your vacuum cleaner for the preliminary cleaning on bare floors. Then, with the heavy dust picked up, use the dust mop for buffing only. After every use, clean the mop with the suction attachment tool of your vacuum cleaner. It is possible to buy dust mops which are already treated for taking up dust. To treat one at home, soak a new and clean string mop with a mixture of two parts paraffin oil and one part turpentine. Wring and hang out of doors to dry.

A marble-topped table we recently acquired has a scratch on it, also some stains (light). How can these be removed without harming the marble? Incidentally, the marble is mostly white with some gray. P. P.

The stains can probably be removed by saturating a thick pad with undiluted household bleach and placing it over the stain for several hours. If possible, cover the pad with a sheet of glass to check evaporation. Rewet cloth if necessary to completely remove stain. About the only way to obliterate the scratch is to rub with a block of pumice stone, using plenty of water. Hard rubbing will be required. This rubbing also will help to remove any remaining stain. If these operations dull the polished finish the polish can be renewed by rubbing with putty powder on a damp felt pad. Putty powder can be obtained at most paint stores.

All of my mahogany dining room chairs are stained across the top of the back with cream paint, undoubtedly as the result of being pushed up against the apartment walls. (The stains didn't come from wet paint, however, since no painting has been done since we have lived here.) Do you know how I can remove these light spots from the dark furniture? L. R. R.

Many apartment houses use water-mixed paint on the walls, so try first to remove the spots by washing the chair backs with warm water and a mild soap. If this doesn't work, dampen a soft cloth with turpentine and rub the paint spot. If the paint comes off by either method, give the spot treated a coat of wax. If these methods do not remove the paint, it will be necessary to use a paint remover and, in that case, the chair will have to be refinished.

A burning cigarette fell on my leather-covered table top and while it did not burn into or apparently damage the leather, it did cause a small dark spot. Is there any way this spot or discoloration can be removed? M. L. B.

It is doubtful if this discoloration can be entirely removed. However, you might improve the appearance by washing with saddle soap, following directions on the label. Or, if the leather is dark, rub the spot with a high grade shoe polish in matching color.

How can I remove fingernail polish from a corduroy robe? D. J. L.

Fingernail polish stains can be successfully taken out of most materials with regular nail polish remover or acetone. However, if there's any chance that this material contains acetate rayon or vinyon, use the following method: Dampen the spot with carbon tetrachloride or gasoline, then apply a drop of banana oil to the stain. Brush lightly with a soft cloth, using an upward motion to pick up dissolved polish.

In 1746, in Edinburgh, a magnificent Scotch Whisky was blended — pledged

So it is that today, as ever, those of discernment and practiced judgment name their brand—

A File for the Blind to 'Read'

REFERENCE IN BRAILLE—Helen Keller's expert fingers examine the reference file at the Division for the Blind in the Congressional Library, which is being converted to Braille so sightless workers may work the records. With her is Xenophon Smith, director of the division

Helen Keller Here to Urge Literary Quarterly for Blind

Miss Helen Keller, 67-year-old inspiration to the world's deaf-blind, was in Washington yesterday to urge publication of a quarterly literary review for the 250,000 blind in the United States.

Discussing the project with Xenophon Smith, director of the Department for the Blind in the Library of Congress, Miss Keller said, "My feeling is that the literary level of the blind will soon be as high as the level of those with sight."

The department is in charge of the publication of all books and recordings for the blind that go to the 25 libraries for the blind located in the United States. According to Smith, there are at present about 2700 books in Braille, and about 1300 books on recordings.

Miss Keller prefers biographies, letters and philosophy, and has no use for mysteries. In the library stacks, her hand ran across a Braille copy of "The Gold Skull Murder." She showed her disapproval with an "ugh."

According to Smith, there are over 10,000 active subscribers to books in the Braille libraries. Estimating that other people read the books, he guessed that only 10 per cent of all the blind in the United States are able to read Braille with pleasure. Miss Keller estimated slightly higher, but declared that it was still a very low percentage.

Hoover Sees Red Chains Shaken Off

New York, Nov. 20 (AP).—Herbert Hoover said tonight, "I cannot but believe that the Communist-ridden peoples will sooner or later throw off their chains."

Speaking at the annual dinner meeting of the Holland Society of New York, which presented him its gold medal for distinguished achievement, Hoover said "repeated purges" indicate there are some "rumblings" in Communist-dominated lands.

"It is certain that fifth columns are active all over the world and that they must be unceasingly combatted," he continued, "but as time goes on they are having less success.

"A year ago there were Communist ministers in the cabinets of seven or eight governments outside the iron curtain; now they remain in only one or two such countries."

The former President described Russian communism as "the great shadow which hangs over the future of the world," and said, "We are now divided into two world, the one which holds to agnosticism and human slavery, the other that holds to faith and free men."

THANKSGIVING WEEK TREATS. Turkey isn't the only treat slated for next week. The night spots are also breaking out quite a few delicacies in diversion . . . Bert Wheeler (remember when Wheeler and Woolsey were the equivalent of Abbott and Costello?) will open at the Cairo next Wednesday . . . The Mayflower Lounge will present Marge and Gower Champion, a pair of distinguished dancing partner of Cyd Charisse is the daughter of Ernest Belcher, Hollywood's famed dance teacher; was the model for Disney's Snow White. Gower was recently the dancing partner of Cyd Charisse . . . The Balalaika and the Pall Mall Room are also planning something fancy in the way of New York entertainers for the holiday week . . . And the Casino Royal will unveil its Thanksgiving Week revue next Tuesday.

Champion
Coming to Mayflower

Winnie Hoveler and her dancers from Manhattan's Carnival made their Washington debut at the Lotus last night. New also are Lou Barrison who strolls on stilts, and the Belmontes, Latin dancers.

TELEVISED DAUGHTER: The father of Sherry Sherwood, Rainbow Room singer, was sitting peacefully in a Baltimore spot watching a boxing match via television. Suddenly the scene changed and Sherry appeared singing "Can't You See Yourself?" Spectators say that Papa Sherwood gave one startled shout, ran across the room and grabbed the television machine with the apparent intention of shaking his daughter out of it. Seems Sherry hadn't had a chance to tell him that she'd signed with Dumont Television.

Tony Roberts, debonair and with a nice voice, has opened in the Sazerac Room of the Old New Orleans . . . Michel Michon (what an effulgent name), baritone from the West Coast, is now with the Balalaika revue.

MISSES DEPARTMENT. "New look! Fooey!" piped up Dona Mason of the King Cole Room. "I am being different by having no new look." Then she cannily added, "But I have a candy-striped satin with 3 more yards in it than Princess Elizabeth's wedding gown." Vin Gallagher, K. C. R. owner, put in his oar with, "And you might say that any resemblance she bears to Jane Russell in 'The Outlaw' in this outfit is strictly premeditated" . . . Tana, the Madrillon's blonde seeress, is off to Mimia for a rest. The doctor ordered it . . . The real name of Suzanne, sweet young accordionist in the Muses cocktail lounge, is Harriet Rose and she's a grad of Roosevelt High School.

Ray Anthony will toss a combination "jam session and tea dance" at Club Kavakos tomorrow afternoon between 5 and 7. This sounds like tons of fun . . . Don't disremember that Ted Weems and his orchestra will be at Club K. next Monday and Tuesday.

RUBY FOO SCENE. "What's the boss doing in New York? Having fun?" I all too casually asked Manager Kaplan of Ruby Foo's. We were talking of Owner I. Pike. "Mr. Pike is not interested in fun," said Mr. Kaplan severely. "What do you think he is—a general?" . . . It's true that Owner Pike is one of the busiest citizens around. He operates both our Ruby Foo's and the immensely profitable Ruby Foo's in New York and he doesn't do it by remote control.

INTERSTATE DANCES on Friday nights in the Hall of Nations Ballroom of the Washington Hotel are being promoted by the newly organized Interstate Society whose officers hail from all over the country. Joe Dosh will be the song star at the first dance on November 28 and will broadcast over WINX from the ballroom. Dance music by Vernon Brown's 17-man band with Vocalist Betty Holliday.

RESTAURATEURS' DELIGHTS. James Brahms, head man of Olmsted's, dotes on a sandwich he's invented and which should be called he "Brahmsburger." It's of ground pork and chicken with a rich dill-flavored sauce . . . Jimmy Lee, manager of the Good Earth, who never fished before this summer, now goes angling on Chesapeake Bay every Wednesday, always comes home with loads of fish and no stories about the ones that got away . . . "Mayor" Ciro of Ciro's loves to play the French horn. He's a master of this difficult instrument, was a symphony orchestra musician as a young fellow. But now he plays only for fun—with the gentle continuous tinkle of his spot's cash register for accompaniment.

Merry-Land's Ray Marshall has a new instrument he calls a Hoot-Nanny. It's a washboard with improbable attachments and a hillbilly complex.

THE DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Signs Point to Pentagon Again, But Confusion Lingers

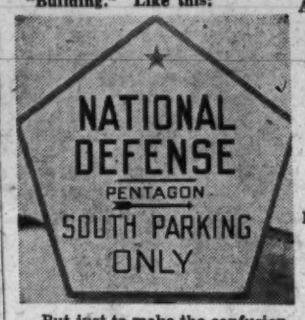
Then they pointed the way to the "National Defense Building."

But after we questioned the propriety of such a term, the word "Building" was blanked out. Now our photographers bring evidence that "Pentagon" has been substituted for "Building." Like this:



But just to make the confusion complete, our photographers also bring us evidence that not all the signs tell the same story. See what I mean?

After we get the armed services unified, Mr. Secretary, how about doing a similar job on the signs—and going back to "Pentagon?"

The word is firmly entrenched in local lore, and it takes more than a couple of signs to change a community's habits.

DEFINITIONS

The first suggestion for a name for our "unusual definitions game" comes from C. F. Kraft of Falls Church, Va.

District Liner Kraft says that when we make up words like "nagravating" and "Hesscapade" we should call them "dictionerrors."

(Then we could compile our collection into a "dictioneerie.")

Very good. Any other suggestions?

CAN YOU, MR. WILSON?

"Earl Wilson is all mixed up about Washington," writes M. O. K.

"He thinks this is the place where secretaries are 64 years old and wear lace shawls and high button shoes.

"Unfortunately for me, it's actually the place where only the young and the beautiful can get secretarial positions. Believe me—I know.

"I've had more than 20 years' experience, which means that I'm over 40 years old. Can Mr. Wilson tell me of a firm that's willing to give steady employment to a woman of more than 40?"

ADD SIGNS

Morris Katz of 303 D st. nw. reports this caustic reaction to a sign posted in a local store.

The printed notice says, "We Aim to Please." Beneath it, an obviously dissatisfied customer has scrawled:

KNIT WIT

Susan Crumley wanted to know how to knit mittens on four needles—but it's I who have been getting the advice.

"Knitting magazines are a hobby of mine," writes Mrs. Max Sittenfeld of 2500 Q st. nw.

"I had just finished straightening up my collection when I turned to your column and read about the girl who wanted some knitting directions.

"So I turned back to my magazines, found just the article she was after, clipped it, and mailed it to her."

Three District Liners suggest the "Learn How Book," which they say can be bought at any dime store.

(That advice comes from Jinx Kemper of 3610 38th st. nw., K. G. Ehrlich of 8-A Plateau pl., Greenbelt, Md., and Mrs. R. E. Zipp of 2024 S. 10th rd., Arlington, Va.)

Mrs. J. L. Stern of 40 Fairhaven ave., Alexandria, Va., adds that the information can also be found in the "Minerva Men's Book," volume 70. (That's what she said—"Men's Book.")

Dorothy Phinney of 3009 Naylor rd. se. gets completely off the subject of Susan and her four needles long enough to ask:

"If you can only knit your brows, does that make you a knit wit?"

Miss Crumley reports that she also got some of the advice in person. She writes:

"I got 11 letters and many, many phone calls, and one person called on me personally within 15 minutes after we finished reading the column that morning."

PERSONAL NOTES

In answer to many inquiries: I haven't been listening to the Mrs. Hush program; I don't know who she is; I don't really care much.

I'm the kind of guy who would run second if there were only two contestants and the other one was Mortimer Snerd.

Leonard Lyons . . .

NEW YORK.—George Jessel made a dissertation on the Irving Berlin song, "There's No Business Like Show Business," in which is stressed the fact that there are no people like show people, all envied by the outside world. "Just imagine," said Jessel, "an afternoon when Mr. John D. Rockefeller, jr., has an appointment with Mr. Irenee du Pont at Rockefeller Center. Mr. du Pont arrives in a sold gold car with a solid gold chauffeur. Mr. du Pont and Mr. Rockefeller give each other presents of millions of dollars. And then," said Jessel, "Mr. Rockefeller and Mr. du Pont cry out sadly: 'Oh, if we only could be Abbott & Costello.'"

WEALTH: Meyer Levin, the author-correspondent, was in Warsaw last week. He stopped at a gas station, where the attendant opened the hood of his station wagon and said: "Motor." . . . "Sure, that's a motor," Levin agreed . . . "Do you want to sell it?" asked the attendant . . . "The car?" asked Levin . . . "No. The motor," said the attendant. "I need a motor like that." . . . "What would I do with a car without a motor?" Levin asked him . . . The attendant looked at him in surprise and said: "You are Americanski. Didn't you bring a spare motor?"

DRESS: The newspapers Monday carried a feature story about the Rev. Jesse W. Routte, a Long Island clergyman who, after being subject to Jim Crow laws when he visited Mobile in 1943, recently returned there wearing a turban on his head and was received as a visiting potentate by Mobile's civic, political and social leaders . . . This is an old stunt, practiced many years ago by Dickie Wells, who ran a stay-up-late club in Harlem. Wells often accompanied his nightclub patrons on cabin-class cruises to Nassau, Cuba, Palm Beach and Europe, by wearing a turban and being introduced as the Maharajah of Hattan.

PROTEST: When Celeste Holm read the script of "Gentleman's Agreement" she wrote to Moss Hart that she was delighted with her role. She registered an objection, however, to the line in which the editor advises the reporter to change his first name from Schuyler to Phil "because Schuyler is an awful name. I wouldn't call a dog Schuyler." Miss Holm protested because in private life she is Mrs. Schuyler Dunning . . . Miss Holm, incidentally, met Spyros Skouras, who asked about her suspension by Twentieth Cenutry-Fox for refusing to play a minor role which was created so that Maureen O'Hara would have someone to talk to in the picture. "Do you object to the size of the role?" asked Skouras . . . "No, not to the size," said Miss Holm. "Only to the shape."

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

People Ahead of Congress

By Drew Pearson

Pearson

For some days the Sante Fe and other railroads of the Southwest have been collecting boxcars for the start of this train. Unlike the first Friendship Train which left Los Angeles with only 10 cars and collected others along the way, the wheat special will start with most of its load already on the train. They have been collected from points South and West—in Texas, Colorado, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Meanwhile, the generosity of the American public—as usual, far ahead of the Congress—is being expressed in other areas which want to start Friendship Trains. Many communities, hurt, even indignant that they have been left out, want to participate.

One underlying reason for this is that, for the first time in years, the American people have found a means of taking part in American foreign policy. Instead of sitting at home with no way of expressing themselves other than writing letters to their Congressmen, the American people now have come to realize that food is a most important means of American foreign policy and that they can participate in it. In fact, food can be more important than tanks and guns, more constructive than the atomic bomb.

Another underlying fact is that the American people are only too eager to organize for patriotic endeavors when they feel it gets them some place. And, as in the case of the Friendship Train, they can frequently do it better than Congress or the Government.

So, having had some time to think about these questions while riding a freight train across the country, this writer has come to the following conclusions:

The primary purposes of the Friendship Train was (1) to get aid to Europe in a hurry while Congress dallied; (2) to give the people of Europe a dramatic picture of American aid and show them that our help was not a cold deal between governments, but sprang from the hearts of the American people. That was why the dramatic means of a train to carry food was used—something which could be photographed and shown in the newsreel theaters of Europe; also something that could be duplicated with two Friendship Trains carrying the food in France and Italy.

Already there is word that the Italian newspapers are playing up the welcome news of the Friendship Train. Already Premier de Gasperi has expressed his thanks. Already overseas broadcasts are telling Europeans about the Friendship Train, and there is good reason to believe that recent riots in France and Italy are the result of Communist desperation to stage revolution while stomachs are empty.

Since the Friendship Train has now served its initial purpose, the next problem is to give the American people the best and most efficient means of a continuing voice in American foreign policy through food for friendship.

Probably this can best be done by working through American Overseas Aid at 39 Broadway, New York 6, N. Y. This is the overall agency for the different American church and relief groups. They are now planning a Nation-wide campaign for foreign aid and are equipped to correlate and direct it. Additional Friendship Trains may become important when another need arises, in which case American Overseas Aid is undoubtedly the best agency to handle them.

Also the Christian Rural Overseas Program at 308 W. Washington st., Chicago, sponsored by the Church World Service and Lutheran World Relief, has been doing an excellent job of raising food for Europe and distributing it in such a way that the European people understand it comes from the American people.

Also CARE at 50 Broad st., New York, sends individual packages from the United States to Europe and does a trustworthy job of making sure such packages get into the right hands.

These relief agencies work together and are thoroughly competent to handle future private donations to both Europe and Asia. Furthermore, they have experienced personnel stationed overseas who can do a good job of getting relief distributed where it will help most.

If we are going to reconstruct Europe, we might as well do it in such a way that we don't have to keep dumping American money there year after year. American know-how, initiative and enterprise can accomplish this.
